ROOSEVELT STANDS BEFORE THE SPHINX

Views Pyramids and Colossus by Moonlight After Busy Day in Cairo.

RECEIVES ROYAL HONORS

Exchanges Calls with the Khedive and Mrs. Roosevelt with the Khediva—People Line Streets.

Former Assistant Secretary of State.
Correspondent of The New York Times and Chicago Tribune.

CAIRO, Egypt, March 24.—After royal honors accorded by the Khédive, Abbas Hilmi, and a popular reception which the published criticism by the Nationalists of his Soudan speeches could not dim, Theodore Roosevelt stood to-night in the mournful desert in the moonlight and looked into the unfathomable eyes of the Sphinx. He was the representative of forceful, strenuous America, face to face with the stolid image.

The Sphinx seemed to smile in ironic pity at the petty endeavors of the peoples it had seen rise and disappear during the 5,000 years of existence upon which it has gazed and estimated the qualities of the great men of ancient and modern times, from the Pharaohs and Caesar and Antony down the ages to Napoleon and Roosevelt.

It was a night of wondrous clearness, with a brilliant silver moon, the dazzling rays of which lighted up the enormous colossus, with three huge pyramids rising ghost-like from behind, and suffused with a rosy color. All around was silence and mystery.

The Roosevelt party, including Mrs. Roosevelt, Kermit, and Ethel, went to the impenetrable Sphinx from the Mena Hotel, where they were guests at dinner of Cleveland Dodge of New York. Another guest was Mrs. Grover Cleveland, whose traveling party of twelve was under the auspices of Dr. Bliss, head of the Beirut Mission. The step from the hotel, where there were glaring electric lights and an orchestra playing popular airs, to the silent desert was a transition from the modern to the ancient world in an instant.

Only a few tourists were near the Sphinx when the Roosevelt party arrived, and their chatter and laughter, which sounded frivolous in the great void, suddenly ceased as they came under the influence of the mystery of the immutable face.

Roosevelt's Arrival in Cairo.

It was a strange day and a strange night to Col. Roosevelt and his wife. They traveled from Luxor to Cairo on a special train, arriving at 7:30 A. M. and finding the station thronged with British and Egyptian officials and curious natives.

Col. Roosevelt was received formally by Major L. O. F. Stack, British Agent in the Soudan and Director of Intelligence, who expressed the regrets of Sir Reginald Wingate, the Sirdar, that the latter, owing to indisposition, was unable to meet the city's guest personally.

The Ambassador to Turkey and Mrs. Straus and American Consul General Iddings and his wife and daughter were waiting for the Roosevelts with an automobile. The party drove to Shepheard's Hotel, which was decorated with American flags, and where a crowd of enthusiastic Americans welcomed them with cheers.

After a morning spent in dictating letters, Col. Roosevelt went to the Iddings residence for luncheon. Other guests were Lord Edward Cecil, son of the late Marquis of Salisbury, who is in the Egyptian service, and Mlle. Caponi, an Italian guest of the Iddings. Col. Roosevelt was in fine spirits, discussing the industrial and political conditions of Egypt.

Khedive Sends His Carriage.

At 3 o'clock the Khédive's state carriage arrived. This honor is paid only to royalty. The Master of Ceremonies to the Khédive explained the Court etiquette, and then Col. Roosevelt and Mr. Iddings took seats in the landau bearing the Khédival arms, which was drawn by two spirited Arab horses, and drove rapidly to the Abdine Palace.

The people lined the sidewalks along the streets, removing their tarbooshes and bowing a courtesy, which Col. Roosevelt returned.

The British soldiers stationed before the headquarters of the army of occupation saluted as the carriage, preceded by an outrider on a white stallion and wearing a red tarboosh, dark-blue coat with cartridge belt running from shoulder to breast, buff trousers, and boots, entered the Abdine Square.

Immediately there was a fanfare of trumpets, and the Khédivial guard, uniformed in red tarbooshes, dark-blue coats, and light-blue trousers with red stripes, presented arms. Col. Roosevelt raised his hat in return. As he descended from the carriage numerous policemen standing at the entrance to the palace gave the military salute, which was returned.

Col. Roosevelt never looked better. He had had his hair trimmed, which made him appear years younger, and he wore a frock coat and high hat for the first time since he left New York.

Khedive Meets Him Like Royalty.

The party was met at the door by the Chamberlain and conducted up the broad stairs to the top, where was standing the Khédive. The Egyptian ruler receives only royalty here, and it

SPOILS LUSITANIA RECORD.

Fog Holds Liner in Quarantine After an Exceptional Voyage.

The Cunard liner Lusitania, on which are Sir Ernest and Lady Shackleton, was down at Quarantine in the fog last night. Had it not been for the mist that held her back she would have broken all records, and landed her passengers before midnight.

A wireless dispatch received by the Cunard Line yesterday from Capt. Charles says that the liner had passed Nantucket at 12:43 P. M., and he expected to reach the Ambrose Channel Lightship at 7:45, and land his passengers about 10 o'clock. Till noon yesterday the Lusitania had averaged 26.05 knots, against the 25.91 made last voyage by the Mauretania over the long course. Her runs on Wednesday and yesterday were 656 and 655 miles, respectively. The high speed made by the liner bears out the statement made last voyage in New York by Chief Officer McNiel that, with her new propellers, the Lusitania would prove to be a faster ship than the Mauretania.

Sir Ernest Shackleton, the noted antarctic explorer, who is accompanied by Lady Shackleton, is coming here to receive a gold medal and to deliver a series of lectures on his south polar expedition.

Also on the Lusitania is Irwin B. Laughlin, First Secretary of the American Embassy at Berlin, whose brother, Thomas McK. Laughlin, brother-in-law of President Taft, committed suicide at Pittsburg. He is on his way home to Pittsburg.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Ambassador Bryce called at the White House to-day and arranged with the President to receive Sir Ernest Shackleton, the south polar explorer, on Saturday. The President is to present to Sir Ernest a gold medal awarded by the National Geographic Society, in recognition of his achievements, at a meeting of the society to be held here at Convention Hall on Saturday night.

KILLED BY SPEEDING AUTO.

Grocer Mangled by Motor in the Bronx—Second Car Escapes.

An automobile carrying Leroy Moody, general manager of the Berkshire Automobile Company of 1,993 Broadway, and E. A. Percy, a salesman of 137 West Seventy-ninth Street, struck and killed Antonio Di Persa, a grocer at 3,115 Albany Avenue, the Bronx, as he stepped from behind a pillar of the elevated Subway structure at 231st Street and Broadway early last night.

According to several witnesses, a second auto of dark red, with which the first seemed to be racing at high speed, shot directly behind it, barely swerving by the injured man, and then, after skidding with two wheels on to the pavement, sped on without stopping.

Policeman Culhane of the Kingsbridge Police Station, who was near, telephoned for an ambulance from the Fordham Hospital, and arrested Moody and Percy. Dr. Grossman of Fordham Hospital found that Di Persa had been badly mangled. So terrific had been the impact with the man's body that the metal covering of the machinery of the car was dented.

At the Kingsbridge Station, where Moody was taken on a charge of homicide and Percy locked up as a material witness, Lieut. Hall said he knew nothing about a second car having raced with Moody's, and that he had the names of no witnesses of the accident.

GIRL SAW BOMB THROWER.

Describes Man Who Fled from Tenement Before an Explosion.

Miss Emma Diebold, a daughter of Peter Diebold, who has a bakery on the ground floor of 2,267 Second Avenue, saw a young Italian lurking about the hall near the stairway early last night. When he saw her he ran into the street. A moment later there was an explosion in a small washroom under the stairs, which tore the door off its hinges, throwing it against the girl, and crushing her between it and the opposite wall, five feet away.

The noise of the explosion brought out most of the sixteen families of Italians living in the place, many of them in their excitement firing revolvers at random and shouting that the Black Hand was upon them. Policeman Hammen of the East 126th Street Police Station telephoned to the Harlem Hospital for an ambulance. When it came Dr. McCoombs found that the girl had suffered contusions about the face and left side, none of them serious.

According to the police, the girl said a sweetheart with whom she had refused to go to a dance last week had threatened to be revenged, but she later denied this. She described the young Italian whom she had seen as some 25 years old, 5 feet 6 inches tall, and clean shaven. The bomb was evidently an amateurish affair, doing little damage except to the door of the washroom and part of the stairs.

RUINED HERE BY GAMBLERS.

Bankrupt Providence Glove Dealer Tells of Losing $11,000 Since January.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 24.—Joseph A. Wolf, a Westminster Street glove dealer, under examination in bankruptcy proceedings here to-day, attributed his financial condition to the fact that New York gambling houses had taken $11,000 from him since Jan. 5 of the present year. Wolf was examined before Chester W. Barrows, referee in bankruptcy.

Wolf said his first trip to New York was made on Jan. 5, and he stayed until the 7th. On the evening of Jan. 6 he said he lost $3,800 in a place in West Thirtieth Street. He said he went again on Jan. 11, and in three hours' play at roulette that evening he lost $4,200 in a place in Forty-first Street, near Broadway.

The third time he went to New York in January he stayed from the 24th to the 26th and lost $2,200 or $2,300 in a gambling place in Forty-fifth Street, near Broadway.

When asked for a description of some of the places where he had lost his money Mr. Wolf was unable to give their exact location, but said that there were collar and cuff stores in front of some of them and a tobacco store in front of another.

Previous to his trips to New York in January, according to Wolf's testimony, he had visited a hotel in Broadway, New York, and lost between $100 and $250 at roulette. In four days in New York in February he said he lost $400 in a place in Lenox Avenue, in which neighborhood, he said, there were a large number of gambling places. Wolf also said that he had gambled a little in Greenwich and Narragansett Pier.

LAVA FROM MT. ETNA THREATENS TOWNS

Casa del Bosco Submerged by Molten Stream — Other Places in Its Path.

PEOPLE ARE IN TERROR

Smoke, Flame, Falling Ashes, and Intermittent Earth Shocks Add to Their Fears.

By the MARQUIS DE RUVOLITO.
Dispatch to The London Daily Mail.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CATANIA, Sicily, March 24.—I have returned from a tour by motor car of the districts affected by the eruption of Mount Etna, which still continues. Torrential rain is falling, and the country looks gray and haggard.

I left Catania at 3 o'clock this afternoon, and quickly reached the little town of Nicolosi, at the foot of the volcano. The population was gathered in the central square of the town, and all were staring toward Etna's peak.

The summit looked dark and menacing, and was occasionally lightened by a red glare. A rain of ashes descended, hiding the craters as though with a great veil. Terrifying rumblings, as though the artillery of Hades were in action, are heard. The earth shakes beneath my feet. My guide shouts, "An earthquake!" and makes the sign of the cross. But it is nothing more than a passing tremor.

Making my way with some difficulty, I advance in the direction of the lava streams from the craters. Ashes fallen since this morning form a thick carpet and render walking difficult. With a peasant as guide I climb steadily, with a cold wind in our faces. The going becomes more and more difficult. At last we reach a height where we are safe from the blazing rivers.

It is an amazing sight. A long tongue of fire is creeping forward. Every now and then great flames shoot up. My guide cries, with a sob in his voice:

"It is our trees you see burning."

The lava is making very swiftly toward Mont Saule. Yesterday it left in its rear Casa del Bosco, and at its left the wood of Fernandina. It menaced part of Borrello, close to Belpasso. To-day its advance has been extraordinarily swift. Casa del Bosco has been covered by lava and destroyed. The people of Belpasso and Nicolosi, who spent last night watching in the open, in spite of the rain, are still trembling for the safety of their towns. Four craters are vomiting lava, and the stream seems to grow greater and swifter.

The prefect visited the threatened towns yesterday, and soldiers have been sent to superintend the evacuation of Borrello. To-night the rain of ashes and lapilli continues, as also the rumblings from within the craters. Twenty-two more slight earthquake shocks have been registered at the Catania Observatory.

LAVA STREAM 20 FEET HIGH.

Velocity Is Increasing and Many Peasants' Houses Have Been Buried.

CATANIA, Sicily, March 24.—Mount Etna, whose eruptions in the past have wrought great destruction, is again in a violent state of activity. A pronounced movement within the crater began last evening, steadily increasing in volume, and to-night the gravest fears are entertained as to the results if the eruption continues in its present form.

Teh lava flow has already reached the vineyards above San Leo and Rinazzo, 7 miles from the crater, and has buried a large number of peasants' houses. It came in several streams and united in one great mass about 20 feet in height and 1,500 feet wide. Its velocity was estimated at three or four feet a minute, varying according to the condition of the ground. To-day this mighty wall of lava was not more than five miles from Belpasso and Nicolosi.

The meteorological station on the mountain side has been destroyed, and the village of Borrello is in serious danger. The people, terror-stricken, are flying from their homes. The earth shocks have reached about fifty in number, and there is a continuous vibration and trembling for many miles around. Everywhere the villagers are carrying images in procession and imploring mercy. Twelve new craters have been opened up.

Help for the people of the devastated region is being organized here. A detachment of soldiers and a large number of engineers and doctors have gone forward. The prefect of Catania, returning from the scene this evening, said:

"I have witnessed a spectacle of desolation and ruin which only those who saw the eruption of Vesuvius in 1906 can imagine. The present eruption can be compared to no other."

The authorities have issued orders that no one shall be permitted to go beyond Belpasso and soldiers have been stationed at various points to see that these orders are obeyed. The village of Borrello is surrounded by the lava and the inhabitants have fled to Belpasso.

Prof. Ricco, Director of Mount Etna Observatory, said to-night:

"The eruption is very grave and I think it will become much more serious. The lava has covered five miles in sixteen hours, and if my calculations are right the eruption of the volcano will not be short."

Dr. Walter Craven, an Englishman, after his return to-day from Nicolosi, where he made photographs of the lava, said:

"Horrible detonations made the ground tremble under my feet, and it was impossible to keep the camera steady for more than a moment."

Many tourists, among whom Americans

HOUSE DEMOCRATS ELECT IN HARMONY

One Ballot Suffices to Choose Four Members to Complete New Rules Committee.

FITZGERALD ONE OF THEM

Champ Clark, Underwood of Alabama, and Dixon of Indiana Others—Sims Urges Committee of Committees.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—In a caucus even more harmonious than that of the Republicans which preceded it last night the Democrats of the House selected to-night the four minority members of the new and enlarged Committee on Rules, as provided for in the Norris resolution, the passage of which recorded Cannon's defeat. The four Democrats and the votes by which they were elected are as follows: Champ Clark of Missouri, 125; Oscar Underwood of Alabama, 102; Lincoln Dixon of Indiana, 99, and John J. Fitzgerald of New York, 98.

There were no nominations, the balloting being in secret and the number of candidates unrestricted. Though this course resulted in a large scattering vote only one ballot was required. One hundred and forty Democrats attend the caucus.

Slayden of Texas received 69 votes; Hammond of Minnesota, 18; Hughes of New Jersey, 8; Sulzer of New York, 5; Rainey of Illinois, 4, and Garrett of Tennessee, Sherley of Kentucky, and Palmer of Pennsylvania, 3 each. A dozen or more Democrats received complimentary votes of 2 and less.

Caucus Chairman Henry D. Clayton of Alabama opened the meeting with a speech advocating harmony and foretelling the great opportunity that awaits the Democracy in the approaching elections.

Before the balloting began Mr. Sims of Tennessee attempted to get through a resolution instructing the Democratic members of the new Rules Committee to work for a rule taking the power of appointing all standing committees from the Speaker and conferring it upon a Committee on Committees, consisting of three members.

Upon motion of Mr. Rainey of Illinois this was declared by the Chair as not in order, inasmuch as the caucus was called for the sole purpose of electing four members of the Rules Committee. In the meantime, however, Representatives Sims, Burleson of Texas, Jones of Virginia, and Bartlett of Georgia, made short speeches advocating the resolution.

Mr. Sims, who appealed from the decision of the Chair, but later withdrew the appeal, after the result of the vote had been announced, again arose to put his resolution, but a motion by Representative Johnson of Kentucky to adjourn took precedence. The caucus voted to adjourn 81 to 39, and the four minority members of the Rules Committee are uninstructed.

It was suggested that the Sims resolution was in reality aimed at Representative Fitzgerald, against whom some opposition had developed because of his attitude in the rules fight a year ago, the supposition being that Mr. Fitzgerald might decline to serve if so instructed. This, however, was denied by Chairman Clayton and other Democrats after the caucus. Mr. Clayton said that the Sims proposition was a mere matter of detail and was superfluous, since the Democrats and the insurgents now hold the balance of power in the House and can overthrow the new Committee on Rules at any time that its actions are not pleasing to the insurgent-Democratic majority.

Nevertheless, when the caucus adjourned, Mr. Sims announced that he would proceed at once to circulate a call for another caucus to consider the subject of his resolution. Only twenty-five signatures under the rules are required to compel the holding of another caucus, and the Sims supporters polled 39 votes on the adjournment test.

The six Republicans chosen in the caucus of that party last night, Dalzell of Pennsylvania, Smith of Iowa, Lawrence of Massachusetts, Fassett of New York, Smith of California, and Boutell of Illinois, with the four Democrats named to-night, will probably be formally elected as the Committee on Rules to-morrow. Champ Clark said to-night that the election in all probability will be by unanimous consent.

Already there is talk of increasing the number of members to eleven, so as to provide an odd number to avoid tie votes. This talk, however, has not crystallized into any definite shape, and if any such movement is made it will not be at this session of Congress. It is expected that Mr. Dalzell will be selected as Chairman, because of his seniority of service on the committee. While one of the most intimate friends and stanchest supporters of Speaker Cannon, he was not originally appointed to the committee by Mr. Cannon, his selection dating back to Speaker Reed.

PANIC OVER NEW ENGLAND.

Republicans Fear Great Democratic Gains There Next Fall.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—New England Republicans in Congress who have heard from their districts since Tuesday's Congressional election in the Fourteenth Massachusetts District, which resulted in a Democratic sweep, are in a state of mind to-night fairly bordering on panic. They now admit that the reason for the great Democratic vote was dissatisfaction with the Republican Party generally and especially with the tariff and the high cost of living, and that the vote on Tuesday was a genuine indication of the sentiment all over that part of the country.

The situation in New England is such that one prominent New Englander confessed to-day to a fear that New Hampshire would elect a Democratic Governor next Fall. If he had prophesied the fall of the heavens he could not more clearly have betrayed his agitation.

This fear is similar to the feeling of a number of other New Englanders with regard to the approaching Congressional elections. Some of them have admitted to-day that in all probability other New England districts as solidly Republican heretofore as the Fourteenth Massachusetts will return Democrats in November.

One of the best-informed New England Republicans in Congress, himself a Massachusetts man, said to-day he expected Mr. Foss to run for the Governorship of Massachusetts next Fall and to be elected.

FALLS FROM ROOF AT CIRCUS OPENING

Down Comes a Daring Trapezist, Unnerving Fellow Performers for Just a Moment.

THREE MORE FELL INSTANTLY

The Clowns Quickly Switched on and the Performance Went as Usual—Acrobat Thrall Breaks Both Wrists.

What nerve means in the circus was seen in Madison Square Garden last night at the opening performance of the Barnum & Bailey show. It was an exhibition of the perils of the business, and the state of mind necessary in the performers that few who saw it will forget.

The Garden was comfortably filled. The performance had just got under way when Charles Thrall of the Troupe Lamar, who was swinging in midair from a trapeze at the extreme western end of the Garden, just opposite the main entrance, fell.

Thrall was revolving with the bar of the trapeze as the axis, his feet clamped to the bar by some sort of mechanical contrivance. It was a thrilling act, and the audience cheered as the rigid figure of the performer shot round and round with ever inceasing speed. Just opposite him on another trapeze a little woman in green tights was doing a similar turn.

Thrall had revolved perhaps twenty times, and every eye was focused on him when suddenly his body left the trapeze, shot up into the air, and then, turning, fell a limp mass on the tan bark beneath and lay there motionless.

In a moment the arena men were at the side of the injured performer. Picking him up gently, they carried him to the main entrance and then into the coat room, where he was laid on blankets to await the coming of the doctors.

The performer soon regained consciousness and suffered great pain. He said he believed that it was in his arms that he was hurt most. The doctor's examination showed that Thrall had fractured both wrists, besides sustaining possible internal injuries. He was taken to New York Hospital.

The accident happened in full view of a score or more acrobats and trapezists, most of whom were in the air in other parts of the Garden while Thrall lay limp on the ground. Two girls, in white tights, who were performing on a trapeze near the middle of the Garden, hesitated a moment in their gyrations, and then to the horror of the audience came tumbling down through the air to a wooden platform under the trapezes on which they were at work. They were two of the Noblis Sisters, billed as doing a "graceful triple trapeze act."

They fell about twenty feet, striking the plank flooring, and they, too lay there still for a moment. Then one of the sisters got on her feet, and, aided by several of the arena men, limped out of the arena. The audience heaved a sigh of relief that she was apparently so slightly injured. The other sister also revived quickly, but had to be carried out of the arena. It was said afterwards that neither of the women was badly hurt, and a representative of the circus declared that both later appeared in one of the aerial acts.

But this did not end it. The Noblis sisters had no more than struck the arena floor than in the western end of the arena a man performer fell. Fortunately there was a net under him, and it broke the fall, although it gave way and let the performer drop to the ground.

The accidents occurred in Display No. 4, which was on the programme as "A Series of Extraordinary Midair Performances." Among the other performers in this act were Codona, the Mexican, who catches a flying trapeze by his toes and heels, high in the air; the aerial contortionists known as the Great Devirnes, the high dome fliers billed as the "Two Adacs," Mlle. Fisher, the revolving high air performer, and Herbert, "the Aerial Frogman."

The accident to Thiall and the Noblis sisters ended the act immediately. The performers who were in the air scurried down the ropes to the arena, and then donning their robes ran out of the arena, each with the question on his or her lips as to how badly hurt were the other performers.

The first accident had temporarily unnerved the rest. But immediately came relief. A quick switch in the programme brought out clowns with funny tricks, acrobats on the floor, and the circus was running as usual again. The new performers by their own daring and the clowns with their funny antics made the spectators temporarily forget what had just happened.

The circus, you see, had to go on. A little further on the programme came another aerial act and it went just as if nothing at all had happened.

As for the circus itself it was the same big and wonderful thing that has for so many years delighted old and young New York. It began, as usual, with a gorgeous parade, in which everybody participated, and in which this year were depicted warriors of all the ages since the days of the Romans. Then came the latest things in horsemanship, acrobatics, trapeze performances and feats by trained animals.

A feature of the show was a great van loaded with the stuffed carcasses of lions, hippopotamuses, giraffes, zebras, and the skins of snakes, &c., which was driven around the arena, the driver dressed in the khaki uniform of a Colonel of the United States Army and wearing a well-known smile, set off with extra large teeth. The sign "The Return from Africa" indicated what the burlesque depicted. After the wagon came a fake baby elephant ridden by "Kermit," and then a clown, dragging after him a little dog incased in something that made him look like a lizard. The clown announced that this was "the only animal Teddy left alive in Africa."

FIRE MAKES 2,000 HOMELESS.

West Virginia Town Practically Wiped Out—Militia Sends Tents.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 24.—With practically every home in the prosperous mountain village of Mount Hope destroyed by a fire which swept that place to-day at least 2,000 persons are homeless to-night sleeping on the commons. Conditions which followed the conflagration that devastated the little town to-night are much worse than early reports to-day indicated.

Upon the arrival to-night of the special train bearing the National Guard tents were distributed and an effort is being made to house as many as possible. Many of the families lost all of their household effects.

Jersey Votes $500,000 for Hudson Drive

TRENTON, N. J., March 24.—The Wakelee bill, appropriating $500,000 for the Henry Hudson drive along the Hudson River, $100,000 to be spent each year until the project is done, was passed by the Senate to-day.

SAYS COOK'S MONEY IS GONE.

Letter Said to be from His Wife Reports Him on Way to New Orleans.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 24.—A letter received here to-day from Colon declares that Dr. Frederick A. Cook is on his way to New Orleans via Panama, from South America, with New York as his objective. Full details of Dr. Cook's plans are not given. From an apparently reliable source, however, it was learned that Dr. Cook will travel under an assumed name.

The letter, dated several days ago, states that at the time of writing the explorer was preparing to leave Colon. Of two boats which left Colon at about the time the letter was written, one will arrive to-morrow and the other is due on Monday.

The letter is said to be from Dr. Cook's wife and to contain an appeal for aid to a former friend of the Brooklyn man. According to reports Dr. Cook's gains from his New York lectures have been spent, and he and his wife are now practically penniless. Since his exposure, Dr. Cook, according to this letter, has been in a condition bordering on nervous prostration.

WARM WEATHER IN CLEVELAND

Government Thermometer at 86 in Hottest March Day Ever Recorded.

CLEVELAND, March 24.—To-day was the warmest day in March ever recorded in Northern Ohio.

The maximum was 83 degrees at 3 o'clock this afternoon, and 86 degrees by the Government street-level thermometer.

POSSE KILLS BLACK HANDER.

Colorado Sheriff Draws Blackmailers Into a Trap—One Escapes.

PUEBLO, Col., March 24.—A Black Hand worker was shot through the heart and killed in a fight to-day with a posse headed by Under Sheriff Warren Hill. A companion escaped on a horse, but is believed to have been wounded.

Following threats, Tony Santuso placed $2,000 at a point several miles beyond the city limits. When two men late to-day were taking the money the Sheriff's posse ordered them to throw up their hands. They refused and opened fire. The volley was returned, and one of the Black Hand men fell dead.

WHITE HOUSE TENNIS AGAIN.

Jusserand and Winthrop in Singles—Pinchot and Garfield Missing.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—The new tennis court at the White House was the scene to-day of a partial reunion of the famous old "tennis cabinet" of the Roosevelt Administration. Ambassador Jusserand of France and Beekman Winthrop, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, met in a fast game of singles.

The weather was that of midsummer. Gifford Pinchot and "Jimmie" Garfield of the old tennis set are not expected to use the court this year.

ARMOUR REGRETS DEAR MEAT.

Says Packers Make More When Meat Is Low—Hopes for Reductions.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Neb., March 24.—The people of the entire country have the sympathy of J. Ogden Armour, President of the Armour Packing Company, in the trouble they are having to secure meat at living prices.

Mr. Armour, who is in Omaha on a trip of inspection of his packing plants, says:

"I am awfully sorry to see the people compelled to pay these big prices. It's too bad. I am sorry for the packers, too, for we cannot make as much money when meats are high as we can when they are low. The profits are nothing like as great in time of high prices. But I can see no reduction in price until the new crop of animals reaches the markets. I am in hopes that we will then see a material reduction in prices."

LABOR OPPOSES A. L. SMITH.

Ohio Railroad Men File Protest Against His Appointment by Taft.

CLEVELAND, O., March 24.—The organized railroad men of Ohio, about 25,000 in number, sent a telegram to President Taft to-day protesting against the suggested appointment of Alexander L. Smith, of Toledo, as federal judge for the Northern District of the State.

The telegram was signed by M. J. Murphy, chairman of the Ohio State Legislative Board and declared that the protest was not made in the interest of any other candidate. Mr. Murphy also stated that the reason of the opposition was that Mr. Smith was a corporation lawyer and had shown himself unfriendly to organized labor.

A particular grievance quoted by Mr. Murphy is a decision by Judge Smith, fifteen years ago in favor of the Ann Arbor railroad against striking engineers. One engineer was sent to jail at the time for refusing to testify.

KRACKE AT WHITE HOUSE.

Brooklyn Politicians Think Visit Portends Open War on Woodruff.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—William Loeb, Jr., Collector of the Port; Secretary Root, and Naval Officer F. J. Kracke of New York met at the White House this afternoon for an extended conference on New York State affairs. The President offered them the use of the Cabinet Room for their meeting. He went for an automobile ride during their deliberations, and said he did not expect to see any of the conferrees, al of whom proved uncommunicative.

Brooklyn Republicans were intensely interested late yesterday in the news that F. J. Kracke, Naval Officer of the Port, had engaged in a political conference with Senator Root and Collector Loeb at the White House in Washington. They interpreted it as preliminary to a real fight by the Taft-Root-Hughes forces to depose Timothy L. Woodruff from the State Chairmanship by attempting to wrest from him the control of the Kings County organization.

Mr. Kracke practically gave notice on Saturday of his intention to break with Mr. Woodruff when he issued a statement in which he said:

> Coming to the matter frankly, I am aware that the wisdom of Mr. Woodruff's continuance as leader is just now being widely discussed. It occurs to me to say that my attitude toward his leadership should be, and will be, determined by the prevalent sentiment of the Eighteenth Assembly District. My personal liking for Mr. Woodruff will emphatically not lead me to oppose whatever different kind of leadership the people of our Assembly district desire.

Mr. Kracke, it was pointed out, has bene rising in power in Kings for the last four or five years, and has a very strong personal following. He was renamed by President Taft for a second term as Naval Officer of the Port. He also had his secretary, Mr. Voorhies, appointed Postmaster of Brooklyn. He has been looked upon by men high in organization affairs as a man of great strength and ability.

INSURANCE BILLS GUIDED TO DEATH

"Not Difficult," Wrote Lobbyist Buckley to Sheldon, "to Tie Matter Up in Committee."

NEXT REPORTED IT 'ARRANGED'

Unearned Pension Bill "Held Up," Unearned Liability Bill Stayed in Committee.

BUCKLEY NOW FORGETS ALL

No Insurance Legislation in 1903 as Steersman Foretold—Brackett, Dawson, and Other Bills Killed.

LETTERS OF A LOBBYIST.

I note that the Court of Appeals has decided a franchise tax law constitutional. I wish I could have got on to that early enough, for I am satisfied that this is one of the things which have been hanging over the market, and if I had learned previously what the decision was likely to be, there would have been money in this for us all. Whenever anything like this is happening at Albany it will always pay you to advise me if you can of the probable outcome.—Letter of George P. Sheldon, President of the Phenix Fire Insurance Company, to William H. Buckley, his legislative lawyer, April 29, 1903.

I am sorry that I did not know that it would be of any interest to you to have information about the special franchise decision. I told some of our friends two weeks ago what it would be, but I was advised from very important quarters that so long as the decision would be constitutional, it would not have much effect upon the market and, therefore, did not think it advisable to say much about it. If it had been the other way, however, you would have been advised, although I was pledged to secrecy, because I knew your interest in "big gas." In the future I will have in mind what you told me, and you can rest assured no one can get ahead of us in these matters.—Letter of William H. Buckley to George P. Sheldon, April 30, 1903.

These two extracts from the letters of a lobbyist, coupled with the assertion in another epistle that he had made arrangements with the Committee on Rules of the Senate to block the passage of legislation, were typical statements made by William H. Buckley in correspondence which Supt. William H. Hotchkiss of the State Insurance Department produced at yesterday's session of the inquiry into the legislative graft distributed by the fire insurance interests at Albany. They were accompanied by the charge of Miles Menander Dawson, that in 1905, when Dawson was before the Legislature favonrig the passage of a bill affecting life insurance reserves, Buckley met him in the lobby of the Senate Chamber and suggested that the bill could not pass unless money was provided for "the boys" beforehand.

"He said," declared Mr. Dawson, "that I was getting liberal compensation for what I did, and that inasmuch as they would have to do more work than I if the bill was passed, I ought to divide my retainer."

Part Played by E. E. McCall.

Buckley, put on the stand immediately afterward, admitted the conversation with Mr. Dawson up to the point of mentioning money in connection with the transaction. There he entered his denial and so the incident closed.

Yesterday's session produced evidence in the morning which threw more light on the part that Edward E. McCall, now a Supreme Court Justice, played in handling loans of Buckley's with the Phenix Fire Insurance Company while Buckley was still an employe of the State Insurance Department. This evidence moved Supt. Hotchkiss to say referring to a published interview with Justice McCall:

"I resent very seriously what Justice McCall said in the newspapers. There is no sensationalism in this proceeding, and this transaction looks to me as though he assisted you [Buckley] in deceiving the State Insurance Department as to the handling of these loans over the 1st of January."

The story of the day was made up largely of Buckley's comments or refusals to comment on the letters contained in the Sheldon correspondence, save in two details of his testimony he exhibited even a more utter lack of memory than was apparent in his first appearance on the witness stand the day before. One of these lapses came when Mr. Dawson had told his story on the witness stand. Buckley remembered all about meeting the actuary on that day during the legislative session of 1905 and even recalled that immediately after their conversation he, Buckley, had gone into a telephone booth to call his office. The other occurred in connection with the E. E. McCall transaction. Buckley, with respect to that matter, although it antedated any of the legislative questions, had the details fairly well fixed in his mind.

Supt. Hotchkiss approached his day's task by taking letters of Buckley and Sheldon, those of Buckley's having been found in Sheldon's desk after the insurance department took possession of the Phenix, and those of Sheldon in Sheldon's copy books at the same time, and considering them chronologically until the close of the legislative session of 1903. The data began with the year 1900, and Buckley volunteered this explanation of the year-end transfer of his loan with the Phenix Insurance Company.

"I had a loan," he said, "with the North American Trust Company and I asked Mr. Sheldon to take it up. He did not want to do it directly, and so I asked Judge McCall to do it. He did it and transferred it to Sheldon."

The Checks from Mr. McCall.

This loan was for $13,000 and was part of $61,000 that Buckley borrowed from the Phenix, all told. Checks were introduced in evidence bearing the name of Edward E. McCall in the one case as payee and in the other as indorser, and there was one of these checks on which Mr. McCall had indorsed Buckley's name. In explanation of the year-end transaction, in which part of the Buckley loans were taken out of the Phenix over the 1st of January, the following letter written to Buckley by Sheldon was read in evidence from the latter's copy boks.

Dec. 13, 1900.

William R. Buckley, Esq., Insurance Department, Albany, N. Y.

My Dear Mr. Buckley: Your letter came duly to hand and I wired you very soon after its receipt that the matter you referred to in the North American Trust Company we would care for in some way, telling you also that I would write you to-day.

There appears to be ample margin on your loan in that trust company and I am surprised that they should insist on your taking it up. The only thing that embarrasses me at all in the matter is relieved by your letter when you say that you will have the North American Trust Company in the loan we now have sold within a short time. I do not as a general thing carry any demand loans in our statement, and if it can be arranged it may be I shall take your loan out the first of the year when we close our books, and we take it again after the books are again opened; but this is a matter of detail.

I write you now to see if you can suggest any way whereby the trust company loan can be taken up outside and then placing the loan with us and getting a check the same day. It would be better for all interests if it could be done in this way instead of having the loan sent from the trust company to us. Let me hear from you, please, to-morrow, on this subject, and oblige. Yours very truly,

GEORGE P. SHELDON, President.

It was after reading this letter in evidence that Supt. Hotchkiss made the statement, already quoted, expressing his feeling as to Judge McCall's part in the transaction. He added that if Justice McCall would clear up the suspicion resting upon him as to becoming a part of a plan to deceive the Insurance Department he would just as quickly make amends. Buckley had no explanation to make of the letter except to assert that the loan was in no way Justice McCall's loan and that the Justice did what he did purely as a personal favor.

Sheldon, however, appeared to be worried, and on Dec. 19 wrote this letter:

Dec. 19, 1900.

Personal.

Dear Mr. Buckley: Your letter came duly to hand, and not hearing from Mr. McCall on Monday about the matter, I called him up on Tuesday on the telephone and from what he said I thought he would have time to attend to it yesterday. Up to the present time we have heard nothing from him, but assume that he has been so busy connected with work at the close of the year that he has not found time to come down town personally to attend to the matter. I assume that everything is all right, and that you do not suffer at all by the delay, as he knows that we are ready at any time to take up the loan.

Very truly yours,
GEO. P. SHELDON, President.
William R. Buckley, Esq., Insurance Department, Albany, N. Y.

Buckley's Memory Fails Again.

Buckley undertook to explain that the part played by Mr. McCall had no more significance than that the collateral against the loan was being transferred. Whereupon Mr. Hotchkiss pointed out that the loan was not taken on again by the Phenix until Jan. 29, 1901, and asked the witness whether it took twenty-nine days to change collateral standing against the loan. Buckley had to fall back on his general lack of memory once more at this point

Then Mr. Hotchkiss took up a new lead and asked the witness whose stock in the International Banking and Trust Company it was which had been originally pledged as collateral for the loan on Feb. 19, 1900.

"Mine," said Buckley.

"Where did you get it?" asked Mr. Hotchkiss.

"From the company," said Buckley.

"Directly or indirectly?" demanded the Superintendent.

"I do not remember, but I know that I bought and paid for it," said Buckley.

"When was that company chartered?" demanded Mr. Hotchkiss.

Buckley said he did not recall.

"Did it have any difficulty in getting a charter?" asked the Superintendent.

"I don't remember," said Buckley.

It is understood that Mr. Hotchkiss is much interested in this phase of the Buckley situation on account of information that has reached him concerning the circumstances surrounding the formation of the International Banking and Trust Company, which later became the North American Trust Company, and now is merged with several other institutions into The Trust Company of America. Yesterday, however, he let that particular subject stand as it was and asked Buckley where he got the other stocks that were pledged against his loans in the Phenix Fire Insurance Company.

"I bought them," said Buckley.

"What was your salary in the Insurance Department?" asked Mr. Hotchkiss.

"You can find that out for yourself," retorted the witness.

"Was it more than $3,000?" asked Mr. Hotchkiss.

"Yes, it was $4,500," said Buckley.

"Well," remarked Mr. Hotchkiss, "even at that, it makes me curious to see a man who held such a position own so much stock.

"You were in a position of influence in the Insurance Department," Mr. Hotchkiss continued, "when you made this loan?"

"No," said Buckley. "I was about to leave it."

"Did you give notes upon all of these loans in the Phenix?" asked the Superintendent.

Metropolitan Also Hired Buckley.

Buckley said that he did, whereupon Mr. Hotchkiss exhibited a letter written by Sheldon on March 15, 1904, in which Sheldon said, following the suicide of the former Secretary of the Phenix Company, that the Secretary had neglected to take notes on the Buckley loans and asked that such notes be given. Buckley remarked that this proved that he gave notes for his loans

The State Superintendent then turned to affairs at Albany and got Buckley to say that he had a retainer from the Metropolitan Life in addition to those which he had previously told about, but, reverting for a moment to 1901, Mr. Hotchkiss produced a letter written by Sheldon on Feb. 27 of that year, showing the transfer of stock to A. M. Kidder & Co. for Buckley's account. Buckley was then still in the Insurance Department.

"Was Sheldon your financial agent?" demanded Mr. Hotchkiss.

"No," said Buckley.

"Was his company your financial agent?" was the next question.

Still Buckley answered in the negative, and when Supt. Hotchkiss called his attention to Section 2 of the insurance law, which provides that neither the Superintendent nor any deputy shall be interested, directly or indirectly, in any insurance corporation, except as a policy holder, Buckley said that he did not think this section applied to his case.

After some general denials that he had ever done anything in connection with legislation while he was still in the Insurance Department, unless he was specifically instructed by the Superintendent, Mr. Hotchkiss asked Buckley if he had ever had anything to do subsequently with the make-up of the committees in the Senate and Assembly. Buckley said he couldn't remember.

"If I should show you that you did, you would admit it, wouldn't you?" remarked the Superintendent.

"I don't know whether I would or not," said Buckley.

"Who makes up the Assembly committees?" demanded Mr. Hotchkiss.

"The Speaker," said Buckley.

"And who makes up the Senate committees?"

"Either the Lieutenant Governor or the President pro tem.," said Buckley.

"Do you remember," asked Mr. Hotchkiss, "having anything to do with the appointment of the Insurance Committee in 1902?"

Buckley said he did not remember.

Then Mr. Hotchkiss showed him this letter, taken from Sheldon's letter book:

Reilley Favored for a Committee.

Dec. 20, 1901.

My Dear Mr. Buckley: Yours of yesterday is at hand, and I can safely say that I will stand sponsor for Mr. Reilley if he can be landed upon the Insurance Committee. He is connected with a man in my office here, and I not only get the proper assurance from him, but, also, from Mr. Reilley himself. If there is anything you want to have me do, just let me know. I ran across Mr. Hunter this morning and the subject of the committee came up, and I referred to it and he said he was going to meet Mr. Dunn, Chairman of the State Committee, before 12 o'clock, and would mention the matter. I let you know this in order that you may be posted on the entire situation.

The inclosure was found in your letter to me. I assume that it was intended for somebody else. Very truly yours,

GEO. P. SHELDON, President.
William E. Buckley, Esq., 95 State Street, Albany, N. Y.

After Buckley had denied that he remembered anything about the Reilley incident, Mr. Hotchkiss remarked:

"I thought that the Speaker of the Assembly made up the Assembly committees and that either the Lieutenant Governor or the President pro tem. of the Senate made up the Senate committees."

"They do," said Buckley.

"But this mention of Col. Dunn—what did he have to do with it?"

"I don't know," as usual.

"Who is Mr. Hunter, who is mentioned here?"

"I don't know," said Buckley.

"Doesn't that letter refresh your recollection?" asked the Superintendent. The witness said it did not.

Hunter an Insurance Deputy.

"Don't you know that Mr. Hunter was First Deputy Superintendent of Insurance?" asked Mr. Hotchkiss, and Buckley said he did, but he did not recall how many times he wrote to Mr. Sheldon on this subject. This rather roiled the Superintendent, and he demanded:

"Are you waiting again to find out what I know before you answer?"

Buckley declined to say.

Then there came along a letter on Buckley's stationery, dated Feb. 2, 1903, and written to Sheldon, asking a retainer from the New York Board of Fire Underwriters. This letter made explicit reference to "strikes," concerning which Buckley on the day before had expressed dense ignorance. This is the letter:

95 State Street, Albany, N. Y.,
Feb. 2, 1903.

Dear Mr. President: The fire insurance interest, like every other interest, is bothered from year to year, as you know, by the introduction of bills under the guise of relieving the so-called burdens of policy holders, and are in fact "strikes." I know that the Legislative Committee of the New York Board of Fire Underwriters, while they naturally feel very confident that these bills will fail of passage, because of ridiculousness, still they have been obliged to send a committee here to appear before hearings, as well as employ expensive counsel.

I feel sure that, if the board should employ me at a stated retainer to look after their matters, they would be less bothered and at a much less expense. I wish, if you have an opportunity, you would make this suggestion to them. I feel perfectly confident that if given the retainer I can produce satisfactory results.

With very best wishes, believe me, sincerely yours,

WM. H. BUCKLEY.
George P. Sheldon, Esq., President Phenix Insurance Company, P. O. Box 1,010, New York City.

Buckley had no memory whatever about this occurrence, nor was his memory any better as to a letter which he wrote on Feb. 9 concerning a bill introduced by Controller Grout of this city which, as it later turned out, sought to have repealed the bill that the companies themselves had passed in 1901, modifying a decision of the Court of Appeals on the subject of taxing unearned premiums. Buckley's usual lack of knowledge was in evidence, and he did not even remember what he meant by the phrase contained in this letter and referring to the bill of 1901:

"As I was instrumental in a certain degree in passing the same."

He declared he had no idea whether this was the bill on which E. P. Kennedy spent $13,000 on behalf of the fire insurance interests, nor was his memory refreshed when Mr. Hotchkiss showed him President Sheldon's letter of Feb. 10 in answer to his own letter of Feb. 9. This letter reads:

Feb. 10, 1903.

My Dear Buckley: Your two favors of Feb. 2 and 9 are both at hand.

With reference to the first, I had already taken steps to confer with the Committee on Laws of the New York Board of Underwriters with reference to their being represented at Albany. As you say, many of the bills that are introduced there are strikes, and could be staved off by a little work with the committee. Sometimes a serious matter comes up, such as is referred to in your letter of the 9th inst., with reference to taxing our unearned premium fund.

I think it was but three years ago that we secured legislation at Albany which relieved us from any question whatever in making our statement here in New York or elsewhere as to any liability by reason of the investments which constituted this fund. Up to that time we had gone alone on a general theory that it was a liability and should be treated as other debts were, but since that time the Assessors have given us no trouble, and everything has gone along smoothly.

As I understand this last bill, which you say was introduced by Controller Grout, it would put us back where we were before, and with this renewed legislation would make the contention of the Board of Assessors have a strong one. With reference to this particular act, I will try to have myself appointed a member of the sub-committee of the Committee of Laws and communicate with you again. Meanwhile you may send me, either from the records of the Insurance Department or elsewhere, the amendment to the law which we had passed to treat this fund as a liability, and also make me any suggestions that occur to you as to defeating this bill. Everything will be treated confidentially, and I think I can so arrange it as to have you represent us.

Yours very truly,
GEO. P. SHELDON, President.
William H. Buckley, Esq., Albany, N. Y.

His Memory Not Refreshed.

This letter of Sheldon's, Buckley said, did not refresh his memory at all, and he was no better off when Mr. Hotchkiss showed him this letter written the following day from Albany:

Law Office of
WILLIAM H. BUCKLEY,
95 State St.
New York Office:
New York Life Building,
346 Broadway, N. Y.
Albany, N. Y., Feb. 11, 1903.

Dear Mr. President: In reply to your esteemed letter of yesterday's date, I hand you herewith copy of Chapter 618, Laws of 1901, which was a law passed exempting the unearned premiums of fire and casualty companies from taxation, in other words, making the unearned a liability, as it properly is and not subject to taxation by the local authorities. The McKeown bill seeks to repeal this and would put you "up against" the assessors, as you were previous to the enactment of Chapter 618, Laws of 1901.

It would not be a difficult matter to tie the bill up in the committee, if action were taken at once. Were it not for the fact that Controller Grout, backed by the local authorities, was urging its passage, I would not think it advisable to pay any attention all times looking after his measures, and also has the "press" with him, so you see he should be offset. Have arranged upon my own responsibility that no action be taken this week.

I shall be in New York Friday, and, if you desire me to call, will be glad to do so.

Very sincerely yours,
WM. H. BUCKLEY.
Geo. P. Sheldon, Esq., President Phenix Insurance Company.

"How were you going to tie up the committee?" demanded Mr. Hotchkiss.

"I decline to make any explanation," said Buckley, "beyond the letter itself."

"How do you tie things up at Albany?" pressed Mr. Hotchkiss.

"I decline to answer," said Buckley, defiantly.

"Why?" asked the Superintendent once more.

"Because," said Buckley, "I have already gone through all this with you at Albany."

"You never saw that letter before except to identify the signature," said Mr. Hotchkiss.

"Well," repeated Buckley, "I won't discuss it."

"I am not discussing it," said the Superintendent, "I am asking questions about it."

"Well," said Buckley, "I won't discuss it anyway."

Buckley Declines to Answer.

The next letter of the series was one which Buckley wrote to Sheldon, making an appointment in New York, and remarking that he always preferred to be in Albany from Monday to Thursday. Mr. Hotchkiss wanted to know the reason for this preference.

"Because I live there," said Buckley.

"What time does the Legislature go into session on Monday night?" was the next question.

"You know that as well as I do," retorted Buckley.

"Doesn't it practically adjourn on Thursday?"

"Yes," said Buckley.

"Well," said the Superintendent, "isn't that the reason that you prefer to be in Albany from Monday until Thursday?"

"I decline to answer."

Next Mr. Hotchkiss came along with a letter from Buckley in which the lobby lawyer said that he had made arrangements to "hold up" the unearned premium bill.

"Was that the Grout bill," asked the Superintendent.

"I don't know," said Buckley.

"How did you arrange to hold it up?"

"I don't recall," said Buckley.

"Well," demanded Mr. Hotchkiss, "in general how do you arrange to hold up legislation?"

An objection was put in here by Buckley's counsel, and the witness refused to answer. Mr. Hotchkiss said that he was willing to let the records stand if Buckley was.

The next letter was one to Sheldon, dated February 25, 1903, in which Buckley wrote:

"Acting under the retainer given me yesterday, I have arranged that the unearned liability bill remain in the committee to which it was referred. The completion of my work in this matter will only expire when the Legislature adjouns sine die; in the meantime you and the committee can rest assured that the bill is dead. The insurance committee of both Senate and Assembly met this afternoon and adjourned for a week without reporting any bills affecting your interests."

Letter Means Nothing, He Says.

When Buckley was pressed as to the significance of the letter from which this quotation was taken, he said that it didn't mean anything at all. Mr. Hotchkiss asked him what his retainer was, and Buckley said it was $3,500 to $4,500.

"Didn't you get $12,000 that year?" asked Mr. Hotchkiss.

"I did not," said Buckley.

"The books of the Phenix shown that Sheldon drew $6,000 just about the time that your retainer was paid. Did you get that?"

"No," said Buckley, "I did not, and whatever I got I got by check, and the record is open to you."

"If I say to you," said the Superintendent, "that we have a record of the payment to you of more than $12,000 in that particular year, would you deny it?"

"I do not recall any more than I have said," declared Buckley.

"Now, who were you working for that year?" asked Mr. Hotchkiss.

"Mr. Sheldon," said Buckley.

"Then why did you say the committee?" demanded the Superintendent.

"I don't know," Buckley replied.

Next came two letters, one of Sheldon to Buckley on March 3, and the other from Buckley to Sheldon on March 4, in which the former requested that nothing be done at a certain hearing on insurance bills and the latter sent the obliging information that he had attended to the matter so that nothing was done.

"You attended a meeting of the committee?" asked Mr. Hotchkiss.

"It looks that way," said Buckley.

Then came a letter of March 9, which referred to an interesting fight that Senator Brackett of Saratoga was making in connection with certain insurance matters in that particular session of the Legislature. Brackett, it appeared, had two measures up, one of which was a resolution calling for an investigation of the rates charged by fire insurance companies; the other was an amendment to the Donnelly Anti-Trust act, relating to combinations between fire insurance companies with respect to the fixing of rates.

Busy on Another Retainer.

This latter measure, as it appeared in the evidence yesterday, savored strongly of the Anti-Compact bill which the fire insurance companies have fought from time to time. In the same letter in which Buckley told about the Brackett bill he suggested to Sheldon that the latter might get him a retainer from the New York Boar dof Fire Underwriters.

This apparently was done and Buckley got very busy in connection with a number of matters in which the fire insurance companies were interested, for on March 23 he wrote to Sheldon:

"Upon arrival of Gen. Fields to-night, we got to work and the consequence is that the Sulzberger bill was recommitted to the committee to remain. The Bailey bill will stay in the Assembly Committee. Senator McClelland's bills were recommitted to the Senate Committee, there to remain. Senator Brackett introduced a resolution to-night calling upon the Attorney General to investigate rates charged by fire insurance companies. The resolution will be discussed in the Senate to-morrow and at this time I cannot predict whether it will pass or not."

"Who is Gen. Fields?" demanded Mr. Hotchkiss, whereupon Buckley's counsel advised him not to answer.

"Was he Andy Fields?" pressed the superintendent, and another objection was registered.

"Are you going to take that advice, Mr. Buckley?" the superintendent asked.

"Yes," said the witness.

"At any rate, you and he got busy that night."

"I don't recall," said Buckley, and he declared further that he remembered nothing about any of the activities of Senator Brackett in the Legislature of 1903. Apparently, however, Buckley remembered a good deal more about the Brackett bill at the time it was up, for on April 8 he wrote this to Sheldon:

The Senate Committee on Judiciary after a hearing to-day decided again to report Brackett's bill. It was agreed that there would be no fight made in the committee, and you can rest assured that the bill will not be allowed to progress. Referring to our Unearned Liability bill, I agreed to-night to allow it to be reported favorably in the Senate, and it will probably pass that House, but give yourself no concern about it as arrangements have been made with the Committee on Rules to block its passage, and this programme has been agreed upon as most satisfactory. There is no reason whatever for you to have any concern about matters here in any particular.

Only Figures of Speech.

Mr. Hotchkiss pressed the witness to say how he had made arrangements with the Committee on Rules to secure the passage of the bill, and the best that Buckley could reply was that this reference in the letter was merely a "figure of speech."

The Superintendent jumped ahead a little now and showed Buckley a letter which he wrote to Sheldon on June 6, 1903, relative to getting a man named John Walls reinstated on the fire patrol, which the New York Fire Underwriters' Exchange supervises. Walls, it appears, was a protégé or constituent of the late George Washington Plunkett, then Senator, and Buckley remarked that Plunkett was "one of our good friends in the Senate and one of the gentlemen to whom we can go at any time and who will do anything in his power for us." Buckley refused to say what he meant by this letter or to answer any questions except that his acquaintance with Plunkett dated from the time when he was Plunkett's messenger in the Senate.

There was a letter to Sheldon as late as Feb. 15, 1909, in which it was remarked that Senator Grady was interested in getting a young woman a license as a fire insurance broker. Buckley said that in writing this letter he was merely doing a favor for his friend Grady and the subject was dropped. Mr. Hotchkiss now reverted to the letter of April 8, over which even Buckley had been obliged to laugh when it was read in evidence.

"What was it up there?" demanded the Superintendent. "A little game of battledore and shuttlecock?"

"I don't know what you mean," said Buckley, and he made similar answers to all questions addressed to this letter.

"Who was running the Senate and Assembly at that time?" asked Mr. Hotchkiss, "William H. Buckley?"

The witness declined to answer, whereupon the Superintendent repeated the sentence, "There is no reason for you to have any concern in any particular."

The Brackett Bills Killed.

"I am serious about it," said Mr. Hotchkiss, "what did you mean by those things?" but still Buckley declined to explain.

Other letters were put in running through April, telling how the Senate by a large vote defeated Senator Brackett's measures, which Buckley commented on by saying: "I don't think we'll hear more from that gentleman this year."

[illegible], Brackett was heard from again, and what's more, the Senate sat on him, so Buckley wrote on April 16:

"Brackett feels so chagrined at his terrible defeat that he will probably try to give us trouble to the end of the session."

"So Brackett was game," remarked Mr. Hotchkiss.

"Brackett is always game," replied Mr. Buckley.

On April 23 Buckley wrote a letter saying that the Legislature had adjourned without passing anything that in any way concerned the fire insurance interests and inclosing a bill for $4,500.

In reply, Mr. Sheldon wrote the letter of which an extract was given at the beginning, and Buckley wrote his reply to this from which quotation has already been made. Sheldon had already sent Buckley $3,000, which he had obtained from President Evans of the Continental Insurance Company, and he inclosed in this final letter of the series of 1903 a check for $1,500 in satisfaction of the balance of Buckley's bill.

Here are the two letters in question:

Ending the Game of 1903.

Sheldon to Buckley, April 29, 1903.

Inclosed pleased find my check for $1,500, which together with the other check that I sent you on Monday makes up the amount of the inclosed bill. Kindly receipt the same and return. I note that the Court of Apepals has decided a franchise tax law constitutional. I wish that I could have got on to that early enough, for I am satisfied that this is one of the things that has been hanging over the market, and if I could have learned previously what the decision was likely to be there would have been money in this for us all. Whenever anything like this is pending at Albany it will always pay you to advise me if you can of the probable outcome.

Buckley to Sheldon, April 30, 1903.

I have yours of yesterday's date inclosing check for $1,500, which together with the other sent me on Monday makes a total of $4,500, for which I thank you and inclose receipted bill for same. I am sorry that I did not know that it would be of any interest to you to have information about the special franchise decision. I told some of our friends two weeks ago what it would be, but I was advised from very important quarters that as long as the decision would be constitutional it would not have much effect on the market, and, therefore, did not think it advisable to say much about it. If it had been the other way, however, you would have been advised although I was pledged to secrecy, because I knew your interest in "Big Gas." In the future I will have in mind what you told me, and you can rest assured no one can get ahead of us in such matters.

"This is what you called 'hot air' when I examined you in Albany?" asked Mr. Hotchkiss.

"Certainly," said Buckley.

"Then you were not on the inside of the Court of Appeals," remarked the Superintendent.

"No," replied the witness.

At this point Mr. Dawson was called and told about his having had introduced on behalf of the Washington Life Insurance Company in the Legislature of 1905 a bill incorporating into the reserve laws of the State the "select and ultimate" principle of calculating reserves on first-year policies, which is now a part of the Armstrong Code. Senator Page introduced the measure in the Senate and Assemblyman Leslie J. Tompkins in the lower house. Mr. Dawson said he had occasion to go to Albany and while in the Senate lobby he met Buckley.

Money Wanted for "the Boys."

"I had known Buckley," he said, "since 1895, when he was Secretary of the Insurance Department. At this time I knew he was representing in Albany the Provident Savings Life Insurance Company, which desired the passage of this bill. He told me that he had been instructed by the Provident Savings Life to assist with regard to this bill, and suggested that the bill could not pass unless some money for the boys was provided beforehand. He said he supposed that I was getting liberal compensation for what I did, and that inasmuch as they would have to do more work than I if the bill was passed, I ought to divide my retainer. I said that I was not there to bribe anybody, and that if the bill could not be passed honestly and in the open I did not want to see it passed, and he said that he did not like to have me speak of it in that way. I replied that that was the way it seemed to me, and that was all there was to it."

"Did the bill pass?" asked Mr. Hotchkiss.

"No," said Mr. Dawson, and then he explained that it got through the Assembly, and died in the Senate.

Buckley was put back on the stand, and admitted his retainer from the Provident Savings Life at the time the Dawson bill was pending. Mr. Hotchkiss asked him if he had anything to add and he said:

"Nothing, except the statement that I never made any suggestion about money. I helped him all I could, and I never mentioned money at any stage of the conversation."

Buckley went on to exhibit a remarkable memory of the circumstances attending this conversation with Mr. Dawson, which, however, did not strike him as being anything unusual when Mr. Hotchkiss called his attention to the contrast between his memory and his entire forgetfulness of the events of 1903.

E. J. Kennedy, who was expected to go on the stand yesterday and tell the names that he has recently remembered of the up-State Republican politicians, who, in addition to George W. Aldridge of Rochester, got part of the $5,000 fire insurance thank offering of 1901, was not called yesterday, owing to the exent of the Buckley testimony. Buckley will be again on the stand when the investigation reconvenes on Monday.

McCALL WON'T COMMENT YET.

"Everything in Its Time and Place," Says the Justice.

Supreme Court Justice McCall declined last night to discuss the latest developments in Supt. Hotchkiss's investigation connecting his name with William H. Buckley and the fire insurance companies.

"It would be the height of impropriety for me to talk about the case at this time," he said to a TIMES reporter at his home, 321 West Eighty-sixth Street.

"Supt. Hotchkiss has expressed a desire to know whether you will become a voluntary witness in the case," was suggested.

"Everything in its time and place," Justice McCall replied. "I do not care even to give an opinion on that point at this time."

Earlier in the day Justice McCall was reported to have told friends that he had never had any edalings with Mr. Sheldon or his company or with any fire insurance company except the Munich, of which he was the counsel for three years.

COURT TO LOOK FOR LEAK.

Following Buckley's Hint That He Knew of Decisions in Advance.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 24.—Concerning the letter read to-day by Superintendent of Insurance Hotchkiss at the fire insurance investigation in New York, in which William H. Buckley of Albany said he was able to learn in advance of a decision of the Court of Appeals, Chief Judge Edgar M. Cullen said to-night:

"I have no recollection of the case to which reference is made. I don't remember whether or not I was a member of the court at that time. I have no reason to suspect that there has been a leak among any of the subordinates of the court, but if the statement is openly made, the court will examine into it and see what foundation there is to it. If there is a leak, and I have no reason to suspect there is, it will be stopped."

EXONERATES STOCKWELL.

He Was Removed as a General Agent When the Company Was Under Fire.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 24.—H. C. Stockdell, former general agent of the Phenix Fire Insurance Company of Brooklyn, with headquarters at Atlanta, who was removed because of an alleged shortage following the revelations involving the company's home office, was to-day completely exonerated by the Phenix officials. In a letter addressed to Mr. Stockdell Major Charles F. Hard, who succeeded Stockdell as general agent, says:

"It affords me pleasure to state that all of your affairs with the Phenix Insurance Company have been settled satisfactorily and in accordance with agreement. I desire to say certain newspaper references to your affairs with the Phenix were, I think, of such a nature as to give an erroneous impression to the public of actual facts. So far as I am informed and believe the officials of the Phenix were not a party in any way to the publication.

"It affords me further pleasure to say that there is nothing in connection with the affairs which reflects in the least upon your personal character and integrity. My connection with you has been very agreeable and you have been frank and above board with me in every particular."

Mr. Stockdell said that the settlement with the Phenix was made in accordance with an agreement which he made with the company in 1907.

$1,000,000 Fire in Hambleton, W. Va.

ELKINS, West Va., March 24.—The Hambleton Tanning Company's plant at Hambleton, one of the largest in the State, was destroyed by fire to-day, with a loss estimated at $1,000,000. The fire started in the rollroom and spread so rapidly that the plant's fire department and volunteers found it useless to fight it. They succeeded, however, in saving near-by buildings. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

NEW CONSCIOUS ANESTHETIC.

Boston Doctor Announces Discovery Along the Lines of Dr. Jannesco.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 24.—Dr. John J. Hurley of Marlborough Street has announced the discovery of a new method of producing conscious anesthesia, both bloodless and painless, in human beings. The most delicate operations, he asserts, may be performed on the brain and any part of the head, the eye, the ear, the nose, and the throat with absolutely no discomfort to the conscious patient.

Dr. Hurley's method, it is said, will be of the greatest use in the cases of patients suffering from diseases that prohibit the use of ether and chloroform, such as consumption and acute lung affections.

The new method consists of an injection of a solution of cocaine adrenalin and salt solution beneath the periosteum, a delicate membrane covering the bones of the body. The adrenalin is a substance made from the so-called supra renal bodies, which are small glandular structures resting upon the kidneys.

Dr. Hurley asserts that his method has proved highly successful.

POULTRYMEN FURNISH BAIL.

Three Dozen of the Indicted Eighty-six Give Bonds for Trial.

The elevators of the Criminal Court Building yesterday were filled with live poultry dealers, there to furnish bail on the monopoly and conspiracy indictments handed down again them on Wednesday. Thirty-six of the eighty-six indicted ones furnished a $1,000 bond each.

James Loucheim of 440 Broadway, Secretary of the Grand Jury which found the indictments, has been the object lately of several facetious thrusts at his part in the anti-monopoly proceedings. From time to time packages containing tiny milk bottles or ancient chickens have been left at the Grand Jury room for him with no hint as to whom he should thank for them.

A Novel Musical Instrument With A Variety of Beautiful Effects

THE Aeolian Orchestrelle is a wonderful example of what can be accomplished in the way of obtaining diversity of musical effects from a single instrument.

Most home musical instruments, like the piano, have but one distinct tone-quality. Musical results are obtained by varying the volume of this tone. Tone coloration—the most beautiful element of musical production—is impossible with them. The

Aeolian Orchestrelle
Possesses Many Different Tone Qualities

The performer on this instrument has the same control of loud and soft effects, as the pianist. He can use any one of the Aeolian Orchestrelle's different tones, just as the violinist or pianist uses his single tone-quality.

Unlike the violinist and pianist, the Aeolian Orchestrelle performer always has at command other tone-qualities. These he blends, manipulates and controls as though he were playing many different instruments at the same time.

The simplest air when played upon the Aeolian Orchestrelle, becomes interesting and beautiful from the tone-coloration this instrument makes possible.

What makes the Aeolian Orchestrelle, so vitally important to the world at large is the fact that

COURT IN UPROAR OVER CHILD.

Wildest Disorder Prevails When Little One Is Given to Father.

When Vice Chancellor Garrison, in Jersey City, yesterday gave Edgar B. Thomassen of 423 Twelfth Street, West New York, the custody of his four-year-old daughter Louise, taking the child from its grandmother, Marie Thomassen of 119 Hague Street, Jersey City, wild disorder followed in the court room. One woman collapsed and two became hysterical when Thomassen carried his daughter away.

Mrs. Thomassen had had the child since it was a day old, when its mother died. Her son married the sister of his first wife.

Mrs. Thomassen said her son had not spent 5 cents on the child since its mother died, and that his second wife had no love for it. But when Thomassen said he was able to support the child Vice Chancellor Garrison stopped the proceedings, pointing out the law to be that if the father is able to provide for his child and is of good character he is entitled to its custody.

Instantly the witnesses and principals were on their feet. Mrs. Thomassen took the child in her arms and cried, "You cannot have her." The child shrieked, the women screamed, and men pushed one another about. In the excitement three women became hysterical, and when Thomas Haggerty, Sergeant-at-Arms of the court, handed the child to the father Mrs. Thomassen collapsed.

are conspicuous, are pouring into Catania to view the spectacle.

Latest reports from Nicolosi to-night say that the lava current is moving at the rate of about 100 feet an hour, and that it has passed over Mount San Leo.

Cardinal Francica Nava, Archbishop of Catania, visited Nicolosi this afternoon. The earth shocks continue.

NAPLES, March 24.—Frank A. Perret of Brooklyn, Assistant Director of the Royal Observatory on Mount Vesuvius, left here to-day for Mount Etna.

RECENT ACTIVITIES OF ETNA.

Threatening During Messina Earthquake—Last Real Eruption in 1907.

Mount Etna last showed considerable activity at the time of the Messina earthquake, though no actual eruption took place. On Dec. 28, 1908, loud detonations were heard, and volumes of smoke rolled out of the crater. A panic arose among the people of Catania, the nearest town to the volcano, but Prof. Ricco, the Director of the Observatory, said that a great eruption was not expected. His views were confirmed by Frank Perret, Assistant Director of the Royal Observatory on Mount Vesuvius, who, after an inspection of Mount Etna on April 30, 1909, reported: "The earthquake at Messina has reduced its activity, and for the time being has taken the energy necessary to create an eruption. Reports that Mount Etna was in eruption are untrue, as there has only been a slight emission of vapors from the crater."

It was on Jan. 9, 1907, that Mount Etna awoke after a period of inactivity since the eruption of 1899. Smoke, ashes, and flame arose from its summit, which was covered with snow. The people of Catania became alarmed, and this alarm grew when on Jan. 16, 1907, the volcano, at the same time that the earthquake at Kingston, Jamaica, occurred, became more active. Prof. Ricco said that the fire openings inside the crater, discovered in 1893, had increased in size, but that only smoke and the reflection of fire could be seen. Ashes were thrown out and subterranean detonations were also heard at this time. On May 8 of the same year the eruption became more violent. The lava flow increased and the smoke was so abundant and heavy that the whole atmosphere as far as Catania was thick with it. There were severe earth shocks, and Prof. Ricco was apprehensive of a great eruption.

It was a year later before the volcano again became active. This time there were earthquakes in continuous shocks and a new crater opened at a height of 7,000 feet. It ejected columns of steam and clouds of stones and ashes. This crater became the source of two streams of lava which followed the course taken by the lava in the eruptions of 1819 and 1852.

Mount Etna is situated close to the east coast of Sicily. It is an almost circular flattened cone, and rises to an altitude of 10,750 feet. The mountain is dotted over with large secondary cones. Its lower slopes are exceptionally fertile, well cultivated, and densely inhabited, but above 7,000 feet all is black and barren. The observatory is built at the foot of the capping cone of ashes some 1,100 feet from the summit. Eruptions take place on an average after intervals of four or five years. The most destructive outbreaks were those of 1169, 1669, 1693, 1792, 1879, 1886, and 1892.

WATCHMAN LOOTED TIFFANY MANSION

Goods Worth More Than $10,000 Taken by Private Policeman in Two Months.

CONFESSES TO POLICE

Madison Avenue House Had Been Kept Up by Miss Tiffany Just as It Was When Her Father Died.

The desire of Miss Louise H. Tiffany to keep the family residence at 255 Madison Avenue in exactly the condition that her father, Charles Tiffany, left it when he died, seven years ago, is said by the police to be responsible for the loss by robbery of from $2,000 to $10,000 worth of clothes and draperies from the closed home.

The goods are supposed to have been stolen by a special watchman, in whose home much property was found.

Central Office Detectives Corn and Fitzpatrick stumbled upon William Hoffman, the watchman, last night while he was entering a pawn shop at Fourth Avenue and Forty-second Street.

Upon his arm was a woman's automobile coat, and he had several bracelets and other bits of jewelry in his hand. The detectives watched the man go into one pawnshop after another until he pawned all except the overcoat. That he checked at the Grand Central Station. He was starting downtown in the Subway when the detectives nabbed him.

When searched at Headquarters, a regulation police revolver was found in Hoffman's rear pocket. A private detective agency badge was pinned upon his vest.

Miss Tiffany has kept up the Madison Avenue residence for seven years even to the point of having the daily papers delivered just as they were when her father was alive. However, she seldom visited the house and the watchman she kept on duty there was suposed to have access only to a single room on the basement floor.

Patrolman Benton Bagley was found on duty last night.

"Know where Miss Tiffany is?" he repeated. "Why, she hasn't been here in months. I've taken the papers in each morning, and watched here for over a year and I've seen her only a few times. I punch the time clock here in the doorway when I come, and so do the other patrolmen. There are three of us, and a man named Ross is in charge. He has been here seven years, ever since Miss Tiffany closed the house.

"Hoffman was the third man. He joined the force only two months ago, and was on duty from 9 o'clock to 5 o'clock. I never knew of any one having keys to the upstairs portion of the house, and I relieved Hoffman at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

"He told me he was also doing a trick as watchman in a pawnshop at Third Avenue and Ninety-sixth Street, where he watched from midnight to 6 o'clock."

The police say that Hoffman broke down at Headquarters and told of systematically robbing the house where he was on guard since late in January. He said he had used a set of duplicate keys and had found the wardrobes upon the upper floors filled with clothing and expensive drapings.

The last time Miss Tiffany was at the house was more than a month ago, when there was a leak in the plumbing and she had to come to let the plumbers in and superintend their work.

The watchmen, upon discovering the leak, were unable to find Miss Tiffany, so they communicated with her through James Speyer, the banker, who lives next door. He sent her the word that brought her to the house with the plumbers.

Miss Tiffany's brother, Louis Tiffany, lives at 27 East Seventy-Second street. Callers at the house last night knew nothing of anything wrong at the Madison avenue residence. Miss Tiffany, who was at the Waldorf, was greatly shocked to learn of the robberies. She confirmed the statement that there was much valuable property on the upper floors which the watchman could have taken had he gained access to the rooms.

In his confession Hoffman told Detectives Corn and Fitzpatrick that they would find a trunk in his home in Brooklyn filled with loot from the Tiffany house. He said he had pawned property in all parts of the city, always tearing up the tickets as soon as he hed received his money.

The detectives went to his house at 1,346 Seventy-first Street, where they found Mrs. Hoffman, a beautiful young woman, and her thre young daughters. She said her husband owned the house, a two-story structure, and that the furnishings included such things as solid gold mirrors and a solid silver table service. The linen was of the finest quality, some of it hemstitched by hand.

In the trunk Hoffman had referred to the detectives discovered 110 pieces of clothing, a number of gold bracelets, diamond brooches, amethyst pins, and many gold and silver trinkets. They took the trunk and its contents to Police Headquarters. They did not touch the linen and silver found in the house, but made a list of it, and said that it would be necessary for Miss Tiffany to identify it before they could seize it.

Mrs. Hoffman said her husband told her he got his valuable belongings at auction sales, and that he had been bringing them home for several months. She had never dreamed, she said, that he had been stealing them, and was prostrated at the news of his arrest.

No search of the Tiffany residence was made last night, but the police said that from the amount of property already located an estimate of $10,000 would be low for the stolen valuables. Hoffman said that he had no idea what the real value of what he took was, but that it would be somewhere between $2,000 and $10,000.

ADDIS ABERA, Abyssinia, March 24.—King Menelik is said to be dying.

In accordance with the decision of the chiefs, the Empress is to be deprived of all power of interference in affairs of state. All her appointments have been annulled. She appears to be resigned.

The capital is tranquil and the safety of foreigners is assured.

was an evidence of the high respect in which Col. Roosevelt was held that he should receive him in similar fashion.

"I'm very glad to have the honor of meeting you," was his salutation to the distinguished American as the Khédive escorted Col. Roosevelt and Mr. Iddings to the reception room overlooking the parade grounds. The room is large and done in Empire tsyle, in red and gold, with heavy yellow brocade draperies. Servants in gala attire immediately brought Turkish coffee, which was served in porcelain cups with gold holders incrusted with diamonds.

The Khédive showed deep interest in the hunting experiences of Col. Roosevelt and made numerous inquiries as to the character of the game killed. Then the conversation turned upon irrigation and agriculture, in which the former President is especially interested.

After half an hour, the longest audience the Khédive has ever been known to give a foreigner, Col. Roosevelt shook hands with his host and departed, receiving the same honors from the policemen and soldiers that were given on his arrival.

Khedive Returns Call.

The Colonel and Mr. Iddings were driven to the American agency in the state carriage, the people met showing every evidence of respect. Among them were many Nationalists, indicated by smaller tarbooshes than those worn by men favoring the existing régime.

A cinematograph whirred as Col. Roosevelt and Mr. Iddings entered the agency. A crowd filled the street, made up of Americans, foreigners, and fellaheen, and it was with considerable trouble that they were forced back by the detail of police. Mounted guards stationed at each entrance of the thoroughfare were turning back the carriages. It was interesting to note the veiled women and inmates of the harem standing at the windows observing the scene.

After a wait of half an hour, while the crowd craned its necks, there was a clatter of hoofs and the Khédival carriage appeared. It contained the Khédive and F. K. Watson Pasha, his aid-de-camp, the former in a red tarboosh, with a blue frock coat and striped trousers. He is rather portly, with a face that is heavy. Mr. Watson was in dress uniform with blue and gold trimmings. Following the carriage was a detachment of the palace guards. In preparation for their coming Consul-General Iddings had ordered spread a red carpet leading from the door of the agency to the sidewalk. It was carefully brushed so as to show no signs of footprints as the Khédive descended.

In visiting the agency the Khédive paid another signal honor to the former President, as he never before had been in the place. The only other occasion when he has made a call upon any other person than the Turkish representatives of royalty was when Gen. Buller was here in command of the army of occupancy.

Khediva Receives Mrs. Roosevelt.

While the Khédive and Col. Roosevelt were exchanging calls, Mrs. Roosevelt, Ethel Roosevelt, and Mrs. Iddings visited the Khédiva, who, according to reports, is about to be supplanted by an Austrian woman. They were driven to the Koubbeh Palace, some distance from the Abdin, where the guards presented arms.

As they entered the apartments of the Khédiva, she was observed walking toward them, accompanied by Mme. De Merino, her dame of honor, who made the presentations. It was an unusual honor, the Khédiva going to meet the party, as all visitors except royalty are conducted to a small room, where they are presented.

The Khédive spoke English to Col. Roosevelt, the Khédiva addressed Mrs. Roosevelt in French, explaining the pleasure she enjoyed in the meeting. She escorted the visitors to seats, placing Mrs. Roosevelt on her right, Mrs. Iddings on her left, with Ethel Roosevelt next to Mrs. Iddings.

The Khédiva wore a European costume of pink brocade. She conversed charmingly with her visitors, although she appeared sad. Mrs. Roosevelt wore black lace, and her daughter a blue tailor-made gown. Mrs. Iddings wore light blue.

Half a dozen women were in the room. These served coffee from a gold urn in cups similar to those offered the former President. Between the Khédiva and Mrs. Roosevelt was a beautiful gold tray surrounded with diamonds, on which was a gold cigarette case and gold matchbox, incrusted with diamonds. It was a superb scene, the American women flanking the beautiful Egyptian maids of honor, who were dressed in white and carmine-striped costumes, with white and carmine turbans.

After remaining at the palace a short time the party expressed great pleasure at the meeting, whereto the Khédiva appropriately responded. The party returned to the hotel, where shortly after they arrived the Khédiva and the Khédiva's mother left their cards. Col. Roosevelt would have received the Khédive at the hotel, but the latter expressly wished to pay his call at the Agency.

Roosevelt's Safety Discussed.

While these various ceremonies were progressing Cairo was a hotbed of gossip concerning the safety of Col. Roosevelt. The Egyptian Morning News, a Nationalist organ, published an open letter signed by Sheik Ali Youssef, a conservative Nationalist, hailing Col. Roosevelt as one of the greatest men of the twentieth century and saying:

"We have been awaiting your arrival because we admire your noble principles and superior virtues, whereof you have given evidence during the term of your Presidency of your land."

It is remarkable that a large part of the letter approves Col. Roosevelt's addresses in the Soudan. Continuing, the writer says:

"We fear the wealth and happiness you will see in Egypt, which is occupied by a foreign power, will dazzle your eyes and lead you to advise the audiences who will certainly hear your speeches, to endeavor to preserve these in statu quo and that you will eulogize the occupation of Egypt in the same manner you eulogized modern Egypt. If you do this you will certainly modify the pleasure of all Egyptians who are anxious to meet you."

This publication gave rise to reports that Col. Roosevelt had been menaced. The police are satisfied that there is no ground for apprehension, they having taken all the necessary precautions despite Mr. Roosevelt, who insists on going about unprotected, confident that he is able to take care of himself.

When interviewed, Mohammed Pasha, the Premier, declared that the reports of a serious situation were exaggerated.

"I am in favor of the elimination of foreign government," he said, "but I believe it should be done gradually. A careful investigation that was made of the assassination of my predecessor shows that it was not inspired by religious hatred."

Mohammed seemed to desire to avoid all reference to Col. Roosevelt.

There never was a private citizen who has been received in such a royal manner as Col. Roosevelt. The Khédive was so impressed with Mr. Roosevelt that he invited him to luncheon Saturday, in company with Ambassador Straus and other distinguished men.

I asked Col. Roosevelt to-night about Mr. Pinchot's coming. With the mystery of the Sphinx he made this reply:

"I am observing my usual reticence on all questions relating to American affairs, political and otherwise."

KAISER PLANS ROYAL HONORS.

Roosevelts Will Occupy Rooms at Castle Used by King Edward.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, March 24.—Honors customarily reserved for ruling sovereigns await Col. Roosevelt at the hands of the Kaiser in Berlin. I am enabled to state on official authority that the former President and Mrs. Roosevelt will be guests of the Emperor and Empress at the royal castle on May 12, 13, 14, and 15. They will probably occupy the same apartments as those used by King Edward and Queen Alexandra in February, 1909.

One or two military exhibitions are sure to figure in the programme for Mr. Roosevelt's entertainment and will include some cavalry and airship manoeuvres. The Kaiser is breaking his holiday cure at Homburg on Mr. Roosevelt's account and will come to Berlin especially to entertain him.

For the first two or three days of his stay the ex-President will live on American soil at the United States Embassy, where he and his wife will be guests of Ambassador and Mrs. Hill. He will lecture at the University of Berlin in the German language and will fraternize with his fellow-countrymen at either a reception or a public dinner.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, March 24.—Col. Roosevelt, on his journey from Vienna to Paris, will arrive at Berne on April 18, making a short stay in order to meet the Swiss President, Robert Comtesse.

It will be the first time in history that two men who have held the Chief Magistracies of the two Republics have met even unofficially.

DEMONSTRATION IS FEARED.

Apprehensions for Roosevelt's Safety, However, Are Exaggerated.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 24.—Special prominence is given by The Daily Mail to a dispatch from its correspondent at Cairo, Hamilton Fyfe, stating that apprehensions are felt there of demonstrations by Egyptian Nationalists against Mr. Roosevelt because of his speeches at Khartoum. The dispatch says:

"Articles have appeared in the last few days in the Arabic organs of the Young Egypt Party attacking Mr. Roosevelt for laying stress on the benefits of British rule in the Soudan and expressing the hope that he will not take a similar tone here.

"However, I believe the fears on Mr. Roosevelt's account are exaggerated. Police protection was offered him but was refused. Certainly a good impression was created among the public by the visits exchanged between Mr. Roosevelt and the Khédive."

ROOSEVELT SUMMONED STRAUS.

Cabled Him to Come to Cairo for a Long Conference.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Oscar Straus, United States Ambassador to Turkey, left that city on March 8 on the Scorpion for Cairo to have a long conference with ex-President Roosevelt. It was learned to-day that Mr. Straus's trip was in answer to a cable message from Col. Roosevelt, requesting the conference.

In some quarters the visit is regarded as significant. Mr. Straus was Secretary of Commerce and Labor in the last few years of the Roosevelt Administration, and was always close to Mr. Roosevelt. He is likewise a warm friend of President

CANADIAN MINISTER GOES TO SEE TAFT

Fielding Will Have Another Conference with Him on the Tariff Situation.

Ottawa Fears Important Concessions Will Be Made—Our Minimum Rates Extended to China.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, March 24.—The Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance, left this afternoon for Washington, where he will meet President Taft in another conference on the tariff difficulty between the two countries.

Mr. Fielding refused to give any information to-day as to the stage which the negotiations have reached, but the prevailing impression is that when he left Mr. Taft at Albany it was with the understanding that Canada, to save a tariff war, would grant concessions to the United States. It is believed, therefore, that after conferring with the Premier Mr. Fielding is now empowered to say what concessions Canada will make.

Fears are expressed here that the concessions may be important, but no one outside of the Cabinet has been made acquainted with the nature of the proposals which Canada will make to the United States.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Ambassador Bryce, who called at the White House to-day on another matter, was asked whether he had discussed the Canadian tariff situation with the President, but he smilingly declined to affirm or deny the suggestion.

It is understood that in an informal way President Taft and Ambassador Bryce discussed the matter. The Ambassador's interest in the negotiations is not official, but it is believed that, with the President, he hoped some agreement might be reached during the next seven days.

The President has issued proclamations declaring the following-named countries entitled to the minimum rates of the Payne-Aldrich Tariff act:

China, including all its dependencies; Oman, Afghanistan, Nepal, Brutan, Johore, Luxemburg, Montenegro, Monaco, Andorras, San Marino; Lichtenstein, Haiti, the Kwangtung territory, Weihaiwei, Kiachow, German possessions in Samoa, German New Guinea, including the insular possessions of the Carolines, Pelew, and the Marianne Islands; Marshall, Brown, and Providence Islands; Straits Settlements, including Keeling Islands; the Federated Malay States, Brunei and Sarawak, Hongkong and Kowloon, Nyasaland, Northern Nigeria Protectorate; Southern Nigeria Protectorate, (Lagos;) Gold Coast Colony, including Ashanti; the colony and protectorate of Sierra Leone, the colony and protectorate of Gambia, Fiji, Tonga, and Turkish possessions in Africa.

KAISER PRAISES OUR ARTISTS.

Expresses Pleasure After Long Visit to American Exhibit in Berlin.

BERLIN, March 24.—Emperor William made a protracted visit to the American Art Exhibition at the Royal Academy this morning. He examined all the pictures closely and expressed himself as much pleased with them, admiring the landscapes especially. He heartily congratulated Hugo Reisinger, who arranged the exhibit, and President Arthur Kampf, of the Royal Academy of Arts, who accompanied him through the galleries.

Afterward the Emperor sent this telegram to Ambassador Hill:

> I have just returned from the American Art Exhibition, and wish to express to you my pleasure in having seen the works of the excellent artists. WILLIAM, I. R.

Mr. Hill, in reply, addressed Count Eulenberg, Lord Chamberlain, as follows:

> Please express to his Majesty my most grateful acknowledgments and thanks for his telegram so kindly appreciative of our American artists.

Few retailers of Men's apparel purchase their costlier garments from the same manufacturer who produces their cheaper ones. The maker of the lower grades has defined his own limitations—found the level of his capabilities, and when he essays the making of fine garments he makes a failure of them.

But the drawing of this very distinction by most clothes shops exposes one of their chief weaknesses—an indiscriminate stock gathered from several, sometimes many, sources and representing no fixed standard.

In our own shops our own designers and tailormen produce all the garments we sell. As to modelling and making, the $15 Suit or Topcoat receives the same jealous care and skilful handling bestowed upon the $45 Suit or Topcoat. According to plainness or luxury of material, the prices are fixed. But the same characteristic tailoring is apparent in all.

MET DEATH TRYING TO SAVE HIS BABES

Edward Sharkey, Overcome on the Stairs, Found by the Firemen After Tenement Blaze.

MANY HEROIC RESCUES

Father McGean Climbs a Ladder and Administers Last Rites to a Woman Unconscious on a Balcony.

While putting in a hot water heating system in a five-story tenement at 350 East Ninety-first Street a plumber kicked over a gasoline torch yesterday noon. Two hours later one body had been taken from the ruined building, four tenants had been sent to the Presbyterian and Bellevue Hospitals, firemen had achieved rescues seldom equaled, and a priest had clambered up a fire ladder to administer the rites for the dying to a woman who lay unconscious on a fire escape platform.

Deputy Fire Chief Callaghan said that had the fire occurred at night the fatalities would have been much greater, as the flames were rushing out the scuttle on the roof three minutes after they started on the ground floor. As it was, the father of one family was burned to death, his wife was sent to the hospital unconscious, and a fireman had his eyebrows and hair burned off and his tongue blistered from inhaling flames while trying to save their children. Had not two other firemen followed him into the building and found him overcome with smoke, he and four children would have been burned to death.

The dead man is thought to have been Edward Sharkey, who lived with his wife, Belle, and four children on the fourth floor.

While Fireman Philip Herburger, driver of Truck 39, was being hoisted to the top of a sixty-five-foot ladder which was being raised to the roof, he heard cries as the ladder passed the fourth floor. The fireman signaled to stop and the ladder was veered toward the windows. Swinging to a fire escape platform, he broke his way through a window into a smoke-filled flat. He located the cries in a rear room, and on groping his way to it found four children, two under a bed and two on it, one of them a year-old baby.

Saved Children, Then Fell Unconscious.

As the fire already had entered the room Herburger seized Thomas, the baby, under one arm and Edith, 7 years old, under the other. Carrying them to the front room, he set them down and returned to the bedroom and got from under the bed Florence, 4 years old, and John, 3 years old. Before he could again reach the front room with these children he fell unconscious.

Firemen Bontz and Sullivan, who had followed Herburger up the ladder, dragged him out a front window, bringing two of the children. When the fresh air revived him he shouted that there were two more children inside, and they rushed in again and rescued Edith and her baby brother.

As the firemen gained the stairway, fighting the fire from the inside, they came upon the body of a man burned to a crisp in the hallway of the second floor. The body was crouched in a corner and the charred arms were raised over the face and eyes. On the fourth floor, in a room adjoining that in which the children had been found, they discovered Mrs. Sharkey, unconscious from smoke, and burned about the face and arms. She was hurried to a window and laid on the fire escape platform in view of a great crowd.

Priest Ministers to Dying Woman.

In the crowd was Father Vincent de Paul McGean, of the Church of Our Lady of Good Counsel, in the rear of the tenement house on Nineteenth street. He caught sight of the woman upon the fire-escape, and forcing his way through the crowd, he mounted the ladder. The crowd stood breathless while he went up to the unconscious woman and administered the last rites to her with the smoke and flames sputtering out of the windows about him. Then they broke into a great cheer.

Father McGean is well known in the neighborhood, and those who saw him minister to the fire victim repeated the story to those who had not witnessed it for several hours.

Mrs. Sharkey was carried down the fire ladder to Drs. Harvey and McDonald, of the Presbyterian Hospital, who applied temporary dressings to her burns and then sent her to the hospital.

Father Started Home but Never Arrived.

The Sharkey children, except Edith who was taken to the hospital with her mother, were cared for by their grandfather, who lived in a nearby tenement. They said they had not seen their father yesterday, though he generally returned home to lunch. Officials of The East River Lumber Company, where Sharkey was employed, at the foot of East Ninety-second street, reported that he had left there at 12 o'clock and had failed to return. He was a lumber marker and in a fragment of clothing still clinging to the body of the burned man there was a lumber marker's lead pencil.

The police concluded that Sharkey had come home just as the fire broke out and had tried to rush up to save his wife and children on the fourth floor. All other tenants and the four plumbers were accounted for.

There were twenty families living in the tenement and twenty more in the one adjoining, separated from it only by a thin plaster partition. The fire spread through this partition on the fifth floor and nearly caused another fatality.

Mrs. Annie Hermes, an invalid, who lived with her daughter Jennie, was overcome with smoke while lying in bed. Her daughter carried her to the hallway, where she in turn was overcome. Peter Glenwall, another tenant, dragged both up to the roof.

Many Others Hurt or Overcome.

Mrs. Dora Steiger was found by firemen lying unconscious across a trunk in her room on the third floor of No. 350. She had stumbled about in the smoke trying to find a door and had finally fallen over the trunk exhausted.

Bernard Finnigan and William Aubrey, of 1,733 First avenue ran upstairs in No. 352 and brought out Mrs. Nellie Brooker and four children from the third floor. All were partly overcome by smoke.

"It is terrible that the carelessness of one man should cause such a disaster," said Deputy Chief Callaghan, after the firemen had extinguished the flames. "We found in the basement fully a ton and a half of excelsior and inflammable stuff. Every upper East Side tenement must be overhauled by the inspectors at once."

The fire started in the kitchen of Mrs. Louise Brince in the rear on the ground floor. Philip Silverman, of 106 Pitt street, was the plumber who kicked over his gasoline torch. In his excitement he seized the torch and threw it through the kitchen door into the hallway. He was burned about the arms and face and was sent to Bellevue.

GAYLEY TESTIFIES FOR WIFE.

Called in Her Cross Divorce Suit, Says He Is Resident of Reno.

Special to The New York Times.

RENO, Nev., March 24.—Though he was supposed to be in Arizona, James Gayley, formerly Vice President of the United States Steel Trust, appeared in court this morning, and testified in behalf of Mrs. Julia Gardner Gayley, whom he had sued for a divorce. He was called by her attorneys, and was questioned by them. His own attorneys did not cross-examine him or interpose any obstacle to Mrs. Gayley's getting the decree prayed for in her cross-complaint.

Gayley's complaint was not even read to the court, and he did not testify at all in his own behalf. He had alleged in it that he had gained a residence in Reno, and on this showing of jurisdiction Mrs. Gayley, in her cross-complaint, expected to secure her divorce after proving desertion by her husband on July 1, 1908, the date on which he alleged in his complaint she deserted him.

Mrs. Gayley being unable to gain standing in the court except by her husband's residence, Judge Orr yesterday called upon her attorneys to put in some evidence to show that Gayley was actually a resident of Reno. It was for this reason that Gayley was called. He testified that he came to Reno on March 8, 1909, and that he had lived here since that time, taking trips occasionally from the city. In the course of the year, he said, he had spent twenty-four and a half weeks here. Once, he declared, he took a trip to London to attend to patents in regard to the handling of iron ore. On other occasions he went to Pittsburg, St. Louis, and other Eastern cities, and spent three weeks in Michigan on a vacation. He is now building a home in Reno valued at about $3,000.

Mrs. Gayley and her two daughters, Agnes and Florence, who testified yesterday, were not present in court while Gayley was on the stand. They remained in their apartments in the Riverside Hotel. Following Gayley's testimony the attorneys entered into a stipulation which provides that in case a decree is granted to Mrs. Gayley she is to have $50,000, which is to be in lieu of all alimony, while, in addition, Gayley is to pay $1,000 counsel fees to her Reno attorneys and the costs of the suit.

Judge Orr has ordered the evidence transcribed, and will render a decision on Saturday.

KILLS HERSELF UNDER TRAIN.

Suicide of Katherine Dennis, Eighteen Years Old, Follows a Quarrel.

PATCHOGUE, L. I., March 24.—Katherine Dennis, 18 years old, of this village, committed suicide this afternoon by throwing herself in front of the east-bound Amagansett express of the Long Island Railroad, a mile and a half west of Bellport Depot and two miles from this village.

The pilot of the engine threw her to one side, killing her instantly. The girl's act was witnessed by a telephone lineman from a pole near the tracks and by Samuel Giloweizz, a boy, but neither could reach her in time to prevent the act.

The place where the suicide occurred is nearly three miles from the girl's home. When the body was brought here on the girl's coat was found pinned a note, which read:

> If anybody wants to know why I done this they should ask a certain man from Patchogue, who is the cause of it. So good-bye to all my friends, mama, papa, sisters, and brother.

The note was signed: "Katherine Dennis, 2 Waverly Avenue, Patchogue, N. Y."

Miss Dennis was employed in a lace factory here, where the man she referred to is an expert weaver. They were very friendly for a year and a half, but about Thanksgiving time they quarreled, and the man says she tried to kill herself with carbolic acid. The girl's mother also said that one day she found a note in her daughter's room saying she was going away, and no one would see her again.

The girl left the mill at 9:30 A. M. without telling any one she was going. Nearly three hours later she threw herself in front of the train.

BOY MESSENGERS' HARD LOT.

Child Labor Guardian Tells Meeting of Republican Women About It.

"The work of the night messenger boy is at present one of the hardest problems of the National Child Labor Committee," Owen J. Lovejoy, Secretary of the committee, told the West End Women's Republican Association yesterday at the Hotel Astor.

"A thorough study of the work of these boys in eight States revealed conditions too terrible to be told here," said Mr. Lovejoy. "In addition to the moral evil of the work, there is another deplorable fact connected with it, namely, that it is a blind alley leading to no other business or profession. The messenger who works nights does not come in touch with opportunities to enter the industrial world."

Mr. Lovejoy had more hopeful things to say, however. He spoke of the fact that during the past eighteen months twenty-eight States have passed more intelligent child labor laws. He added that the bill providing for the establishment of a Federal Children's Bureau had passed the Senate and was now before that body in its amended form, and also before the House.

Mr. Lovejoy urged the members of the club to write to their representatives urging its passage. The association passed a resolution to do so.

CITY GAS FIGHT ENDED.

Mayor Approves Plan of Settlement in Long-Standing Dispute.

Mayor Gaynor has approved the tentative plan for the settlement of the counter claims between the city and the Consolidated Gas Company, agreed upon by Corporation Counsel Watson, Controller Prendergast, and President Cortelyou some time ago, and the squabble which has been going on for several years is at an end.

Under the arrangement the city will come out of the deal nearly $1,500,000 better than was originally expected. The city has not paid any of its lighting bills since the agitation for cheaper gas started in 1902. The gas combine retaliated by refusing to pay its special franchise and personal property taxes. The amount involved ran up to the neighborhood of $12,000,000. Ex-Controller Metz tried to obtain a settlement of the counter claims, and, according to his figures, it looked as if the city would have to pay the combine in the neighborhood of $1,000,000.

When Mayor Gaynor came into office he took the matter up in earnest, and held several conferences with the officers of the Consolidated. They arrived at a tentative agreement, which was put in legal form by the Corporation Counsel several weeks ago. Under it the balance to be paid the city is some $500,000.

FORGETS FRIENDS AND HOME.

Mrs. Van Sickle, Wandering in Street, Cannot Recall with Whom She Stops.

Unable to remember the name or address of friends with whom she was stopping in this city an aged, well-dressed woman, who said she was Mrs. Margaret L. Van Sickle, widow of a volunteer fireman of the old No. 26 hand engine, and descendant of an old Manhattan family, was found by Policeman Dillon of the West 125th Street station wandering aimlessly about 127th Street and St. Nicholas Avenue last night.

When taken before Magistrate Steinert at the Night Court she said that her husband had died on the day before last Thanksgiving, and that since then, until ten days ago, she had lived at the Clemens Hotel, Liberty, N. Y. She could not sity, whom she had left to go shopping in the afternoon, and was taken to the Florence Crittenton Home for the night, pending further investigation.

Mrs. Gaston Depew to Wed Ashton Potter.

Special to The New York Times.

COLORADO SPRINGS, March 24.—Mrs. Gaston Depew, who was divorced from Senator Depew's nephew here last year, has announced that she will marry Capt. Ashton Potter on April 8. Capt. Potter's divorce occurred about the same time as the Depew affair, and gossip said Mrs. Depew would marry him, but she then denied it.

THE HEGEMANS DENY BUILDING ALLIANCE

Firm Hiring President's Nephew Is Not Unduly Favored by Metropolitan Life, Officials Say.

GOT TOWER WORK BY MERIT

Story That Only Customers of Hedden Co. Can Get Metropolitan Loans Attributed to Jealousy.

The fact that John R. Hegeman, President of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, is the uncle of John C. Hegeman, Secretary of the Hedden Construction Company, which built the tower of the Metropolitan Building and now has offices in it, has brought up a question as to the connection between the insurance and the building concerns. A report was circulated yesterday that the State Insurance Department was investigating the matter, and that the other large builders of the city regard the Hedden firm as having been unduly favored by the Metropolitan in the matter of loans.

It was said that the Hedden Company was selected to build the tower without competitive bidding, and that it had been found that if any builder wanted to obtain a loan from the Metropolitan he found his path materially smoothed if he could inform the insurance company that he had employed the Hedden Construction Company. This, it was alleged, showed a sympathy between the two concerns, which was not to the interest of the building trade or of the policy holders of the Metropolitan.

These assertions were denied yesterday by officials of both companies. They asserted that there was absolutely no connection of one concern with the other, and that John C. Hegeman was offered the appointment of Secretary of the construction company without the knowledge of John R. Hegeman, President of the Metropolitan, and without his exerting a particle of interest in his nephew's behalf. Speaking of the relations between the insurance company and the construction company, John H. Ecker, Treasurer of the former, said yesterday:

Satisfied with Masonry Contract.

"Every contract for the building of our tower was let by open competitive bidding, with the exception of that for the masonry. As testified at the Armstrong investigation, the masonry was erected by the Hedden Construction Company for a 4 per cent. commission on the actual cost. The Hedden Construction Company also assumed responsibility for all sub-contracts for a similar commission. We are convinced that we received the full value for our money. Every brick and stone built in was under the supervision of our own inspectors, and all materials were also passed upon by our own representatives."

"Why did you choose the Hedden Construction Company?"

"The Metropolitan's business relations with that concern began long before the tower was erected. It put up some of the rest of the building. We selected it as it had done excellent work for the Prudential Life Insurance Company of Newark, our principal competitor, and we were certain it would do good work."

When the relationship between the two Hegemans was brought up Mr. Ecker explained that at the time the tower was built John C. Hegeman was not the Secretary of the Hedden Construction Company.

"I can tell you," he said, "that Mr. John R. Hegeman, President of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, had nothing whatever to do with the appointment of his nephew. I understand that John C. Hegeman was a classmate of Albert S. Barlow, Vice President of the Hedden Construction Company, and that he knew young Mr. Hegeman at Stevens Institute. It was through him alone that the appointment was made, and John R. Hegeman knew nothing about it till his nephew informed him of the offer."

When Mr. Ecker was asked whether the Metropolitan favored the requests for loans of those builders who employ the Hedden Construction Company he laughed.

"We have made loans recently on two large buildings put up by the Hedden Construction Company—the City Investing Building and the Fifth Avenue Building. In each case the loan was made before the Heddens were employed."

"Was there a condition implied in the loans that the Hedden Construction Company should be employed?" Mr. Ecker was asked.

"Absolutely none whatever," he replied. "Of 500 loans we have recently made on buildings, only 3 have been on those erected by that company."

John C. Hegeman refused to discuss the matter on the ground that it was too personal. He referred the reporters to Mr. Barlow, the Vice President of the Hedden Construction Company, and replied with a laugh to a question as to his relationship to Mr. John R. Hegeman.

"I don't see what that has to do with it."

Mr. Barlow would not go into details of the relations of the Hedden Construction Company and the Metropolitan Insurance Company over the building of the tower but said:

Promoted Hegeman on His Merits.

"There's absolutely no secret about it. I am perfectly willing to explain the whole affair to any one who has a right to inquire. I may tell you that John C. Hegeman was in this company's employ, and that it was I alone who selected him for his place. He won it by working up. He has no large share in the company, and only carried enough shares to qualify him for his post. He was not made Secretary till after the tower had been completed."

Mr. Barlow also denied that his company enjoyed any undue advantage in the matter of getting loans from the Metropolitan, and stamped the story as the invention of jealous rivals who could not attain what they desired by fair means.

At the office of the State Superintendent of Insurance the Deputy Superintendent, Charles S. Fowler, explained the examination of the affairs of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company which is now in progress. It is the regular triennial examination, a little delayed on account of other work. He said that, among other things, the cost of the tower would come up for review.

So far they have not got further than tabulating figures, and no report of any kind has been made to Supt. Hotchkiss in the matter. It would be, he supposed, several months yet before the entire work was completed, and it was unlikely that any report on the cost of building would be made till the final report was handed in. In any case, he explained, the State Department was concerned about nothing but the security of the policy holders, and as nothing had been suggested to impeach either the construction of the tower or its cost, it was not concerned about the business ethics of the case, supposing that any question of the sort existed.

TRAIN SLAYER'S MIEN THAT OF A MANIAC

Alarmed Johns Hopkins Hospital Officials When He Applied There for Treatment.

ASKED IF HE LOOKED CRAZY

Bethea Complained at Baltimore Station That the Hospital Had Turned Him Away as Insane.

BALTIMORE, March 24.—J. H. Bethea, the South Carolinian who killed Conductor Wellman and a negro porter on the Royal Limited of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad yesterday, and for an hour afterward kept at bay a posse of policemen and armed citizens at Wilmington, Del., spent several hours in the Johns Hopkins Hospital here yesterday morning. His actions were so queer that the hospital officials became convinced that he was unbalanced mentally.

Bethea was well known at the hospital, for he had been a patient there about a year ago, suffering with an abdominal trouble.

He appeared at the hospital yesterday morning and said that the old ailment had returned. He talked with the clerks and physicians in regard to treatment. He was very restless and appeared unable to give the doctors much information about his case. Several times he grew so excited and created so much disturbance that the chief clerk warned him to keep quiet.

Finally Bethea left without making any arrangements for returning, and nothing more was heard of him by the hospital attachés until they read the account of his tragic end this morning.

The movements of Bethea after he left the hospital until about 3 o'clock, when he appeared at the Camden Station, are somewhat obscure. Accosting the clerk of a cab company at the station, Bethea announced that he was from Dillon, S. C., and complained that he had been barred from Johns Hopkins Hospital because they thought he was crazy.

"Do I look as if I were crazy?" he inquired.

According to the clerk and a policeman who also had noticed the man, Bethea seemed greatly excited and walked about, his body twitching in a peculiar manner. He did not appear to be under the influence of liquor, they said, and his actions did not attract the attention of the groups of people around the station.

WILMINGTON, Del., March 24.—It is not known yet who fired the shot which ended the life of J. H. Bethea, and probably never will be. He was the target for the pistols of the police, and for rifles, shotguns, and revolvers fired indiscriminately by persons in the assembled throng.

Bethea's body remained at the morgue all night and has not been claimed yet by any one, nor has word been received from his South Carolina home in relation to any disposition of the remains.

The only person to be wounded severely by Bethea was Park Guard John L. Wiley of this city, who was struck twice by Bethea's quick fire, one bullet penetrating his left hand and the other striking him in the left side. The latter wound may prove mortal, although physicians are hopeful it will not.

The wound that caused Bethea's death was undoubtedly a bullet that entered his body close to the heart.

Alexandra Viarda, a Polish actress, living at 118 West Forty-ninth Street, was a passenger from Washington on Wednesday on the Royal Limited, and occupied Seat 7 in the parlor car in which J. H. Bethea killed the conductor and porter.

"When the train left Baltimore," said Mme. Viarda, "I noticed a tall, well-built, middle-aged man, with florid complexion, dressed in a light overcoat, enter the car and sit down in seat No. 2. Presently the porter came and told him he was in the wrong seat. Immediately the man became very excited, and spoke so loudly that he attracted the attention of every one in the car. The porter apologized, and said that it was his duty to see that passengers were located according to their tickets. When the conductor came into the car the man complained to him, but after an argument he changed to another seat opposite.

"After the conductor had left the car the man turned to an elderly man near him and exclaimed excitedly: 'They will steal my money. They want to kill me. Will you mind my money for me?' and he pulled out a big pocketbook, which appeared to be full of bills. The other passenger declined to accept the trust, and the disgruntled passenger replaced his pocketbook, muttering to himself.

"It was only a few minutes after this that the porter passed the man's seat and an argument started which was followed by the shooting."

DENNISON TO MATTEAWAN.

Probable Slayer of Two Boys Committed as a Dangerous Paranoiac.

Herbert Jerome Dennison, accepted generally as the man who shot and killed Arthur Shibley and Robbie Lomas in Highbridge Park on Jan. 12, was committed to the State Asylum for the Criminal Insane at Matteawan yesterday by Judge O'Sullivan in General Sessions. He was described as a dangerous paranoiac with homicidal tendencies by the Lunacy Commission, which filed its report on Tuesday.

THE TIMES is informed by the Superintendent of the Central Islip State Hospital that Dennison was never, as stated yesterday, an inmate of that institution.

HARVEY SCOFFS AT ANTI-SUFFRAGISTS

Some of Their Arguments Remind Him of a Venerable Teacher Bearing Burden of Prejudice.

MRS. MACKAY ON HER WORK

Equal Franchise Society Has Grown from 16 Members to 625 in the Winter, She Reports.

The Equal Franchise Society held its last meeting of the season yesterday afternoon at the Garden Theatre. Mrs. Mackay, President of the organization, presided. Col. George Harvey, one of the Directors of the society, was the chief speaker of the day. Mrs. Mackay in her opening address gave figures showing the growth of the society.

"A year ago, when the first meeting of this society was called," she said, "we had 16 members. When we held the first meeting in the early Winter we had 250 members. We now have 625 members, and I think that shows that we have a reason for existence. We have been doing a propaganda work; we have not been preaching, been hysterical, or emotional. There is no need of it. The power in the United States is vested in the Supreme Court. That means that it is founded on justice, and, if so, the women should have a voice in the Government."

Col. Harvey answered the different anti-suffrage arguments, imitating the different people supposed to give them. One was the war objection—the one which Mrs. Gilbert Jones calls the "red flag to a suffrage bull." Col. Harvey put this in the mouth of "the venerable teacher bearing his burden of prejudice." With quavering voice he declared that when women carry muskets and fight for their country then they can vote, and not until then, unless over his dead body," said the speaker. "His day is ended," he went on. "His legs are feeble. Tottering he resumes his place. But his blow has been delivered and he rejoices in the self-satisfaction that it has reached a vital spot.

"Physical capacity to bear arms the requisite of exercising the franchise?" the speaker continued. "Thirty long years ago by his own rule of thumb his right to vote would have ceased. Under the existing military laws of the United States I should have lost mine the sixteenth day of last month. By the same prescription three-quarters at least of the college professors, teachers, professional men, clergymen, leaders in industry, men of affairs, and all others engaged in sedentary occupations would be barred. All feeble in body, however strong in mind, would be disqualified, and the destinies of the Nation would be confidingly placed in the hands of the prize fighters, blacksmiths, and hod carriers."

He told about woman's sphere bounded on the north by eating, on the east by sleeping, on the west by praying, and south by tatting, and with the god of petty tyrannies ruling over all. "Have you a good wife, man?" he said. "There is danger in the air. Does she go a-shopping? Bid her cease. She might discover that casting a ballot is no more arduous than 'trying on.' Does she speak except when spoken to? Refer her to St. Paul. Does she think she thinks? Scowl! Be shocked! Above all, be firm! Place her hand upon the cradle and bid her rock and be content that now she rules the world."

Col. Harvey quoted from the anti-suffrage speech made by Henry Clews at the Metropolitan Temple this Winter under the head of "The Banker's Views." He found much to criticise in it. "I may say in passing," he declared, "that the talented wife of my good friend, the distinguished banker, is a life member of the Equal Franchise Society."

Mrs. Herbert Carpenter gave a luncheon before the meeting, at which Mme. Nordica was present and made a suffrage speech and told how anxious she was to work for the cause. Other guests, all of whom came to the meeting, were Mrs. James Henry Dick, Mrs. Ira Barrows, Mrs. William Boulton, Mrs. John W. Brannan, Mrs. Walston Brown, Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, Mrs. George A. Legg, Mrs. Philip Lydig, and Miss Forbes Robertson.

Suffrage Matinee for Elliott Theatre.

Beatrice Forbes-Robertson of The New Theatre Company has organized a suffrage matinée for the benefit of the Equality League of Self-Supporting Women, to be given at Maxine Elliott's Theatre next Thursday afternoon. Three suffrage plays will be presented by casts containing many of the prominent actresses and suffrage workers in the city. A few men have also agreed to assist at the performance. Maxine Elliott, herself a suffragette, has loaned her theatre for the cause.

Benefit for Beth-Israel Free School.

A benefit for the Congregation Beth-Israel Free School will be given at the New York Theatre Sunday night, with a long list of performers to offer entertainment. Klaw & Erlanger have donated the use of the theatre, and among the actors who have agreed to appear are most of the important musical comedy and vaudeville stars in the city. The committee in charge consists of Harry Levey, Henry Naftal, Morris Rose, John Reisler, and P. Liberman.

ARRESTED FOR EXTORTION.

Supposed Agent of a Pretended Reporter Accepted Marked Bills.

A man who said he was Alfred McDonald was arrested yesterday at the house of Miss Addy McKenzie, 37 West Eighty-ninth Street, and locked up in Police Headquarters charged with extortion. He said he was the agent of others, of whose business he was ignorant. There were no papers in his clothing to indicate who he was, and he had only five cents on his person.

Miss McKenzie, who lives with her two sisters, Miss Hazel and Miss Arline McKenzie, was called up at her house last Monday by a man who said he was Arthur Santrock, a reporter for the Associated Press. He demanded $150 as the price for suppressing a story, which he declared reflected on family affairs. The Associated Press employs no person named Santrock.

After frequent consultations with Police Headquarters Miss McKenzie finally made an appointment for yesterday with a man who said he was Howard T. Williams, acting for Santrock, agreeing to pay him the $150. A man called up the house on the telephone shortly before noon and, on confirmation of the appointment, appeared there. Miss Helen Dougherty, a friend of the family, handed him a roll of paper around which had been wrapped a marked $10 bill. At the same time the chauffeur and the butler of the family rushed out from a front basement entrance and hustled the man into the house, where he was held until the arrival of detectives.

The man was supposed to be acting for Williams, but he denied all knowledge of the case, saying he had called at the house at the request of a stranger, who met him at a nearby corner and paid him $1 to go for a package.

AUTO TOURING RECIPROCITY.

Callan Bill Provides for License Exemption with Other States.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 24.—After several conferences the Callan bill to regulate the use of automobiles was amended to-day by its introducer. It will be brought up on final passage in the Assembly next week.

A second bill prohibits the use of pistols, revolvers, or other firearms by those making arrests for a violation of any of the sections of the motor vehicle law.

"The bill as amended," said Mr. Callan to-day of his measure, "does away with the clause against the use of non-skidding devices, and gives reciprocity in the use of automobiles from other States. If New Jersey allows a New York man to operate his automobile three weeks in New Jersey without a license from New Jersey, the New Jersey man will have the same privilege in this State.

"Another amendment provides that after an owner has paid the registration fee for four years the fee on his automobile will be reduced one-half. The local authorities in cities of the first and second class are to have absolute control of the speed and traffic regulations in those cities. The other localities will have control over speed regulations, except that the minimum of speed shall not be less than fifteen miles an hour.

"The amendments also provide for better means of identification of chauffeurs."

It is provided that the proceeds of the license fee shall be applied to the maintenance of good roads.

TO REGULATE STOCK DEALS.

Two Albany Bills Penalize Stock Juggling and Watering Processes.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 24.—An amendment to the penal law introduced to-day by Assemblyman Clark, of Otsego County, provides that a member of the New York Stock Exchange or the Consolidated Stock Exchange who, while acting as a specialist in stocks, takes for his own account any stock, orders for the purchase or sale of which have been placed in the specialist's hands for execution, steals such property and is guilty of larceny.

A bill affecting promoters was introduced by Assemblyman Lindon Bates, Jr. It places the promoter in a fiduciary relation to the corporation he is engaged in promoting and requires him to disclose his interest in any property sold to the corporation and the amount he is to receive for his services.

CHOP HOUSES RAISE PRICES.

High Cost of Living Forces Restaurants to Increase Their Charges.

The effect on the restaurants of the increase in the prices of meats has become marked in the last few days. Places of the standing of Delmonico's, where the cost of raw material is of much less importance than in those places where the only consideration is to sell food of fair quality moderately well cooked, have been forced to advance their prices by 10 cents or so a portion on all meat orders.

The eating places of lower grade have followed suit. In one café in Times Square, having as its patrons many of the dramatic profession, the management has seen fit to print an explanatory notice on its bills of fare.

The notice says that the proprietors had no alternative but to cut down the size of a "helping" or to raise the price, and rather than let their patrons go away hungry they had chosen the second as the lesser of the two evils. Even the price of crullers has been advanced in some places, and a dozen, which used to cost 12 cents, now costs 20 cents. The explanation of this is said to be a jump in the price of lard from 16 cents to 20 cents.

COMMITTEE AGREES ON RAILWAY BILL

Taft Measure with Vital Changes Ordered Favorably Reported to the House.

COMMERCE COURT RETAINED

Provisions for Stock Issue Supervision and Ban on Acquisition of Substantially Competing Lines Also There.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Embodying a number of amendments and vital changes, the Administration Railroad bill as introduced in the House by Representative Townsend of Michigan and in the Senate by Senator Elkins of West Virginia was ordered favorably reported by the House Committee on Inter-State and Foreign Commerce to-day.

The committee report was made by a strict party vote. The minority members of the committee, however, are not themselves agreed in the opposition, some of the Democrats favoring certain features of the bill, while opposing others. Representative Adamson of Georgia will present the minority report.

As it comes from the committee the principal features of the bill are as follows:

It establishes a Court of Commerce having the jurisdiction now possessed by the Circuit Courts of the United States, and to this court must go all cases to enjoin, set aside, suspend or annul any order of the Inter-State Commerce Commission; all mandamus proceedings and all cases for enforcement, otherwise than by adjudication and collection of a forfeiture or penalty and the infliction of criminal punishment, or of any order of the Inter-State Commerce Commission.

The court is to consist of five Judges appointed by the Chief Justice of the United States, from among the Circuit Judges, the sittings of the court to be in Washington. Appeals from the Commerce Court may be made direct to the Supreme Court, but such appeals shall not stay the judgment of the Commerce Court unless so ordered by the higher court or a Justice thereof.

Transportation companies are forbidden to charge greater compensation in the aggregate for a shorter haul than the longer haul over the same line or route in the same direction or to charge any greater rate as a through rate than the aggregate of the local rates, this section amending the law as it at present stands regarding long and short hauls. In special instances and upon authority of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, after proper showing, railroads may be permitted to charge a higher rate for short than for long hauls.

No railroad carrier subject to the act may acquire, directly or indirectly, any interest in the capital stock of any railway or water carrier corporation with which it is directly and substantially competitive, nor may any water carrier acquire the stock, or any part thereof, of a competing railroad corporation. After July 1, 1911, no Director of any railroad or water carrier corporation shall be a Director in a competing line.

Any attempted acquisition by purchase or lease of a competing line is declared void, and may be enjoined by any court of jurisdiction. Appeals from the provision of this section may be made to the Commerce Court, which shall determine whether or not the proposed merger or lease shall be allowed, and pending this decision there shall be no acquisition. The right of application to the Commerce Court, however, does not apply to any railroad now holding stock in any other railroad corporation in violation of the proposed law, which holding is the subject of or in any way involved in a suit or action now pending.

The bill also forbids the issue of any stocks or bonds except for legitimate purposes and at prices to be fixed by the Inter-State Commerce Commission, and forbids any issue of stocks or bonds except on application to and approval by the commission. This provision does not contemplate the impairment of the validity or pledge of capital stock, certificate, bond, or other evidences of indebtedness already pledged.

Upon application to and certificate by the Inter-State Commerce Commission new and reorganized railroad corporations may issue stock up to the fair estimated value of the property of the corporation or corporations.

The Inter-State Commerce Commission receives authority to begin at any time and of its own volition an investigation of what may be believed to be a violation of any of the provisions of the new railroad law and to estop by order the enforcement of unlawful rates or discriminations.

The commission is also authorized to exercise jurisdiction over all rates and to determine and prescribe individual joint rates and classifications.

Another radical change is an amendment giving to shippers the right to issue routine instructions to railroads which prescribed routing must be followed by the transporting lines.

The free transportation clause of the old law was so amended as to permit the issuance of passes to caretakers of milk trains, but the committee declined to accept an amendment permitting the exchange of transportation for newspaper advertising.

Chairman Mann said he was unable to say when the measure would be brought up on the floor of the House, and whether or not there will be a caucus on it is yet uncertain.

"The bill speaks for itself," said Mr. Mann. "In addition to the creation of a commerce court it contains important provisions which add to the powers of the Inter-State Commerce Commission over the regulations, practices, and rights of railways, and decidedly strengthens the means adopted by the Government for the regulation of the railroads."

Many of the amendments to the bill were drawn in entirety from the bill introduced early in the session by Chairman Mann, who can see no necessity for a commerce court, and whose views differ materially from the Administration views on railroad legislation.

PUGILIST "MY DEARS" A JUDGE

A Pleasant Little Meeting of the Bench and Mr. Johnson.

"Jack" Johnson, the negro heavyweight pugilist, was finally admitted to bail yesterday, and the Criminal Courts Building subsided to its habitual calm, after two days of great prestige. Yesterday's excitement began when Judge Mulqueen was sentencing a row of prisoners at the bar. The judicial eye was caught and held by a dark spot in the rear of the room.

"Why, if it isn't Mr. Johnson," said Judge Mulqueen, beaming kindly toward the man who had brought him such pleasant notoriety the day before.

Johnson forged his way to the bar. He had discarded the natty suit of gray of Wednesday for one of quiet though impressive black, but the diamonds still gleamed in their dusky setting. He had also discarded his lawyer, preferring to conduct his own case.

"My dear Judge," he addressed the bench.

Judge Mulqueen appeared immensely set up.

The question as to whether or not Johnson was responsible for the disappearance of the witnesses whom the State wants to testify against him was revived, Johnson assuring every one that he knew nothing of the matter, was anxious for trial, would come on at any time, and please could he go now. He could, but not before Judge Mulqueen delivered a parting shot.

"You may be a strong man, but not strong enough to overcome the law," he said. [Titters from two jurors, one reporter, and the court stenographer.]

Johnson then volunteered that one of the witnesses of the match between himself and little Norman Pinder was sick in her room in West Thirty-fifth Street.

"I don't know her name," he whispered to Assistant District Attorney Delehanty. "We calls her Redhead."

The five-thousand-dollar bond was furnished by Mrs. Hannah Walker, a negress who manages a hotel in West 135th Street. Johnson left the building for the Grand Central Station, going by way of the City Chamberlain's office to collect the $1,500 cash bail he deposited when first arraigned.

Within an hour he was on his way to Chicago, where he is to meet "Jack" Gleason, one of the promoters of the Jeffries-Johnson fight, this morning.

GRANBY STOCK GOES DOWN TO 52

Drops Rapidly After the Report That Only Copper Enough for Four Years Is in Sight.

THE STOCKHOLDERS ANGRY

Completed the Purchase of New Stock at $85 a Share Only a Few Days Before Report Was Issued.

The surprise of stockholders in the Granby Consolidated Mining, Smelting & Power Company, Ltd., at the announcement from President Langeloth on Wednesday that a recent inspection showed only 6,000,000 tons of ore in sight, or less than four years' supply at the increased rate of smelter capacity, instead of the "ore in sight for many years to come," as announced in last year's report, crystallized into sharp criticism of the management yesterday and brought many demands from stockholders for an explanation.

Meanwhile the stock which in January sold up to 112 dropped to 50 in the Boston market yesterday and closed at 52. The indignation of the stockholders is all the sharper because only a few days prior to the statement about the small quantity of ore available, the stockholders had completed payment of $85 a share for $1,350,000 additional stock to which they were allowed to subscribe to the extent of 10 per cent. of their holdings. It was learned yesterday that some 13,000 shares of the 13,500 offered had been taken up by the stockholders, leaving only something like $42,500 worth at the $85 rate to be taken up by the syndicate which underwrote the issue. It was said at the office of the company as an evidence of the good faith of those in control of the company and their ignorance of the conditions at the mine that the underwriting syndicate was made up entirely of the Directors of the company.

The Granby mine has always been looked upon in Wall Street as a first-class property, the management of which was above reproach. J. J. Hill has been credited with being interested in it, and until a year ago George F. Baker, Jr., Vice President of the First National Bank, was one of the Directors. The present board contains President William A. Nash of the Corn Exchange Bank, Payne Whitney, H. L. Higginson of Boston, Arthur C. James, President of Phelps, Dodge & Co.; Edwin Thorne of the Northern Securities Company, William H. Nichols, Chairman of the General Chemical Company; George Crawford Clark of Clark, Dodge & Co., and B. Hochschild and J. Langeloth of the American Metals Company.

It was said at the offices of the company yesterday that no further information of the company's condition could be presented to stockholders until the Directors' meeting on April 5, when the report of President Langeloth, Director George Crawford Clark, Jr., and Otto Sussman, the mining engineer, who accompanied them, is submitted. This report has not yet been formulated, Secretary Northrup Fowler explained yesterday, and the statement given out simply represented the opinion of the party which made the inspection.

Jay P. Graves, Vice President and General Manager of the company, who has been for many years in full charge of operations, was not present at the property when the inspection was made. He is at present in California, and has been sent for to explain to the Directors at their meeting next month the discrepancies between the optimistic statements in the annual report and the conditions found by the inspection party. Mr. Graves up to a short time ago at least was one of the largest stockholders in the company.

It was said on behalf of the New York officers of the company yesterday that the report that only 6,000,000 tons of ore were in sight came out of a clear sky, and that the Directors of the company were as much in ignorance as any of the other stockholders of any overstatements in last year's report, such as are indicated by the statement of President Langeloth.

The last report of the company for the fiscal year ended June 30 was dated Sept. 9, 1909, and contained the statement over the signature of A. B. W. Hodges, the local manager, that "work was confined to developing known ore bodies and finding new ones with the diamond drill, which drilled over 8,000 feet of holes in the year, and our ore reserves are largely increased, and we have ore in sight for many years to come."

Mr. Hodges recently resigned from the company to take charge of the Morgan-Haggin mines at Cerro de Pasco, in Peru, at a salary of $50,000 a year. He was in New York yesterday, but could not be found last night.

DOUBLES HAVRE SAILINGS.

French Line Adds New Ships and Will Run a Bi-weekly Schedule.

The French Line announced yesterday through Paul Faguet, general agent of the line, a reorganization of the New York-to-Havre service. The acquisition of new steamships will soon make it possible to maintain bi-weekly sailings from both sides of the Atlantic. The company has just purchased the 16,000-ton twin-screw steamship Corse from the Chargeurs Réunis, a French corporation, which has for years maintained a round-the-world freight service. The Corse has been renamed the Niagara. She leaves Havre Saturday for this port.

Options have been obtained on the Ceylan, Malte, and Guessant, sister ships of the Corse, and it is expected they will soon be in the French Line service.

Recently the Chargeurs Réunis added six large, modern steamships to its fleet with the purpose of starting a passenger service. It was found that the passenger service would not be profitable, and the idea was abandoned.

On the new vessels only one class of cabin passengers will be carried. The new ships can carry 12,000 tons of cargo, and maintain an average speed of 15 knots an hour. The Niagara will sail from here on Saturday, April 16.

OPPOSE ANTI-PLUMAGE BILLS.

Milliners Say Such Laws Threaten Feather Workers—Fight Expected.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., March 24.—There will be some radical changes in the styles in women's hats in New Jersey if the Senate passes and the Governor signs the Radcliffs bill put through the Legislature last evening. The bill comes from the Audubon Society.

It is an amendment to the Fish and Game act, and provides that no person shall purchase, offer, or expose for sale any wild bird after it has been killed or caught, and no part of the plumage, skin, or body of any bird protected by this section shall be sold or had in possession for sale. The bill does not apply to the feathers of birds of paradise, ostriches, domestic fowl, or domestic pigeons. Any person violating the proposed law shall be subject to a fine of $20 for each offense.

It is expected that lively opposition to the bill will appear in the Senate, and it is possible that it will not get through that body. It is know that the millinery interests are opposed to it, and many women are expected to resent this effort on the part of lawmakers to curtail their adornment.

Samuel Meyer of the firm of Berlinger, Brown & Meyer, importers and manufacturers of feathers and birds for women's hats, told a reporter yesterday that the adoption of such a bill as that proposed in New Jersey would ruin hundreds of firms and throw thousands of women out of employment.

"We have two organizations," said Mr. Meyer, "the Eastern Millinery Association and the National Fancy Feathers Association, which have been fighting similar bills all over the country. We defeated a bill in San Francisco, and ten days ago a bill was killed at Albany by ex-Attorney General Mayer, who represented the two organizations."

William Dutcher, President of the National Association of Audubon Societies, said yesterday that the bill introduced in New Jersey did not make it a misdemeanor for women to wear fathers, wings, or the bodies of birds for personal adornment. The bill introduced by the Audubon Society will prohibit the sale of the plumage of wild birds for millinery ornaments.

"The Audubon Society does not now nor has it ever attempted to interfere with the personal liberty of women," he declared. "It has confined itself to educating them to the horrors of bird slaughter for millinery use."

ALBANY BILL REPORTED.

Shea Measure Affecting Sale of Plumage Before the Assembly.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 24.—Representatives of the Audubon Society who have been in Albany for the last few days in the interest of the bill of Assemblyman Shea affecting the sale of aigrettes in this State, were much pleased to-day when the Assembly Committee on Forest, Fish, and Game unanimously reported the bill. They believe the sentiment in the Legislature is strong enough to procure its passage.

The Shea bill intensifies present provisions by declaring that no "birds coming from without the State, whether belonging to the same or a different species from that native to the State of New York, provided such birds belong to the same family as those protected by this chapter," shall be sold or had in possession for sale. The bill defines plumage thus;

> Plumage includes any part of the feathers, head, wings, or tail of any bird, and whenever the word occurs in this chapter reference is had equally to plumage of birds coming from without the State, but it shall not be construed to apply to the feathers of birds of paradise, ostriches, domestic fowl, or domestic pigeons.

The only wild birds not protected are the English sparrow, crowhawk, crow blackbird, snow owl, great horned owl, and kingfisher.

MRS. F. H. LEGGETT REFUTES CLAUSEN

Denies Sale of Her Paintings to Art Dealer, Who Returned an Inness Copy for Original.

DAWSON TALE IN DISPUTE

Artist Beers and Other Expert Witnesses Declare the Alleged Homer Martins Were Never 'Transferred.'

In an effort to finish the trial of the suit of William Evans, the art collector, against William Clausen, the art dealer, for the purchase price of two alleged paintings by Homer D. Martin, Supreme Court Justice Page and the jury yesterday held two sessions, day and night, to hear testimony in rebuttal. To-day being Good Friday, there will be no hearing in the case.

The testimony in rebuttal electrified the hearers. Mrs. Bess McLeod Leggett, widow of Francis H. Leggett, the grocer, took the stand to deny the story told by Dealer Clausen on the stand on Tuesday, in which he said that Mr. Leggett had a copy made of his Wyant and returned to his house as a "lesson to his wife."

"We bought the Harper house on Madison Avenue in 1902," Mrs. Leggett testified, "and all the art objects in it. There were seventeen paintings in the collection. A few months afterward Mr. Leggett and I decided we should like to know how much we had paid for the house and how much for the art objects, as we had paid a lump sum for both. I sent for Mr. Clausen to come to estimate the value of the art objects. He saw them and asked permission to take them to his gallery to appraise them at his leisure. He sent for his wagon and took the pictures away.

"There was nothing ever said about his buying the pictures. I have brought with me a check for $200 which he paid for the marble statuary in the collection.

"The first I knew of the copy that had been made of the Wyant was one day when my husband came in very much amazed and said:

"'I understand that Clausen had a copy made of our Wyant and sent us the copy.'"

Her Denial Unbroken.

On cross-examination, Mr. Eisner asked Mrs. Leggett:

"Did you sell your husband's black-and-whites, his engravings?"

"Yes."

Q.—Without his knowledge? A.—Yes.

Q.—Without his permission? A.—Yes.

Q.—On the same day Mr. Clausen got the paintings? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you get them back? A.—No.

Q.—Did you have a disagreement with your husband over selling his engravings? A.—No.

Mr. Eisner was unable to shake Mrs. Leggett's positive statement that she had not sold the paintings, as Mr. Clausen had testified.

Henry W. Ranger, the artist, whom Clausen had accused of trying to blackmail him of $1,000 to "square him with the boys," was also a witness in rebuttal. He said that he was making $30,000 a year at the time and was far behind his orders for pictures.

A letter from Mrs. Wyant, widow of the painter, addressed to Mr. Evans in 1900, was introduced in evidence. It stated that Mrs. Wyant would be glad to sign paintings left unsigned by her husband. Clausen had testified that Mrs. Wyant had signed the pictures reluctantly under pressure from Evans and with tears in her eyes.

Formula for Transferring Pictures.

William Beers, an expert restorer of paintings, called as a witness by the plaintiff at the day session, in rebuttal of the testimony of Arthur Dawson, said at the beginning that he had no professional secrets which he was unwilling to reveal on the stand.

A number of pencils were taken out by auditors in the court room when Beers gave his formula of the paste he used in fastening the removed paint of a transferred picture to the new canvas. The formula was:

> Three quarts of flour paste, one pint of prepared glue, one-half pint Venice turpentine, and two speenfuls of fine whiting.

Beers said he used a composition of glue and putty to fill cracks in transferred paintings. Then he said he painted over the cracks in the general style of the painting.

Mr. Beers gave it as his expert opinion that the painting "Near Newport," alleged to be by Martin and which Arthur Dawson testified he transferred, was still on its original canvas. He said the same of the alleged Inness, "Late Afternoon at Medfield," which Dawson claimed to have transferred. The two paintings were in court, with several others.

Justice Page, who was presiding at the trial, asked:

"Would it be possible to transfer a painting without removing it from the stretcher?"

"No, positively not," responded the witness.

Mr. Beers differed with Dawson on several material points. He said it would be impossible to transfer a painting by removing from the back of the painting the preparation which had been on the original canvas. He said this had to be left on. Dawson had testified that it had to be removed. He also declared that the paintings under consideration were not sufficiently softened to indicate a transfer and the thread marks of the old canvas were not obliterated. The pictures were also too elastic to be transferred pictures.

Other Telltale Marks Lacking.

Half a ton pressure by means of screws completed the process of adhesion between a painting and the new canvas, he said. He denied that it would be possible, as Dawson had said, to transfer on to a prepared canvas, because "the preparation on the canvas would prevent the evaporation of the moisture in the adhesive." He used a warm iron to hasten the evaporation.

One of the principal things which led him to the conclusion that "Near Newport" and the "Late Afternoon" pictures had not been transferred was the condition of the margin.

The cross-examination by Jerome Eisner, counsel for Mr. Clausen, purposed to show that Mr. Beers had no personal knowledge of Arthur Dawson's processes and was testifying merely from his own experience. Mr. Eisner professed surprise at his answer that he would not consider the use of acid safe to remove the canvas from the back of a painting to be transferred because it might injure the painting. Dawson had said that certain acids would not attack the oil of the painting.

Francis P. Dillon, who qualified as an expert "transferrer" of paintings, testified at the night session. His profession is the transferring of oil paintings from old canvases to new. fied. His profession is the transferring der questioning by the plaintiff's counsel, that such work was not so wonderful as it had been made out to be by Arthur Dawson, the defendant's chief witness, and the men who testified that he had transferred the painting "Near Newport" and "Afternoon at Medfield."

The witness took each of the paintings in turn, and with the aid of magnifying glasses proceeded to demonstrate to the jury that neither of these paintings had ever been transferred.

"Both are still on the original canvases," he declared, "and 'Near Newport' has never even been retouched."

A rigid cross-examination by Lawyer Max Eisner failed to shake the witness from his position.

Humphreys Averse to Clausen.

Prof. A. C. Humphreys, President of Stevens Institute, testified that never at any time after Clausen had taken back the painting purchased of him did he, the witness, have any dealings with Clausen.

"But you went to Clausen's galleries after that, did you not?" asked Mr. Eisner.

"Yes," replied the witness, "on the stipulation that Mr. Clausen should not be there."

"Did you also go with Mrs. Humphreys?"

"Yes."

"Clausen was there that time, was he not?"

"He was there once."

Prof. Humphreys admitted, in answer to further questions, that Clausen might have been in the galleries two or three times when he, the witness, was there after these pictures were returned, and Clausen had signed the statement expressing doubt as to their authenticity. The visits to Clausen's galleries by Prof. Humphreys were for the purpose of selecting the paintings to be given by Clausen in exchange for the paintings Prof. Humphreys rejected.

James Cantwell, who said he was an artist and had lived in Syracuse, N. Y., for fifty-odd years, declared that the only William T. Hamilton he knew in that city had never possessed a Homer D. Martin, although he had a fine collection of paintings.

The witness testified that the William T. Hamilton he knew died in 1903. Clausen contends that he purchased the painting, "Old Mill Near St. Cloud," from William T. Hamilton of Syracuse. This is one of the paintings sold to Evans which is called bogus by the purchaser.

William Pabst, cashier of the Second National Bank of this city, brought with him transcripts of Clausen's account with that bank during the years 1903, 1904, and 1905, which were introduced in evidence. He was shown the check Clausen swore he gave to Andrew Chittenden in payment for the painting "Near Newport," and which bears, in addition to Clausen's indorsement, the indorsement of Andrew Chittenden.

"Is there anything to show that the second indorsement was placed on the check after it was paid?" asked Mr. Lawrence.

"No," replied the witness.

"If it had been presented by Mr. Clausen himself with only his indorsement on the back it would have been paid would it not?"

"Certainly. It was made payable to William Clausen or order."

The witness said that the check had not gone from his bank to the New York Clearing House, although it bore a stamp indicating it had. On cross-examination he admitted that the placing of this stamp on the check had been done at the Second National, and was evidently an error. He also said that if Andrew Chittenden had presented the check, and had been properly identified the $1,000 would have been paid to him after he had indorsed it.

Clausen Under Fire Again.

The cross-examination of William Clausen, the defendant, was completed earlier in the day. Judge Hatch, counsel for Mr. Evans, reintroduced the paintings "Normandie Bridge" and others which Clausen had sold to President A. C. Humphreys of Stevens Institute and which he had taken back.

Q.—Did you believe the paintings were genuine? A.—I certainly did.

Q.—What made you believe they were genuine? A.—My own opinion and the opinion of experts.

Q.—Didn't you get any other evidence? A.—I didn't need any.

The witness was shown a statement he had signed after an interview with President Humphreys and Howard White, his attorney. It contained an admission that there was doubt as to the authenticity of the paintings.

Q.—Did you write that? A.—Yes, I wrote it at dictation.

Q.—Did you say in that that Prof. Humphreys could destroy the "Normandie Bridge" and the other pictures after you gave him others in exchange? A.—I don't remember saying any such thing. I think I asked him not to destroy them.

Q.—Is it not a fact that after that Prof. Humphreys refused to meet you or speak to you again? A.—It is not. Prof. Humphreys and his wife called at my place of business several times after that.

The circumstances under which Otto Karsch, a former employe of Clausen, left his service were next made the subject of inquiry.

Q.—Did you discharge Karsch? A.—I partly discharged him and he partly discharged himself.

Q.—How was that? A.—One day I said to him: "Otto, you are acting like a loafer." He said to me: "If you call me a loafer I'll quit." I said: "I did not call you a loafer, I said you are acting like one, but if you put it that way I'll say you are a loafer." Then he said, "I'll quit."

Q.—Yes. What next? A.—He cried and begged me to take him back. I said: "Otto, you have discharged yourself, I will not take you back."

Q.—Did you give him a letter of recommendation? A.—Yes, after he had cried and begged for it.

"The last thing he said to me," continued Clausen, "was: 'I'll get square with you.'"

PURIM OBSERVED TO-DAY.

Jews Celebrate Their Deliverance by Queen Esther.

The celebration of the Jewish feast of Purim began at sunset last evening, and will continue until sunset this evening. It is primarily a joyous celebration, and is entirely secular in tone, consisting of merrymaking and feasting, of making gifts to friends and relatives, and the giving of "shalachmonos," or gifts, to the poor is especially enjoined.

The feast of Purim was established to commemorate the deliverance of the people of Israel from the machinations of Haman, the Prime Minister of King Ahasuerus of Persia, who sought to destroy the entire population of Jews in that kingdom through jealousy of Mordecai, who was a prominent and much-respected member of the Jewish community. The plans for the destruction of the Jews conceived by Haman, the Prime Minister, or Grand Vizier, of Persia, were frustrated by Queen Esther, a Jewess, and the niece of Mordecai. The whole story is contained in the Book of Esther, and the only religious element in the celebration of the feast was the reading of the "Megillah," the Book of Esther, in the synagogues of the Orthodox Jews last night and again this morning.

It was in gratitude for this miraculous deliverance that the feast of Purim was established. It is still held in reverence by the Orthodox Jews.

POLICE EXCISEMEN TO KEEP ON RAIDING

One Says So, When Their Trial Is Postponed Against the Will of Both.

SENSATION IN COURTROOM

Suspended Patrolmen Warned That They're Still Members of the Force —Badly Advised, Says Baker.

Policeman Charles F. Cunningham, who with Policeman Keenan has been going excise crusading on his own account and is now under charges for it, made Deputy Police Commissioner Walsh gasp yesterday morning when in asking for a postponement of his trial until next Tuesday instead of next Monday he gave as a reason that he would be busy enforcing the excise law next Sunday, and that as a result he would no doubt be busy the next morning in the Magistrates' courts seeing that his prospective prisoners were properly arraigned.

With Keenan, Cunningham was to have gone on trial yesterday to answer twelve charges, all of them the outgrowth of his activity in excise law enforcement. Keenan will have even more to explain than Cunningham, there being eighteen specifications in the charges which Chief Inspector Schmittberger has preferred against him. Cunningham, when he told Deputy Commissioner Walsh that he expected to be busy next Sunday, added that Keenan, who has been his side partner in his excise raids, would again accompany him.

The cases of Keenan and Cunningham were called at 10 A. M. yesterday, but as soon as the charges had been read Mr. Walsh announced a postponement until Monday morning. Mr. Walsh also remarked that the old charges, in which the specifications were few in number, had been dropped and that new charges, with many additional specifications, had been drawn up and served on the two policemen, both of whom are now under suspension. Therefore, said Mr. Walsh, the men were entitled to more time in which to prepare their cases.

John Satora, counsel for both men, rose immediately and said that neither Keenan nor Cunningham wanted any more time for preparation and that both were ready to go on immediately. Mr. Walsh replied that a number of witnesses needed in the case were not present, so he would postpone the case anyway until Monday.

Cunningham leaned over to Mr. Satora, and, after whispering a few words to him, got up, and looking the Deputy Commissioner squarely in the face, said:

"Mr. Commissioner, Monday is not convenient for me. We [Keenan and himself] expect to go right out next Sunday and do what we have been doing, that is, enforce the excise law. As a result, Keenan and I will probably have to appear in a number of Mgaistrates' Courts next Monday morning, to look after our cases, and it is probable that we cannot conveniently be here at that time."

In the courtroom a pin could have been heard to drop.

"Cunningham," said Commissioner Walsh, after he recovered, "you are still an officer and attached to the Police Department and are amenable to all police rules and regulations, so I direct you to conduct your affairs so that you can be in this courtroom next Monday morning at 10 o'clock."

Cunningham attempted to reply, but before he could do so the Deputy Commissioner stopped him.

"I will hear nothing more from you," the Commissioner said, "you must be here at the time stated on Monday. Do you understand that?"

"Yes, Sir," Cunningham answered in a clear voice.

The charge against Cunningham and Keenan now involve financial transactions in which saloon keepers in the Bronx figure as lenders. Cunningham is charged with borrowing money from a saloon keeper on Jan. 10. Keenan is charged with the same offense twice last September, once each in October and December last, and again on Feb. 10 last.

The second charge, if true, would indicate that in the latter part of last January Cunningham was not so anxious as at present to enforce the Excise law. The charge is that he entered a saloon on Jan. 30, in uniform, purchased a drink of whisky, and failed to make an arrest for the violation. Keenan will have to answer a similar charge for Jan. 23, and also for Jan. 30. In neither of these cases, it is alleged, did he make an arrest after discovering the violation. The charges also include the alleged agreement as a result of which the men started their crusade.

The witnesses against the two men are Police Inspectors John F. Flood and W. G. Flood and Capts. John F. Tappin, H. W. Schlottman, William F. Day, Dennis Brennan, and John McCauley; City Magistrate Breen, four police Lieutenants, a number of court attachés, and a dozen or more Bronx saloon keepers and bartenders. The accused men will also have witnesses, including, it is said, one policeman.

After the case had been adjourend Commissioner Baker was informed of what had happened in the trialroom.

"Well, I suppose they can make arrests," he said, "as private citizens, but I don't think they will meet with the same success as formerly."

The Commissioner was asked if he would transfer the two policemen to some remote precinct, and hold them there pending further orders.

"No," he replied, "let us wait and see what they will do. I think they have been badly advised."

Commissioner Baker was also asked if he had heard of a rumor to the effect that the men wanted to be dismissed from the force so that they could collect $3,000 from the benevolent organizations in the department, which, it is said, would contribute a certain sum to all dismissed policemen. He said he had heard such a rumor, but knew of no basis for it.

Neither Keenan nor Cunningham would discuss their cases beyond stating that they were ready for trial. They left Police Headquarters together with Mr. Satora, their lawyer.

BAKER WANTS IMPROVEMENTS

$7,500 More to be Spent on the New Police Headquarters.

The most interesting part of the session of the corporate stock budget committee of the Board of Estimate yesterday was that devoted to the Police Department. Commissioner Baker appeared in person to explain his request for $10,000 to pay for alterations and improvements in the new headquarters. There was a $2,500 item for the Bertillon measuring room and the Rogues' Gallery photographers' room.

"I guess you might just as well strike that out," said the Commissioner with a smile. "We are not as active in these rooms as we used to be."

He was asked to go into details on an item of $3,500 for improving the heating system in the new building. "That doesn't apply to my office," he replied. "I don't need any artificial heat at my end of the building. It's warm enough there now."

The Commissioner said that several new stations should be built right away, three in Manhattan, one in Brooklyn and one at Richmond Hill.

Health Commissioner Lederle appeared to advocate the appropriation of money for the erection of a pavillion for the care of measles cases in Manhattan. All such patients now have to be taken to the pavilion in Kingston Avenue, Brooklyn.

Speeding Chauffeur Fined $100.

James J. Dunn of 168 West Sixty-fifth Street, for his first offense as a speeding chauffeur, was fined $100 in Special Sessions yesterday, with an alternative of twenty days in jail. This is the maximum penalty. On March 7 he was driving James J. O'Brien to his home at Eighty-ninth Street and Central Park West. Two bicycle policemen swore he was going at forty mines an hour.

SIX MORE GRAFTERS MAKE CONFESSIONS

Cochrane Alone, His Explanation Unsatisfactory, Fails to Receive Immunity Bath.

FOR NEW CITY GOVERNMENT

Disclosures Start Agitation for Rule by Commission Which Has Succeeded in Galveston.

PITTSBURG, March 24.—The immunity process instituted by District Attorney Blakeley, was extended to-day another 24 hours, and six men appeared before Judge Frazer to take advantage of the promised suspended sentence. Robert H. Cochrane, an ex-Councilman, alone failed to receive the coveted whitewashing. His case was taken under consideration by the court.

"Bribe givers are barred," said the District Attorney in announcing the extension of the immunity time. No confession will help these men, he insisted.

Out of the present exposure a political upheaval is predicted. Agitation has been started already for the formation of a Commission Government such as has proved a success in Galveston, Texas, in other Western cities, and now is in partial usage in Boston, Mass.

The Grand Jury adjourned at 8 o'clock to-night without handing down expected presentments. The delay is attributed to the dissatisfaction of the District Attorney over some of the statements made, which, if accepted, it is said, will exonerate several prominent men now under suspicion, placing the responsibility upon "a dead man's shoulders."

The confessions of the six men before Judge Frazer were accompanied by sensations. The climax came when George B. Anderson, an ex-Select Councilman, fainted as the court asked him if he had ever received money for his vote. Before the Judge could finish his question Anderson fell backward, striking his head forcibly on the hard wood floor of the courtroom. Attendants and attorneys rushed to his aid, and when he revived he answered the question as though there had been no interruption.

Cochrane admitted receiving $600 to vote for the bank depository ordinance and $500 for the ordinance vacating South Seventh Street. His admissions startled Judge Frazer, woh wanted to know how it came that he received so much for voting for these measures while other Councilmen received much less. Cochrane was unable to make a satisfactory explanation. He insisted that he had distributed none of the money. Judge Frazer reminded Cochrane that this was a serious matter and he would have to take the case under consideration. Cochrane left the courtroom a disappointed man.

William Brand, ex-President of Common Council, whose statement to the District Attorney was so unsatisfactory, was sent to the penitentiary to-day to begin serving the eighteen months' sentence for bribery on which he was convicted some months ago. District Attorney Blakeley insists that Brand did not tell the whole truth, and that he was shielding some one. The District Attorney had the names of the persons he charged Brand with shielding, but Brand would not give up the desired information. Wasson's and Klein's confessions, however, cover these points according to the County Prosecutor.

Ex-Councilman John Taylor, who was implicated in the graft scandal by Dr. W. H. Weber in his confession, brought suit against Weber to-day for $25,000 damages. Taylor has made a public denial, and says Weber's statement is untrue.

WOULD BAR COLORED JUROR.

Supreme Court Justice Ford Scores Objector as Unfit for Jury Service.

Le Roy Bowers of 463 West 153d Street obtained exemption from jury duty yesterday for the remainder of the present Supreme Court term by protesting to Justice Ford against serving on a jury with Walter E. Douglas, a negro.

"I am a Southerner," declared Bowers. "All my training, education, and instincts are against associating with negroes. I therefore beg to be excused from serving in this case."

"You are unfit for jury service in this case or in this court," said Justice Ford. "You are not only excused from this case, but for the rest of the term."

THE CASE OF BERNARD LISER.

Times Readers Send More Money to Family for Which He Gave His Life.

THE TIMES received yesterday these additional contributions for the family of Bernard Liser of 541 West 133d Street, who sold his blood to keep his family from starving and later, in a weakened condition, fell from a scaffold and was killed: "F. G.," $5; "H. N.," $1; "W. H. W., Jr.," $10; S. P. Sewing Society, New Haven, Conn., $7; "Mrs. H. H.," $3; "Brooklyniter," $1; "Anonym," $1; A. Tauber, $10; "With Widow's Blessings," $1.

PAPER STRIKE CAUSES RIOT.

200 Men Attack Mill Guards, Who Discharge Revolvers to Disperse Them.

LIVERMORE FALLS, Me., March 24.—Angered because of the arrival of additional strikebreakers at the International Paper Company works here 200 strike sympathizers made an attack on the men guarding the works late to-day. There was much stone throwing, and the guards were forced to discharge their revolvers over the heads of the disturbers. No one was injured seriously.

RUMFORD FALLS, Me., March 24.—George J. Schneider, Vice President of the International Brotherhood of Paper Makers, who was "deported" last Tuesday morning from the town because of his activity as a union organizer, and returned here yesterday, had a long conference with the Assessors of the Village Corporation to-night. The Assessors inquired why he wanted police protection, if he was engaged in legitimate business.

Mr. Schneider said afterward he believed he had convinced the Assessors that his mission in the town was perfectly legitimate, and that they had promised him continued police protection.

FRANKLIN, N. H., March 24.—A strike to go into effect immediately at the works of the International Paper Company here was ordered by a vote of the local union of Pulp, Sulphite, and Paper Mill Workers at a meeting to-night. According to John H. Malin, President of the National organibation, all the sixty-one members of teh local unions in attendance voted in favor of the strike. The local mills employ 200 hands.

SYMPATHY STRIKERS GO BACK.

General Strike in Philadelphia Now May Be Called Off Officially.

PHILADELPHIA, March 24.—The disintegration of the general sympathetic strike called to aid the trolley men of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company continued to-day, and it was announced that a general meeting of union men will be held at the Central Labor Union headquarters next Sunday to consider the advisability of calling off the strike, and calling upon all union workmen to give the striking carmen financial support.

Hundreds of mill hands employed in the textile industries returned to work, and building operations, which were tied up by the general walkout, were resumed in many parts of the city.

Returning from a riot call to-day a patrol wagon was badly damaged by dynamite which exploded under the vehicle. Seven policemen were thrown to the street and cut and bruised. It is believed the dynamite was placed on the track by strike sympathizers to damage a car, and that the patrol wagon figured in the explosion accidentally.

The traction company continues to increase its car service. All its lines are now in operation, though the service is limited in some sections.

N. Y. CENTRAL UNRESPONSIVE.

Railroad Officials Have Not Yet Replied to Trainmen's Ultimatum.

The officials of the New York Central Railroad were not ready yesterday to reply to the ultimatum of the trainmen and conductors that nothing less than the wages the Baltimore & Ohio trainmen and conductors are to receive would be acceptable to the men.

Assistant Supt. Crowley last evening would not say whether the road would pay what the Baltimore & Ohio people were paying. The conference with the firemen, who demand increases in wages ranging from 10 to 35 per cent., would be held as soon as the conferences with the trainmen and conductors are over, he added.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, which has made the demands on behalf of the firemen, is the strongest of the railroad organizations because it controls at least 40 per cent. of the engineers on the locomotives as well as all the locomotive firemen.

WESTERN ROADS COMPROMISE

Firemen's Demands for a 12½ Per Cent. Increase Will Be Arbitrated.

CHICAGO, March 24.—Terms of agreement in the Federal mediation of the controversy between the 27,000 firemen on Western railroads and the railroad managers were reached at an early hour this morning. The agreement was a compromise, except on the demands of the firemen for a 12½ per cent. increase in pay, which will be arbitrated under the Erdman act.

The terms were agreed to by W. C. Nixon, General Manager of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad, on behalf of the Managers' Committee, and by W. S. Carter, President of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

MEN REJECT ROAD'S TERMS.

But Mellen Makes Concessions in New Haven Wage Dispute.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 24.—The propositions submitted to the Conference Committee of the trainmen and conductors of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad by General Manager Samuel Higgins in answer to the demands of the men for an increase in wages, have been rejected.

The decision was made known to President Mellen, and it is understood that he made two or three concessions satisfactory to the men, and another meeting will be held next week.

YOUNG TYSON IS HARD TO FIND

Former Chauffeur Unable to Serve Him with Papers in $25,000 Damage Suit.

Daniel Rohrer, formerly chauffeur of J. H. Tyson, the automobile speeder of Stamford, Conn., will press a suit for $25,000 damages against his former employer, in spite of the fact that for about two years detectives and Deputy Sheriffs have not been able to catch up with the young man to serve him with legal papers. Patrick J. Rooney, Rohrer's lawyer, of 160 Broadway, made a motion yesterday for the issuance of depositions in the case, which is expected to go to trial in a few weeks.

On the night of Sept. 2, 1907, young Tyson decided that he would make a swift trip from the Riverside Yacht Club, near Stamford, Conn., to the Larchmont Yacht Club. With a party in his auto he set out at a rapid rate. Rohrer was installed in a rear seat and Tyson drove the car himself. In Greenwich, Conn., the car ran into a telegraph pole. Rohrer, hurled through the air, hit the pole, and, he alleges, was internally injured.

He was taken care of by Mr. Tyson, resuming his work as chauffeur. After five or six months he left his employ, and early in 1908 brought the suit for $25,000 damages, alleging that the injuries he had sustained had caused his heart to become twice as large as it had been, and had so impaired his health that he could do only the lightest work, and suffered great pain and anguish.

Rooney was able to serve the papers on Mr. Tyson acquainting him of the suit, but since that time he has not been captured. The plaintiff wanted to examine him as a witness, but he did not appear in court. He was called to answer contempt proceedings; again he could not be found. He was called to show cause why he should not be fined; he could not be located. Nor has he been located since.

Once or twice since his speeding has got him in trouble, and days were set for his appearance to give bail or make answer to those charges, but when others having papers for him appeared in the District Attorney's office to serve him they found he had attended to his business before they got there.

He is now supposed to be in Florida, and the case will go on without him in a few weeks if he does not appear, said Mr. Rooney yesterday. Rohrer now is a night watchman.

SHERWOOD CAN'T GET BAIL.

Broker Involved in Windsor Trust Theft Spends the Night in a Cell.

John F. Sherwood, the broker who disappeared from this city last February after charges had been filed against him in connection with a Wall Street stock deal, returned yesterday from Boston in charge of Police Lieutenant Fitzsimmons. He was taken at once before Magistrate Cornell, in the Tombs Court, and was held under $10,000 bonds for examination on Tuesday. Although the stocks he is alleged to have taken from the Windsor Trust Company on Aug. 2 last were worth $120,000, he was not able to furnish bail, and spent the night in the Tombs.

Stays Sale of Westminster Church.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, Justice Scott writing the opinion, in which all concur, yesterday affirmed an order of the lower court confirming the referee's report in a proceeding to sell the Westminster Presbyterian Church property in West Twenty-third Street. "We are of opinion," the decision says, "that the court should not give its assent to a sale while claims now pending remain undetermined, but that the proceedings should be stayed or suspended."

1887 Brill Clothes—Ready to Wear 1910

Since you must buy a Spring Suit, and, perhaps, a Spring Overcoat, there are two reasons why you should buy now; and why it should be

A BRILL TWENTY.

The first is that every suit and overcoat so styled has earned that distinction by its ability to excel in quality and service the general run of men's and young men's suits and overcoats, ready-to-wear, at $20. The second reason is that, no matter how self-satisfied a man is he is sensitive to the critical glances of Easter. Self-approval and the desire to merit the approval of others are satisfied in the Brill Twenty.

Spring Suits and Overcoats for men, $12 to $35
For young men and boys, $10 to $30

SNUG-AN-EZY SHOES the new idea
OPENING TOMORROW

Foot comfort does not mean poor style or ungainly shoes
——not now
——not since the Snug-an-Ezy Patent Last was invented.
Before that, when you bought a ready-made shoe, comfort meant clumsiness—and an attempt at style brought aching feet.
The Snug-an-Ezy Shoes give foot ease such as you never have enjoyed, and at the same time the latest fashion ——it is all in the patent last.
It's the only last that leaves the shoe snug in the arch to hold the foot firm—and easy across the toes and toe joints where comfort is needed.
——and the foot, being held firm at the instep, cannot slip down to be chafed in the forepart of the shoe. No other arch support is needed.
Snug-an-Ezy Shoes follow the lines of the foot.
That is why they have the correct, narrow, clean-cut lines of custom shoes—and also absolute foot freedom.
Snug-an-Ezy Shoes follow fashions—but not fads
——they are the shapes you see on truly well dressed people
——not extremes, that are never in good taste.
They are the shoes for men and women of nice discrimination—and modest pocketbooks. And those with larger means can find no better shoes at any store.
The prices are not cheap—but reasonable—as low as any intelligent person can expect to pay for real comfort and service
——four to eight dollars
——they cannot be imitated or duplicated.
Made only for men and women.

THE UNITED RESERVE BANK.

Among the many papers suggesting amendments for our imperfect banking system the one read by Mr. PAUL M. WARBURG before the Finance Forum Wednesday evening deserves high rank, because of its plan for the application to American conditions of foreign practice upon approved banking principles. It is now understood that what used to be referred to proudly as the best currency system in the world is not worthy the name of system, and bears no likeness to banking in any civilized country. It used the supreme powers of the Government in a life and death struggle to force a credit, and in one way or another it played a high part in saving the Nation's life. But forced credits in times of peace are an abhorrence. Even if their expense and inconvenience can be endured, every consideration of expediency points to clearing the way for repetition of such a financial tour de force if supreme necessity should compel. Nothing could be more sure than that the National credit being over absorbed in a billion of bonds, and a half billion of fiat paper money, to say nothing of silver, that amount of credit could not be raised again in that way. All fresh forced credits would have to be in addition to those existing, and the country would be that much nearer to depreciation of credit.

That is not the ground on which Mr. WARBURG commends his plan. He urges it because of its unequaled usefulness to commerce in times of peace. Above all other nations the United States is distinguished by minor money market crises, easily and perfectly distinguishable from economic crises. Other nations have similar fluctuations in supply and demand of currency and credit, but only in the United States are they marked by all the signs of minor panics. The reason is that the United States alone finances recurrent excesses and deficiencies of currency and credit through the security markets. We mobilize capital fixed in long-term bonds, and immobilize liquid credits in short-time commercial paper. Consequently both our long and short money markets lose their distinctive character, and are falsified. Alternately our money markets are not so easy as they appear, and then again things are not so stringent as they seem when apparently nothing can avert a panic, and the storm turns out merely a squall. This comes from our blundering way of disposing of surplus credits by pouring them into the security markets, relying upon withdrawing them in cash when wanted. Railways have to supply themselves with equipment absorbing hundreds of millions of capital which they know must lie idle in the idle season, because rolling stock cannot be extemporized in the busy season. Americans in like manner know no better way of moving the crops than with a permanent supply of currency and credit, maintained at great expense in idle times, only to be inaccessible and inadequate when time of need arrives.

It is plain how turning idle resources into the security markets inflates them abnormally. It is equally clear how the withdrawal of those resources for use is as disturbing and conspicuous as possible. Not only money market experts watch our security markets. Everybody watches them. We are made a nation of security speculators against our wills. We are constantly making and unmaking security bargains to supply ourselves, or our customers if we are bankers, with cash when we or they want it, and to absorb idle funds. The cost of our credit is the cost of that operation, including a round allowance for the risk of an operation which should be no more troublesome than cashing a check. Mr. WARBURG's central idea is to dispense with that use of our security market, and to throw the burden upon the commodity markets, that is to say upon the entire volume of all commercial exchanges, represented roughly by the total of all bankers' clearings. Great as are the exchanges through the Stock Exchange they are trifling compared with the mass of all business. The larger the mass the greater the difficulty of moving it. Rarely do foreign bank rates move more than a fraction of 1 per cent. Our money rate doubles or triples itself, and sometimes reaches cent per cent. People used to a stable money market cannot reconcile such antics with solvency or sanity.

In the next place commercial credits represent liquidated bargains, while Stock Exchange operations represent differences of opinion. It is a recognized hardship to compel a man instantly to change his mind regarding the value of his property. There is no such hardship in asking a man to find cash according to his promise to do so, and therefore according to his own idea of his interests. He may make or lose money by the operation of paying his debts, but he acts as a free agent, and with notice. That is why there is no convulsion about turning commercial credits into cash, and vice versa. Finally, all this is done with comparative quiet, and without drawing unnecessary attention to the fact that it is going on. Those most interested have due notice well in advance, and nobody else is concerned.

We have given attention to the distinctive principle of Mr. WARBURG's suggestion rather than to the details. It is wholly novel here, but only here. It has the approval of long practice, and there is only prejudice against it. The details of the plan are well considered. Their close resemblance to Representative FOWLER's plan will be remarked. Doubtless the plan of utilizing the Clearing House as suggested by President NASH, and discussed by us some weeks ago, is along a path of less resistance, because more familiar. The same may be said of Mr. MORAWETZ's, and Prof. SPRAGUE's, plans to strengthen the National banking system. It is a matter of judgment whether it is preferable to repair, or to demolish and erect a modern and better banking building. But the decision ought to be made on knowledge, and not on sentiment.

PRESERVE ALL THE PARKS.

Some of the men who persistently cling to the plan to build a huge Court House in the City Hall Park argue that that open space is not, in the true sense, a park, but merely a passageway. A proposition has been made to leave the passage open by building arches under the new Court House; in short, by putting the huge structure on legs.

But the City Hall Park is a park, a misused one, to be sure, but a park which should be restored and preserved and beautified for the good of the community. The opposition to the plan proposed by the Mayor's commission is founded on the desire of the people to preserve all their parks from encroachment. There are many alternative plans for the building, and more will be forthcoming, but no other plan is quite as important now as the main object of the movement, to prevent the obliteration of a city park. Build in City Hall Park, and presently a new proposition will be made to build in another park, citing the Court House plan as a precedent.

The opposition to the preservation of existing parks for park purposes is continuous and determined. Mr. CARROLL BECKWITH still thinks Central Park looks like a country cemetery. There is a likeness. There are walks and grass and trees in a cemetery as well as in a park. There is a river in Macedon and there is a river in Monmouth. The Fluellen line of argument is admirable. But it will not prevail. The citizens of New York intend to preserve all their parks, to have them improved and beautified as far as possible, but to keep them as parks.

THE NATION'S HEALTH.

The letter of Mr. HIRAM J. MESSENGER, printed elsewhere, confirms the complaint made by Mr. LAWRENCE IRWELL of Buffalo that the statistics of mortality from the chief diseases throughout the country are chaotic and often worse than useless. Mr. MESSENGER, as Chief Actuary of a large insurance company, speaks with authority. The nomenclature of diseases differs in different cities, so that death certificates are misleading in their statements of the causes of fatal illness. The whole subject of legislation in the interest of the public health lacks scientific method, uniformity, co-operation between States, and freedom from the baneful influences of politics. Mr. IRWELL's indictment of statistical methods furnishes only another argument, Mr. MESSENGER says, in favor of setting up a rational Department of Public Health for the Nation.

According to the best statistics now obtainable, it is probable that constantly not far from 3,000,000 people in the United States are ill from preventable causes; 1,000,000 of these are in the working period of life, and the consequent loss of their productiveness represents a financial loss to the Nation of at least five hundred millions annually. This is the chief argument in favor of establishing at Washington the Department of Health. The department would act as a great central purveyor of scientific information to the people and their municipal, State, and Federal representatives. Senator OWEN has just introduced a bill for its establishment. President TAFT favors it. The great body of scientific opinion has indorsed the efforts of the Committee of One Hundred on National Health toward this end. No bill has ever been presented to Congress more amply approved by men of light and leading. We are not of the opinion that the head of the department should be a member of the President's Cabinet, however.

LABOR'S LEADERS.

Do the men of organized labor ever take thought about the wisdom of the counsels and the safety of the orders they receive from their leaders? We should think the striking carmen in Philadelphia, the textile workers, and the wage earners of other trades who have lost a good many days' wages and put themselves on rather bad terms with their employers by going out on strike under orders from National Organizer PRATT, the Council of Ten, and other directors of the affairs of labor, would be moved to inquire whether they have not foolishly followed blind guides in this affair. They might find it profitable to put Mr. PRATT on the witness stand before a committee of themselves and make him answer questions. Labor in this country has lost millions through the incapacity and blundering of its leaders.

The strike against the traction company in Philadelphia was favored by many circumstances. The company was unpopular, its affairs were mixed up with corrupt city politics, and the procedures of the company had given its employés what seemed to constitute a grievance. The company was in a weak position; under competent leaders the strikers ought to have been strong. They resorted at once to violence, and so forfeited the public sympathy to which they might have felt themselves to be entitled. Then the general strike was ordered. A great many of the union men affected by this order had the sense to see that it was a foolish proceeding, and they did not obey. Many thousands did obey, however, breaking agreements with employers and depriving themselves of wages. The failure of the general strike ought to have been a lesson to labor's leaders, but it wasn't. They began to talk of a State-wide strike. The Executive Council of the State Federation has rejected that proposal. The Central Labor Union in Philadelphia will on Sunday "consider the advisability of calling off the general sympathetic strike." Inasmuch as the men who went out on the "sympathetic" order have gone back to work, that would be superfluous. The record of Mr. PRATT and the Council of Ten in this Philadelphia strike has been one of bad judgment, of blundering, and of dismal failure.

But it is said that labor must present a solid front, that it must show that it has disciplined ranks, that it must have leaders who can demonstrate that labor is thoroughly organized, and that one trade will support another in attempting by a strike to secure better conditions of employment. Well, has the "solid front" been exhibited in this case? Has there been any evidence of efficient organization? Has it not been proved for the hundredth time that the solidarity of labor, like the general strike, is a myth, a bogy? Labor gains nothing by such follies, it loses much.

SECRETS OF THE STUDIOS.

There is a current tale of a popular portrait painter who places his sitter behind a frame of cords, strung horizontally and perpendicularly, and then draws in his subject on a canvas similarly cross-lined, producing by this mechanical process a striking likeness. The tale may be true. It is certainly "well-found." Studio secrets as piquantly interesting are revealed daily in the CLAUSEN trial. Mr. DAWSON's practical illustration in court of the approved method of transferring a painting from one canvas to another may have been illuminative to the jurors. To an astonished multitude of the inartistic it suggests the possible existence of a picture without a canvas, a painting on nothing, carefully held together to be affixed to a new back. One remembers the smile of the Cheshire cat which remained in the air after the cat had vanished.

There has been a puzzling revelation of the distinction between an artist and a picture maker. "BLAKELOCK was a picture maker, pure and simple." He was always painting, always making pictures, and some of his pictures were very beautiful, yet he was not an artist. We recall a similarly strange contradiction of terms in a popular book descriptive of art life in the Latin Quarter of Paris. There were two protagonists, "one was a sculptor, the other an artist." That is to say, in the mind of the author an artist is one who paints.

What, by the way, is "scrumbling"? The reports of Mr. CLAUSEN's testimony make him say that INNESS "scrumbled." The dictionaries ignore the verb "to scrumble," and it seems hardly likely that INNESS scumbled exclusively. To scumble is to rub in the paint. In the play of "Masks and Faces" the critics, Snarl and Soaper, looking at the living Peg Woffington standing behind a vacant frame in a curtained recess, exclaim in unison: "The scumbling's damnable." Mr. CLAUSEN's idea seems to be that INNESS scumbled with his brushes, unless there is a process called "scrumbling" hitherto known only in the studios. The trial has brought out a lot of testimony about restoring and "touching up" and signing pictures. To the outsider it has been, veritably, a series of peeps behind the scenes in picture-land. We know something more than we did about the whims of collectors. But the question is, Did HOMER MARTIN paint those two landscapes?

"BATTERY DAN."

Magistrate DANIEL E. FINN, who died on Wednesday, was one of the last representatives of a type of politician that has now almost vanished. He may have done his duty according to his convictions. In his boyhood he was a printer's boy, handy with his fists; he was a volunteer soldier in the civil war, he had kept a liquor saloon, he became a Tammany captain. He was called "Battery DAN" because he strove to preserve the Battery as a public park, for which he deserved credit. Rough and devoid of aspirations, he was nevertheless something of an idealist in a utilitarian age.

In the Assembly and on the Magistrate's bench he was "a friend of the people," and he was also, and at all times, a shrewd and purposeful politician. He was fairly adored by thousands as leader, friend, and protector. Doubtless he gave in charity freely and unostentatiously. As Police Magistrate in his severity to the police, his show of magnanimity, his loquacity, his picturesque language, and his audacity he kept alive the traditions of big Judge CONNOLLY and PATRICK J. DUFFY.

His "people" were of Irish, German, Scandinavian, Italian, Armenian, and Greek extraction. He had a way of seeming to know them all. They all esteemed him, and enjoyed his humor. He was not the worst of his type, by any means. It was a type which developed from neighborhood politics, and is rapidly becoming extinct. Whether or not it is being displaced by a better type is a matter of opinion.

Shining virtues may inhere in the bills for the amendment of the City Charter which the Charter Commission from time to time sends to the Assembly. We presume the Assembly document man has a suitable place of storage for these measures, where they will be duly protected from moth and rust until next Winter. It would be preposterous, of course, to choose as a propitious time for the very serious business of amending the Charter of the City of New York the fag end of a session in which the legislators have been chiefly occupied in investigating themselves for bribery and corruption. There are some political obsequies to be attended to before we can get a new charter fit for adoption.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Another Chauffeur Convicted.

Another reckless chauffeur has been convicted of manslaughter in the second degree for doing what, not long ago, juries seemed inclined to excuse as an "accident" rather than to punish as a crime. Of late, however, they have been taking a juster view of the carelessness that results in death, and, as a result of the change, sentences to prison for this form of crime have recently been frequent. The terms imposed, to be sure, have been months oftener than years, as most people think they should be, especially when the reckless use of the highway that causes death or injury to pedestrians is followed by flight and an attempt to escape responsibility for the harm done. It is something, however, that the absence of a clear intention to kill is no longer having the weight it did with either Judges or juries, and that criminal negligence no longer always gets off with a fine.

The law in regard to automobilists, amateur or professional, who break the speed regulations is explicit, and District Attorney WHITMAN has instructed his assistants, in prosecuting cases under it, to accept no minor plea in cases of a third offense. The penalty prescribed is both fine and imprisonment. To this the Special Sessions Justices object, on the ground that it deprives them of needed discretion. There is, of course, something in the contention of one of them that a first offense may be a very serious one, while a third may have mitigating circumstances, but the District Attorney takes the position that, while the provision as to first offenders may be too lenient, that which says third offenders shall go to jail certainly is not too severe and should be enforced.

The Justice is not deprived of discretionary power except to the extent that if he punishes at all it must be by imprisonment. He can, if he chooses, suspend sentence or dismiss, assuming, naturally, full responsibility when he decides to be merciful. Mr. WHITMAN's stern policy will have, we feel sure, the full approval of a public that knows by daily perils narrowly escaped that chauffeurs who lack either the skill or the inclination to run their machines properly are numerous in this city, and that they cannot too soon be taught that pedestrians have rights, even when they venture off the sidewalk.

Prosecution Would Be Easy.

If the Coroners or any other officials really want to take legal action against Christian Scientists in cases like that which ended with the death of Mrs. MAUGHAM, the mere fact that the Eddyites do not give drugs will not, in our opinion, stand in the way or even make conviction difficult.

In defining "the practice of medicine" the law says nothing about the administration of drugs as an essential part of it. On the contrary, it declares that he "practices medicine" within the meaning of the act who "holds himself out as being able to diagnose, treat, operate, or prescribe for any human disease, pain, injury, deformity, or physical condition, or who shall either offer or undertake, by any means or method," to do any or all of the things just mentioned.

Drugs are a comparatively unimportant part of modern medicine, and without them innumerable cases are every day treated by real doctors. The Eddyites, however it may be as to diagnosis, operation, and prescription, certainly hold themselves out as being able to "treat" every one of the human ills the existence of which they deny, and they take fees for the treatment with considerably more than professional eagerness. They do not come within the exception that covers the osteopathists, and they cannot pretend by either education or experience to meet the requirements of the law.

They are illicit, unlicensed practitioners of medicine, and just as soon as Judges and juries abandon the senseless delusion that doctoring and drugging are interchangeable terms, every one of these pestilent charlatans will either go out of business or into jail.

The Price of Bacon.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Hogs are said to be higher than at any previous time, being quoted at about $10.60 per 100 pounds at market points. But admitting this, it seems to a "mere man" that such a quotation does not justify a charge of 25 cents a pound for bacon at the grocer's. Making all allowance for expenses of converting the raw material into our familiar strips of bacon, is there any possible justification for an increase of about 140 per cent., which I figure is the difference between $10.60 and 25 cents?

THE NATION'S HEALTH.

It Needs a Representative in President Taft's Cabinet.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read the letter of Lawrence Irwell, published in THE TIMES of March 22, and headed "Confused Diseases." It simply furnishes another argument in favor of the movement to establish a National Department of Public Health with a Cabinet officer at its head.

I am not going to try to prove that Mr. Irwell or that Dr. Hutchinson, Prof. Fisher, or Dr. Rogers are wrong. In fact, in the main, they are all four of them right, but their seemingly contradictory statements are simply so much evidence that mortality statistics of this country in the past have not been of much value. This has been mainly due to four causes:

1. Lack of proper scientific methods.
2. Lack of uniform laws.
3. Lack of enforcement of what laws were on the statute books.
4. Too much politics.

There is just one way to remedy the situation, and that is to establish a National Department of Public Health, with a Cabinet officer at its head; place the management in the hands of competent scientific men who are free from political control, and then see that uniform laws are passed throughout the whole country in regard to registration of births and deaths and in regard to the maintenance of proper sanitary conditions and see that those laws are properly enforced throughout the whole country.

The total lack of value and even misleading character of statistics of this kind when improperly made up, on account of the lack of uniform methods, is illustrated by a recent classification of the deaths among the policy holders of a certain life insurance company, according to the cause of death, which showed that in the territory north of the Ohio and west of the Mississippi the number of deaths from appendicitis were two and a quarter times as great as the number of deaths from inflammation of the bowels, while in the territory south of the Ohio the number of deaths from inflammation of the bowels was twice the number from appendicitis.

We will never have the complete and the reliable information in regard to the statistics which is necessary for intelligent action in caring for the health of the people until we have uniform laws and uniform methods uniformly enforced; and the one thing most needed to bring about this result is the establishment of a properly authorized National Department of Public Health.

VENEERED FURNITURE.

Formerly Practiced as an Art and Not to Deceive.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If I may be allowed to interject a dissonant note on the subject "Little Real Mahogany," I am prepared to assert that the trick of veneering mahogany and other valuable hard woods is by no means a new thing, and that doubtless more pieces representing construction out of the solid wood can be found to-day than could have been many years ago.

In the old days veneering was an art, and according to my observation there are few examples of the real—I say it advisedly—antique extant in which the beauty of the veneering process does not figure.

The object of the practice may have been different, but there it is, nevertheless. How else could the delightfully symmetrical paneling have been accomplished? True it is that the veneering of those times was done on hard wood, and was done for artistic effect rather than for purposes of deception, but the "faking" of to-day relies more upon staining and "shoddy" (varnish polish) finishing than upon veneer.

I am writing now upon an ancient table the beautifully veneered top of which is a sight to see, though its surface shows several carefully inserted patches and a few "bubbles."

New York, March 21, 1910. J. W. E.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your correspondent, "M. N. S.," appears to ignore the fact that the use of veneers of mahogany or other fine decorative woods is not of recent date. In any antique store will be found furniture faced with mahogany veneers more than fifty years old, generally in very good condition, and in finer figured wood than the solid wood furniture.

The use of solid mahogany and other woods has died out for the simple reason that the quantity of figured woods needed for manufacturing furniture is greater than can be furnished by the market. Better selections of ornamental wood are secured, and veneered woods can be used with less waste of time in drying or preparation for manufacturing.

The most objectionable feature in imitation furniture is the use of stained birch or cherry, solid wood. The staining is too dark and heavy looking; not only this, but the wood is of a questionable durability, warps badly, and does not hold together well at all. The glued joints give way rapidly, and the use of nails or screws is next to impossible to put it together again.

PERSONAL TAXES.

Maintains That Law to Omit Them Would Be Unconstitutional.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The right of taxation is originally a concession on the part of owners of property for the purpose of maintaining government for the proper protection of persons and property. It inevitably follows, such being the fact, that the taxation allowed should bear with equal force on all property so protected, real and personal. It is unjust and unfair that because of inefficient and unbusinesslike methods of assessment and collection in the personal tax that it should be abandoned, and not improved and made efficient, and that the burden should be shifted and laid on already heavily taxed real estate. I do not believe that the contemplated law exempting personal property from assessment and taxation, as proposed by Messrs. Gaynor and Purdy, is constitutional in view of Article III., Section 18, which says: "The Legislature shall not pass any bill exempting any person or persons from real or personal taxes."

That the Constitution contemplates both real and personal property as the basis of taxation is further shown by Article VIII., Section 10, which says: "The amount of taxes raised for county or city taxes in any one year shall not exceed 2 per cent. of the aggregate assessed value of real and personal property in such year."

If the Tax Department will study the methods and plans adopted in other States and cities to gather in the "personal tax dodgers" it would discover that the tax from personal property now so meagre would be increased many hundred thousand dollars per year, and the burden more equally distributed among those who are under the protection of the Government.

The Benefits of Storage.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A short time ago I saw in the columns of your paper a letter telling us of all the great benefits we derive from having meats and products of all kinds kept in storage for months, not to say years; that it gave us the advantage of having all things throughout the year instead of during their seasons only. If this is the argument in favor of storage I would like to state that I think most of us would prefer to go back and have things as we used to, in season, when meats and poultry tasted like meat and poultry. Prices for everything were lower generally, though at times eggs were higher, while now we have higher prices for everything and all the year around.

GIRL GRADUATES GRATIFIED.

John Brooks Leavitt Pays Compliments to Eighteen Portias.

Gratified at hearing themselves described as "an awe-inspiring tribunal" and "a body of ladies learned in the law," eighteen young women in as many caps and gowns at Mendelssohn Hall last night received certificates of graduation from the Woman's Law Class of New York University. They were treated to a lecture on the "Judicial System in New York County" by John Brooks Leavitt, who won a ripple of delight at the start by saying it was up to them to decide "the one great question for the one young man."

"I regret to say that many of the criminal lawyers of this city do not reflect much credit on the legal profession," he declared, "for far too often are they criminal in both senses of the word."

Then, hastily passing over the criminal courts of which he confessed only a slight knowledge, he dwelt on the leading features of the civil courts, the superfluity of Supreme Court Justices, and he wound up with a defense of the jury system, which he believes to be ideal.

"Remove our jury system," he said, "and in twenty-five years you will have a corrupt judiciary."

The prize scholarship, carrying with it a two years' course at the University Law School, was awarded to Miss Edith Chapman.

CITY CHIEFS TO GIVE BONDS.

All but Police and Fire Departmental Heads Must Now Give Security.

Controller Prendergast has notified the heads of the various city departments who carry contingent funds that in future they will be required to give bonds for the amounts held by them. This is an innovation.

The new rule will apply practically to all heads of the City Government with the exception of the Police and Fire Commissioners, to whom a specific law now applies, and to the departmental officers who are required by law to give bonds when they go into office, as, for instance, the City Chamberlain. Even the Secretary of the Board of Estimate will now be required to file a bond.

These contingent funds average in a year from $100 to $1,000.

NERVES, NOT STARVATION.

Woman Who Said She Was "Adrienne Lecouvreur" Had Money in Bank.

The young woman who was taken to Bellevue Hospital, suffering from want of food, on Wednesday night, when she gave the name of "Adrienne Lecouvreur," it became known yesterday, was Myra A. Lampry, who came to this city from Concord, N. H., six years ago to carve out a literary career for herself. She wrote on musical topics, but did not realize the hopes that she had entertained when she left home.

Miss Lampry occupied a small apartment on the third floor of 138 Fifth Avenue. According to her friends, she had $300 in the bank, and there was no reason for her not eating all she wanted.

Dr. Gregory, who has charge of the psychopathic ward at Bellevue, said that the young woman was suffering from nervous prostration due to overwork.

PENNSYLVANIA R. R. MILEAGE.

Its System Has Now the Greatest in the Company's History.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company issued its annual Record of Transportation Lines yesterday. It shows that on Dec. 31 it had 24,098 miles of track, the greatest in the history of the company.

The system now has 11,234.36 miles of first track, 3,348.39 miles of second track, 760.10 miles of third track, and 570.20 miles of fourth track. It also has 8,184.89 miles of siding. The increase in the trackage in the year 1909 was 120.53 miles. At the same time the company announced that the number of stockholders had passed the 60,000 mark.

DETECTIVE'S SON MISSING.

General Alarm Sent Out for J. J. Conroy, Jr., of Clifton, S. I.

A general alarm was sent out last night for John J. Conroy, Jr., son of Detective-Sergeant Conroy, of Clifton, S. I., missing since Tuesday morning. On that morning he left the home of his aunt, Mrs. John Gahagan, of 246 East Fortieth Street, where he had spent the night, saying that he was going to work at the brokerage firm of E. W. Rollins & Co., 43 Exchange Place. He never reached there.

A Danger to Hats.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An occurrence at Eighty-sixth Street and Riverside Drive on Sunday bids fair to bring the ancient story of Absolom down to date, unless the pruning hook be brought into play for the common weal.

One of the stages which have at last made it possible for the poor in pocket yet aesthetic of mind to enjoy the beauties of a hitherto inaccessible part of the city came merrily down the drive, crowded to the rail with people.

Suddenly a shriek went up, and it was seen that one of the lower branches of a tree had lifted a hat free of a feminine head; the stage rolled on, the hat remained in the clutches of nature. Amid the wild excitement of some hundreds of people a gallant cabby, by means of a few dexterous passes with the handle of his whip, rescued the hat and returned it to the owner.

In the future it will not enhance the sylvan beauty of Riverside Drive to find it festooned with creations of the milliner's art or befringed with the rats and puffs of the fair sex, with here and there an eye or an ear or a small boy's head; so as soon as the pruning hook is no more needed in the vicinity of City Hall give it a chance on Riverside Drive.

NORMAN S. GRIFFIN.

New York, March 21, 1910.

THE ANTI-SUFFRAGIST'S PLEA.

Suggested by Mrs. Catt's speech before the Woman's Forum.

We are but women! Let us still, we pray,
Our husband's wishes and his voice obey!
We are but women, weak in strength and will—
Leave us, we beg, to nurse our weakness still!

We are unlettered. Politics and law
Our ears are deaf to, and our souls abhor!
Our eyes turn nowhere but to heaven's dome—
We would know nothing! Let us hide at home!

We are so foolish! Give us not, I pray,
A voice in matters of import to-day!
We have our servants; let our lackeys, please,
Still do our voting and leave us our ease!

We pay our taxes! Yes, but must we know
Where all our earnings or our incomes go?
We love our children, but must we give thought
To what is taught them and by whom they're taught?

We have among us those well versed in sin—
To let us vote would be to let them in.
Shall they, the vicious, each a ballot pen?
Why not leave voting to the pure—the men?

We are but women! Why should we have voice
In city matters or a nation's choice?
With Indians, idiots, children, let us stay—
We would be always what we are to-day!

HOW TO GET A COLD AND HOW TO CURE IT

Simplest of the Remedies Is Demonstrated on a Live Model for Women.

DR. JACOBI ON PREVENTION

Also Comments on the Folly of Exposing Children's Legs to Cold—Too Many Small Operations.

A young girl in a dainty sailor suit, who was pretty even with her head thrown back and her mouth wide open, sat on the platform of the auditorium of the Academy of Medicine yesterday afternoon. Over her stood Dr. William Kelly Simpson, who teaches the cure of nose, throat, and ear maladies in the College of Physicians and Surgeons. Dr. Simpson held aloft a pint bottle half filled merely with warm water and half a tablespoonful of salt. To the bottle was connected a rubber tube. Dr. Simpson placed the tube in the smaller nostril of the pretty young girl's nose. One nostril, it is well known, is always a little larger than the other in almost every human being. Then he proceeded to show four hundred mothers, wives, and sisters who had gathered at the academy to watch the demonstration how easily they could cure themselves and their families of common colds, and most of the other ailments to which the sensitive membranes of the nose, ear, and throat are subject.

"Not one person in a thousand knows the proper way even to perfom such a commonplace act as blowing one's nose," Dr. Simpson said. "It is very dangerous to pinch one's nose hard and blow both nostrils at once. Particles of infection are liable to be blown up the tube and cause earache. Always blow one nostril at a time. When children have earache parents have also a horrible way of putting household remedies—sweet oil, paragoric, and the like—in their children's ears. The surface membranes inside the ear aren't able to absorb them, and they are likely to collect inside and make the ear ache much worse.

"As for common, ordinary colds, they are caused mostly by drafts. There are three turbanated bones, one right above another, in the upper recesses of the ear. They are supplied with an unusually large amount of mucous membrane. This membrane can expand and contract. When we get into a draft the membrane protects the lungs by swelling. Thus the nose becomes closed. If you want to avoid colds douche out the nose every morning. Do to your children what I am doing to this young lady. This cleanses the membrane and keeps the microbes from infecting it."

Before Dr. Simpson told how to cure colds the venerable Dr. Abraham Jacobi, whom Chairman Rosalie Slaughter Morton introduced as having practised in this city for fifty years, told the mothers, wives, and sisters how colds may be avoided.

How Colds Are Caused.

"Colds are caused by a sudden surface chilling of the skin," he said. "This makes the bloodvessels of the skin contract. When the skin bloodvessels contract the bloodvessels in other parts of the body become congested. This state of congestion permits the microbes, which, in every person, gradually collect on the outside of the mucous membrane, to get in deeper and begin their mischievous work. When the membrane is normal there are a lot of microscopic cells which keep the germs from entering the circulation. But as soon as the membrane becomes irritated these microscopic cells are swept away and the membrane is unprotected. Don't soften and weaken your own and your children's tissues by too much warmth. Strengthen the tissues by gradually habituating them to cold air and water. Rub them with coarse towels every morning.

"Mothers who expose the calves of their children's legs to cold by making them wear silly nether garments are not women—they are ladies, who should never have had any children at all," continued the venerable physician. "People also catch cold by putting their hands in their pockets and exposing their wrists. I catch cold every time my feet get in a draft. So-called 'chest protectors' benefit chiefly the people who sell them. The philosophy of dress is to remember that immovable air is a bad conductor. That is why we have double windows in our houses. That is also why two pair of thin socks are warmer than one pair of thick socks. Drafts, by contracting the skin bloodvessels, sometimes cause facial paralysis and stiff neck. While taking cold baths and rubbing down lower the window even if you have slept with it open all night. If your cold bath isn't followed by the glow of reaction, temper it next time. Cold feet are a sign sometimes of a small heart."

Adenoid Operations Too Frequent.

Dr. Jacobi said that adenoids were operated on too often nowadays. Most operations performed for adenoids could be avoided if parents would only douche the children's nostrils and ear passages with half a teaspoonful of salt and a cup of warm water morning and evening. While taking it the patient solud sit straight up, throw the head back, open the mouth, and draw in the solution through the smaller nostril. Colds, tonsilitis, and even snoring and restless sleep could be prevented inthisway.

Dr. Emily Levi told the mothers that colds might be caused even by gastro-intestinal indiscretions and great mental strains. "The bloodvessels are controlled by the nerves, and when some bloodvessels are forced to contract and others to expand the bacteria are not thrown off," she explained to them.

Dr. Mary McMillan said that "common colds would be uncommon" in the next generation, because in days to come mothers will make their children douche their noses and ears with salt and warm water, after the manner described by Drs. Jacobi and Simpson, just as present-day mothers make their children brush their teeth and wash their hands.

FAIRBANKS WELCOMED HOME.

Ex-Vice President Greeted by Indianapolis After Trip Around World.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 24.—Indianapolis and Indiana to-day welcomed ex-Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks and Mrs. Fairbanks home from a year's trip around the world.

The committee in charge of the reception met Mr. and Mrs. Fairbanks at the Union Station and they were escorted to the Soldiers and Sailors' Monument by soldiers from Fort Benjamin Harrison, and by many citizens in automobiles. Crowds thronged the line of march, and at the Post Office Building were gathered thousands of school children, to whom Mr. Fairbanks spoke briefly.

At Monument Place a formal address of welcome was delivered by Gov. Thomas R. Marshall.

"For one full year this distinguished citizen of Indiana has been encircling the globe," said the Governor. "He has visited all lands and everywhere he has maintained the dignity and standing of American citizenship. He comes back to us, marvelous as it may seem, without the blood of man or beast upon his hands."

Mr. Fairbanks in reply dwelt principally upon his pleasure at returning to his home, referring only once to conditions abroad.

"America is at peace with the world," he said. "There is nothing that can mar the peaceful relations of the United States to the other nations of the world except our own inconceivable folly."

A reception at the Fairbanks home immediately after the public reception and a theatre party to-night closed the demonstration for Mr. and Mrs. Fairbanks.

ONE-ACT THRILLER AT THE HACKETT

Gibson's "The Vacuum" Introduces a Vacuum Cabinet as Cleanser of Domestic Hearth.

GUILTY LOVER ASPHYXIATED

Hidden in Cabinet, His Life Trickles Away While Wife Confesses and Begs Husband-Doctor for Pity.

Just what the doctor expects to do with his perfect vacuum cabinet is not quite apparent, though as a cleanser of the domestic hearth it turns out very well. Indeed, as one irreverent person said, no married man should be without it. Which apparently depends upon how one views his social set. Mr. Preston Gibson, for instance, the author of the little one-act play seen at the Hackett yesterday, insists through his chief character, the doctor, that the men in Society are all very wicked persons who spend their lives loving the wives of others. And as Mr. Gibson, besides being an author, is generally credited with having a position in the inner upper circle, it would seem that he ought to know.

The doctor of the play, being an honest, decent sort of a fellow, who loves his wife and thinks she loves him, longs for the simple country life, where they may be happy with one another and quite apart from the temptations of the world. But there is a serpent even in this Eden in the Bronx—where presumably all parties live if one may judge from the telephone call to central—and this serpent, as so often happens, is the husband's best friend. He doesn't quite share the doctor's bucolic notions, though he is willing enough to share the love the doctor is entitled to. For this reason he lives close by in easy communication with the lady by means of a telephone party wire. And it is the party wire which eventually is his undoing.

The vacuum cabinet is a contrivance which looks like an ordinary safe, but with an attachment by means of which the air may be exhausted by the simple turning of a key. The doctor shows his wife—and incidentally the audience—just how it is operated. He puts a lighted candle inside, closes the door, and in four minutes' time the candle flickers out. Having made this demonstration, the doctor, intending to remain away for the night, goes to visit a friend. But the wife, far too hasty and too careless, has called her lover up on the party wire and arranged for him to visit her. And the doctor has overheard.

So, after a few minutes of passionate lovemaking between the two, the house door slams and the doctor's footsteps are heard in the passage. Much alarm naturally on the part of the guilty couple, with a question as to where the lover is to hide. Where, indeed, if not in the vacuum cabinet, which, as you have safely guessed, has a theatric rather than a scientific purpose?

From this point on Mr. Gibson's play has real "thriller" qualities, worked up very neatly.

The doctor suspects the presence of the lover, finally decides that he is inside the cabinet, starts the exhaust, and counts the minutes while the man is presumably asphyxiated inside. Also the terror of the wife gradually increases until she finally confesses, begs for pity, and sees the husband relentlessly sitting, watch in hand, as her lover's life slowly ticks away.

Played by better actors than those in the present cast it would be more effective, but it does pretty well as it is with Mr. Horton, Mr. Ritchie, and Miss Crawford in the cast.

THE BOSTON SYMPHONY.

Strauss's "Symphonia Domestica" Played—Mme. Sembrich the Soloist.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra is in New York on its last visit of the season, and gave its evening concert in Carnegie Hall last evening. The orchestral numbers were Beethoven's "Coriolanus" overture, Schumann's B flat symphony, and Strauss's "Symphoina Domestica." There was an unusual pleasure offered the listeners in the fact that the soloist was Mme. Sembrich, whose appearance in orchestral concerts have been rare.

Schumann's symphony was put on the programme, no doubt, as a reminder of the approach of his hundredth birthday. The music retains its freshness and vitality, its buoyancy of spirit in a remarkable degree, and there are pages of infinite charm in it, upon which time seems to have laid no withering touch. This music has an innate nobility and distinction, and the comparison between this and the innate commonplaceness and triviality of Richard Strauss's colossal "Domestic Symphony," which came later upon the programme, must have presented itself to everybody in the audience. Schumann's writing for orchestra may have lacked the highest skill and technical accomplishment; Strauss has infinite dexterity, unlimited bagfuls of tricks that he lets loose in this pretentious work. But so far as his baggage of musical ideas is concerned, it could be wrapped in a small paper parcel. The symphony of Schumann was heard with the greatest pleasure—the outbursts of applause was loud and demonstrative, and Mr. Fiedler had his men rise and bow to accept their share of it, which was large.

The "Symphonia Domestica" was played for the first time in New York and has been heard a few times since, but it gains no ground on repeated hearing. It never sounded clearer and plainer than it did last evening, but this clarity and plainness only made it easier to see the poverty of its ideas, the lack of a real musical inspiration, or even musical prompting in it, the dry craftsmanship with which it has been built up to carry out a wholly extra-musical intention. The piece not only gains nothing by a rehearing; it loses. Passages that formerly seemed to possess beauty, as the slow section, seem now deplorably commonplace, elaborate development of ideas in themselves poor. In fact, it is clearer than ever that in this composition, as in most of the latest ones from his pen, Strauss has put a minimum of thought upon the musical quality, beauty, and expressiveness of his themes, and a maximum upon their adaptability for manipulation in combinations and complexities that occupy his mind so much in its present development and that represent themselves to him as descriptive and narrative.

Mme. Sembrich's participation in the concert aroused much enthusiasm. She did not appear to be in quite so good voice as she was in her recent recital here, but the perfect art and the command of all her resources resulted in a performance of great beauty and finish. She sang from "The Marriage of Figaro," the air "Deh vieni," and from Graun's oratorio "Der Tod Jesu," the vigorous air, "Lo, the Heav'n-Descended Prophet," that stood upon the programme of her last recital, sung then with pianoforte accompaniment, last evening, of course, with orchestra. There was later a group of songs with pianoforte accompaniment: "Der Nachtigall," by Brams; "Widmung," by Schumann; "Wiegenlied," by Mr. Fiedler, and the "Standchen," by Strauss.

Farewell Supper to Billie Burke.

A farewell supper was tendered Miss Billie Burke at the Hotel Belleclaire last night by Albert R. Keen, manager of the hotel, prior to Miss Burke's departure from the city. The guests included Mrs. Blanche Burke, Mr. and Mrs. M. Chapelle, Major W. H. Appleton, Miss Jeanot Rousselle, Mrs. Ridley, Mr. and Mrs. P. Geddes Grant, (Ethel Mumford,) and Victor E. de Kiralfy. Miss Burke's season at the Lyceum Theatre will end to-morrow night, and she will start on a tour of the country in "Mrs. Dot."

WATCHMAN LOOTED TIFFANY MANSION

Goods Worth More Than $10,000 Taken by Private Policeman in Two Months.

Madison Avenue House Had Been Kept Up by Miss Tiffany Just as It Was When Her Father Died.

The desire of Miss Louise H. Tiffany to keep the family residence at 255 Madison Avenue in exactly the condition that her father, Charles Tiffany, left it when he died, seven years ago, is said by the police to be responsible for the loss by robbery of from $2,000 to $10,000 worth of clothes and draperies from the closed home.

The goods are supposed to have been stolen by a special watchman, in whose home much property was found.

Central Office Detectives Corn and Fitzpatrick stumbled upon William Hoffman, the watchman, last night while he was entering a pawn shop at Fourth Avenue and Forty-second Street.

Upon his arm was a woman's automobile coat, and he had several bracelets and other bits of jewelry in his hand. The detectives watched the man go into one pawnshop after another until he pawned all except the overcoat. That he checked at the Grand Central Station. He was starting downtown in the Subway when the detectives nabbed him.

When searched at Headquarters, a regulation police revolver was found in Hoffman's rear pocket. A private detective agency badge was pinned upon his vest.

House Kept Up by Daughter.

Miss Tiffany has kept up the Madison Avenue residence for seven years even to the point of having the daily papers delivered just as they were when her father was alive. However, she seldom visited the house and the watchman she kept on duty there was suposed to have access only to a single room on the basement floor.

Patrolman Benton Bagley was found on duty last night.

"Know where Miss Tiffany is?" he repeated. "Why, she hasn't been here in months. I've taken the papers in each morning, and watched here for over a year and I've seen her only a few times. I punch the time clock here in the doorway when I come, and so do the other patrolmen. There are three of us, and a man named Ross is in charge. He has been here seven years, ever since Miss Tiffany closed the house.

"Hoffman was the third man. He joined the force only two months ago, and was on duty from 9 o'clock to 5 o'clock. I never knew of any one having keys to the upstairs portion of the house, and I relieved Hoffman at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

"He told me he was also doing a trick as watchman in a pawnshop at Third Avenue and Ninety-sixth Street, where he watched from midnight to 6 o'clock."

Police Say Watchman Confessed.

The police say that Hoffman broke down at Headquarters and told of systematically robbing the house where he was on guard since late in January. He said he had used a set of duplicate keys and had found the wardrobes upon the upper floors filled with clothing and expensive drapings.

The last time Miss Tiffany was at the house was more than a month ago, when there was a leak in the plumbing and she had to come to let the plumbers in and superintend their work.

The watchmen, upon discovering the leak, were unable to find Miss Tiffany, so they communicated with her through James Speyer, the banker, who lives next door. He sent her the word that brought her to the house with the plumbers.

Miss Tiffany's brother, Louis Tiffany, lives at 27 East Seventy-Second street. Callers at the house last night knew nothing of anything wrong at the Madison avenue residence. Miss Tiffany, who was at the Waldorf, was greatly shocked to learn of the robberies. She confirmed the statement that there was much valuable property on the upper floors which the watchman could have taken had he gained access to the rooms.

Loot Found in His Home.

In his confession Hoffman told Detectives Corn and Fitzpatrick that they would find a trunk in his home in Brooklyn filled with loot from the Tiffany house. He said he had pawned property in all parts of the city, always tearing up the tickets as soon as he hed received his money.

The detectives went to his house at 1,346 Seventy-first Street, where they found Mrs. Hoffman, a beautiful young woman, and her thre young daughters. She said her husband owned the house, a two-story structure, and that the furnishings included such things as solid gold mirrors and a solid silver table service. The linen was of the finest quality, some of it hemstitched by hand.

In the trunk Hoffman had referred to the detectives discovered 110 pieces of clothing, a number of gold bracelets, diamond brooches, amethyst pins, and many gold and silver trinkets. They took the trunk and its contents to Police Headquarters. They did not touch the linen and silver found in the house, but made a list of it, and said that it would be necessary for Miss Tiffany to identify it before they could seize it.

Told Her He Bought Stuff at Auction.

Mrs. Hoffman said her husband told her he got his valuable belongings at auction sales, and that he had been bringing them home for several months. She had never dreamed, she said, that he had been stealing them, and was prostrated at the news of his arrest.

No search of the Tiffany residence was made last night, but the police said that from the amount of property already located an estimate of $10,000 would be low for the stolen valuables. Hoffman said that he had no idea what the real value of what he took was, but that it would be somewhere between $2,000 and $10,000.

'STRAUSS DAY' AT MANHATTAN.

"Elektra" Presented with Mme. Mazarin and "Salome" with Miss Garden.

Mr. Hammerstein designated yesterday at his Manhattan Opera House "Richard Strauss Day." In the afternoon the German composer's "Elektra" was sung, and in the evening "Salome" had its fourth hearing this season. Very large audiences were on hand at both performances.

Mme. Mazarin's impersonation of Elektra again succeeded in rousing the house to a high pitch of enthusiasm. Mme. Baron again sang Chrysothenis, Mr. Huberdeau was the Orestes, Mme. Doria Clytemestra, and Mr. Devries Aegisthos.

In the evening Miss Garden sang Salome. It is the fourth part she has sung this week. She has already impersonated Melisande, Louise, and Thaïs. She seemed in no wise tired last night, however, Mme. Doria, who had sung in the afternoon, appeared as Herodias. Mr. Dalmorès was the Herod and Mr. Dufranne the Jokanaan. Mr. de la Fuente conducted both performances.

GIANTS TO PULL UP STAKES AT MARLIN

McGraw's Regulars Whip Youngsters in Final Game at Training Camp.

BY FRED TENNEY,
First Baseman of the Giants.

Special to The New York Times.

MARLIN, Texas, March 24.—To-day was the last day in Marlin for the larger part of the squad of Giants, and Manager McGraw had the boys out early for a long, hard practice. The entire morning was given up to batting and fielding. Manager McGraw desired to save all the ginger for the last exhibition game before the people of Marlin, which was played this afternoon as a benefit to the Daughters of the Confederacy.

A much larger crowd was present than at the former game, as there was more time for advertising it. McGraw put his two strongest teams in the field, with Mathewson, Marquard, and Raymond doing the heavy work for the regulars, with Meyers and Schlei as catchers, while Wiltse, Ames, and Crandall did the twirling for the Sparrows, with Snodgrass and Wilson as catchers. The Sparrows could do little with Mathewson and Raymond, three of their four runs being scored while Marquard was on the rubber. The one run scored off Raymond was a home run by Zacher. Meanwhile the Regulars scored one run in the first inning, on hits by Doyle and Bridwell, and made two off Ames and two off Crandall, winning the game by a score of 5 to 4.

This was the first victory of the Regulars over the Sparrows, though in several games it looked as though the Regulars were not trying very hard. To-day's game was hard fought all the way, the members of both teams being anxious to win this last contest. The Sparrows wanted to keep their record clean, and the Regulars desired to show the youngsters that they could win if they tried hard. Zacher did the best hitting for the Sparrows, getting a home run and two singles. For the Regulars, Bridwell showed that he is going to be the pinch hitter of the club by driving in three of the five runs with three singles.

All the six pitchers worked in fine form, and it can easily be seen that Manager McGraw will rely on these veterans for the greater part of the pitching during the coming season. The people of Marlin are sorry to see the boys depart, as they have all enjoyed the stay of the Giants in their midst. Already they are beginning to talk of the new grounds, and the prospects of annual visits of the New York club.

YANKEES FINISH STRONG.

Regulars Overhaul Yannigans and Win Game, 7 to 5.

Special to The New York Times.

ATHENS, Ga., March 24.—The Yankee Regulars came from behind this afternoon and won a 7 to 5 victory over the second team after eight innings of excitement. Big Jim Vaughn pitched the first five innings in close to record time. But for errors he would have shut out the regular nine. Clunn, a southpaw, who followed the Texas port sider, had a much harder task. He was bothered with a very sore arm, and could not get his curve to work. The regulars hammered him for six of their seven runs. Three were scored in each of the two innings he worked, and in each instance after two were out.

There was a great deal of heavy batting, but in this line the second team carried off all the honors, as usual. To the Yannigans fell all the extra base hits. The score:

Yannigans	2	0	0	0	0	0	2	1	—	5	9	4
Regulars	0	0	0	1	0	3	3	.	.	7	6	2

Brooklyn Shows Speed and Class.

Special to The New York Times.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., March 24.—The Brooklyn Nationals opened the new Southern League grounds here to-day, taking Johnny Dobbs's team into camp, 10 to 2. The new field is probably the biggest on the Southern circuit. Dahlen had his men practicing all kinds of plays on the offensive, paying especial attention to the squeeze and infield taps of the old Oriole vintage. The squeeze was pulled off successfully twice, two men crossing the plate on one occasion. This happened in the sixth, when, with McMillan and Erwin on third and second, Burch laid down a bunt along the third base line. McMillan was on the move when the ball was hit and he scored easily. Erwin, who is a fast man for a catcher, took advantage of a low throw and came home, too. Burch had a great day with the bat, hitting safely four times and driving the same number of runners across the pan. McMillan was also there with the swat and carried off the fielding honors, accepting eight chances without a break.

Cy Berger joined the tourists this morning. Eddie Lennox is still among the missing. Treasurer Medicus came into camp about noon with the "dough bag" and brought joy to the needy ball tossers. Score by innings:

Brooklyn	0	0	1	2	0	3	0	2	2	10	11	3

Manhattan Baseball Dates.

The schedule of the Manhattan College baseball team was announced yesterday by Manager Frank Beagan. The team will play twenty-nine games, eleven of which will be played at McNulty Field, 149th Street and Eighth Avenue. The season opens on March 30, with Columbia, at South Field. Two games will be played with Villanova, Holy Cross, and Vermont. Two trips have been arranged, one through New England for six days, and the second through New York State for five days. The team will meet several of the New York State League clubs. Coach O'Hara has cut the squad down from 38 to 14, and Capt. Holahan's choice for the team will probably include Fryer, the shortstop, who was formerly with Holy Cross; Blackmore, an outfielder from White Plains High School; Cotter and Hesterberg, from Erasmus High School, and Millen from Jersey City High School. The members of last year's nine who will play this year are Hanley, Nugent, and Archer, pitchers, and Donahue, Holahan, and Connolly. The schedule follows:

March 30, Columbia, at South Field. April 6, Army, at West Point; 7, University of Vermont; 12, New York Fire Department; 13, St. John's of Brooklyn; 16, McNulty Brothers; 19, Bucknell; 23, South Orange Field Club, at South Orange; 25, Binghamton, (N. Cornell Nine Ready for Trip.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., March 24.—The Cornell baseball team will leave Ithaca to-morrow morning on its annual Southern trip, which will take the men to Washington, where a number of games will be played. Annapolis is down on the schedule for Saturday, and next week Yale, Georgetown, the Walbrook Athletic Club of Baltimore, and the Washington team of the American League will be played, and the team will wind up at Orange, N. J., Monday, April 3, with a game against Seton Hall. Coach Coogan said that except for the pitching department his team was one of the fastest turned out at Cornell in years. The loss of Pitcher Murray Howes, who was dropped for insubordination, puts the pitching up to Eddie Goodwillie of last year's team, and Abbott and Caravajal, youngsters who have had no experience outside of class teams.

Bowerman Has Blood Poisoning.

HOUSTON, Texas, March 24.—Frank Bowerman, catcher for the Indianapolis American Association team, was taken to the hospital to-day suffering from blood poisoning as a result of apparently trivial hurts on the face sustained in practice work here.

DRAG HUNT ON OCEAN BEACH.

Atlantic City Visitors Line Boardwalk to See Novel Chase.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 24.—The first hunt ever held on the Atlantic City beach added zest to the second day of the Atlantic City Horse Show. Julian Morris of New York was master of a drag hunt and was followed by a pack of hounds and a dozen pink and red coated huntsmen. The only drawback to the sport was the heavy fog which delayed it a couple of hours, and the thousands of persons on the board walk had become tired and were about to leave. But when it did come off it required the efforts of the entire police force to prevent a stampede and extra police will be used to-morrow, when the hunt is repeated.

Albert J. Davis of Jacksonville, Fla., riding Miss Madelaine F. Horne's chestnut horse Pantaloons, had his collar bone broken in the last event to-night. Davis was elected to jump first and started the horse over the bars. Horse and rider were spilled and both went out, Davis with a broken collar bone and the horse with a sprained hind leg.

The interest of the thousands of spectators was held close this afternoon and to-night by the events in the show ring. One of the most exciting feats of the day was the riding of "Tipper" Morris when Blue Fingers, belonging to Julian Morris, started to do some stunts that he had not been coached in and were not down on the programme. Only the expert riding of Morris kept him from getting his forefeet into the boxes of the spectators.

A wave of excitement went over the audience when one of the wheelers of the Paul Sorg four went down as the coach was entering the ring. The horse got up without any injury.

The audience showed its liking for women drivers in the afternoon harness events, in which Mrs. Julius S. Walsh of New York drove her own entry, Honesty; Miss Amy Dupont of Wilmington drove her Lady Babbie, and Mrs. Cecil Fitler of Philadelphia held the reins over her Cricket. The summaries:

Class 9—Pairs of Harness Horses.—Paul A. Sorg's Dignity and Manhattan, first; Grand View Farm's Tinker Bell and Peter Pan, second; Belleport Stable's Alexandra and Lady Babbie, third.

Fox Chase in Moonlight.

MEADOW BROOK, L. I., March 24.—The American pack of the Meadow Brook hounds had an original hunt to-day, when, after starting the fox in the Broad Hollow Wood, they decided to trail him by moonlight until it was either captured or holed. The pack met at the private race track on the estate of Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., and at last reports this evening were still in pursuit of reynard. Those out were Douglas Campbell, Malcolm Stevenson, S. A. Baltazzi, H. E. Dryer, H. S. Godfrey, H. L. Bell, and H. M. Earle. The pack belongs to Mr. Ellis.

Harvard Club Squash.

Squash players of the Harvard Club to the number of forty-seven yesterday began their matches in the annual Class A and Class B handicap tournaments on the clubhouse courts in West Forty-fourth Street. In the Class A event E. S. Benedict, half a hand and 8 aces, and G. O. Winston, 4 aces, were straight-set winners, while the players of championship calibre, J. W. Prentiss and Alfred Stillman, minus 8 aces, came through to the round before the semi-finals in hard three-set matches. The summary:

Class A Handicap.—First Round—D. F. Phelps, Jr., half a hand and 3 aces, defeated E. E. Whitman, half a hand and 8 aces, by default; W. P. Sanger, scratch, defeated J. I. B. Cornell-Michigan Dual Meet.

ITHACA, N. Y., March 24.—The Cornell track team will leave Ithaca to-morrow for Ann Arbor, where it will compete against Michigan in an indoor meet for the first time in six years. Coach Moakley has little hope for victory, as he has few star men, most of the entrants lacking experience. The Cornell entries follow:

Thirty-five-yard dash—Blass, MacArthur, and Baker; high hurdles—Nixon, Stilbolt, and Reynolds; 440-yard dash—Hurlburt and Haselton; 880-yard dash—Ebersole and Putnam; one-mile run—Young, Taylor, and De Golyer; high jump—Goulnlock, Pickerill, and Helfrich; pole vault—D'Autremont and Flack; shot put—Donnan and Wadsworth.

SLOW TIME MADE IN DAYTONA RACES

Rainstorm and High Tide Prevent Running of 100-Mile and Final Race.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTONA, Fla., March 23.—The three-day automobile speed tournament on Daytona Beach came to a close to-day. Barney Oldfield in his Benz car drove a mile in 27 88-100 seconds against 27 33-100 seconds, the world's record made by him last week. The beach, however, was not in such perfect condition as the day he made the record, and he was not favored with a strong breeze as then. In another trial at the mile with David Bruce Brown of New York sitting beside him he drove a mile in 29 57-100 seconds. The Christie front-drive car carried 200 pounds of ice to-day, the inventor of the car having taken off the radiator, because it was too small. The gasoline flow did not work properly during George Robertson's two attempts at the mile, and he stopped before reaching the finishing point. Christie then drove the car himself and covered a mile in 33 55-100 seconds.

A heavy rainstorm soon after the contests started caused a long postponement of the races, and as a result the tide came in so fast that it was impossible to run the 100-mile race, and this was called off. This event was on the card as a 300-mile race, but the programme arranged was of such length that the officials decided to cut it down.

Ben Kerscher in the 100 horse power Darracq, which won the 1905 Vanderbilt Cup race, was first in the ten-mile handicap, in which it was started from scratch.

In another handicap for the same distance M. B. Aultman, in a Hudson car, came in first. Oldfield, in his Knox car, got second place in both of these events. The summaries:

Ten-Mile Handicap, Free-for-All.—Won by Ben Kerscher, Darracq, (scratch;) Barney Oldfield, Knox, (0:30,) second; R. M. Bond, Stearns, (1:25,) third. Time—7:21. W. E. Davis, Chalmers, (3:30,) and M. B. Aultman, Hudson, (5:10,) also ran.

Ten-Mile Handicap, Free-for-All.—Won by M. B. Aultman, Hudson, (5:10;) Barney Oldfield, (0:30,) second; Ben Kerscher, Darracq, (scratch,) third. Time—12:45 98-100. W. E. Davis, Chalmers, (3:30,) and R. M. Bond, Stearns, (1:25,) also ran.

Ten-Mile Match Race Between M. B. Aultman in Hudson "20" and Pete Hart in Buick.—Won by Hart. Time—12:58.

City Athletic Club Swimming.

The City Athletic Club will hold swimming races and a game of water polo in the club's tank to-morrow evening at 8:30 o'clock. One race will be the 100-yard Metropolitan championship, which has brought out the entries of C. M. Daniels, N. Nerich, and G. South of the New York Athletic Club; J. Mantell and C. Tifft of the West Side Y. M. C. A., and W. Auerbach of the City Athletic Club. The 60-yard handicap has attracted one of the biggest entries in years. Daniels will try to break the 40-yard American record. In water polo the New York Athletic Club and the City Athletic Club teams will compete.

SPORTING NEWS IN BRIEF.

"Cyclone" Johnny Thompson received the decision Wednesday night at Oakland over Charlie Norvall of Butte, Mon., in their ten-round fight there. Thompson brought Norvall to his knees twice in the third and fourth rounds, but could not land the knockout punch.

Willie Hoppe won the first block of his 18.2 billiard match with Ora Morningstar at San Francisco Wednesday night, 500 to 406.

Johnny Hayes has gone to Great Neck, L. I., to finish training for the Marathon derby which will be held at the Polo Grounds on Saturday afternoon, April 2. He will have the assistance of Pete Hegelman, the old time six-day go-as-you-please champion.

Tom Fleming, the commander of the Universal League of Pedestrians, walked from St. Mark's Church, West Orange, N. J., to the Parkway Shelter House on the beach at Coney Island and return on Tuesday, a distance of 48 miles, in 10 hours and 52 minutes. The "Fleming" method of long-distance walking was employed. All walking clubs in the United States and Canada desirous of joining the Universal League of Pedestrians may address Commander Tom Fleming, care of The Newark Evening News.

The Twenty-second Regiment athletic meet on April 4 promises to be a meeting of athletic stars. There will be twelve regular events and a four-man team open relay, in which five team prizes will be offered. Entries close with Dieges & Clust, 23 John Street, on March 28.

Charley Goldman and Young Wagner, the bantamweight boxers, have been matched for a ten-round bout at the Olympic Athletic Club next Monday night. If Goldman beats Wagner he will challenge Johnny Coulon for the championship title.

Al Copeland is now managing Hans Holmer, the long-distance runner, who has a victory over Henri St. Yves to his credit, and has issued a challenge to Thure Johanson, the holder of the indoor Marathon record, for a match race over the prescribed Marathon distance for a side wager of $1,000, exclusive of the division of gate money. Homer wants the race to take place out of doors.

The third annual endurance run of the New Jersey Motorcycle Club will take place on May 29 and 30. The event is open to amateurs as defined by the rules of the F. A. M. Many gold, silver, and bronze prizes will be offered in the different events. The entries will close May 17. There will be four divisions, private owners' class, trade riders' class, passenger class, and ladies' invitation class. The run will include a hill-climbing contest on Cushmall Hill.

The Bloomingdale Brothers Athletic Association will hold in the near future a vaudeville entertainment and reception at its rooms, Fifty-ninth Street and Third Avenue. This athletic organization aims for the betterment of the physical condition of its members, and all the male employes in this concern's stores compose the membership.

The Pittsburg Athletic Club has refused to allow Stanley Ketchell to fight before that club on next Tuesday night on account of the Michigan fighter's poor showing against Klaus on Wednesday night. The club members have openly accused Ketchell of stalling during the six-round go in which he managed to get an even break. Ketchell explains his poor showing by saying that he injured one of his hands early in the fight. He is now in a hospital at Wheeling, West Va., having his injured hand treated.

Manager Clarke Griffith of Cincinnati is negotiating to trade Paskert, the outfielder, for Bates, the Philadelphia outfielder. The Phillies wanted to get Bescher, but Griffith turned down this offer.

John J. Beggs, a wealthy street car owner of Milwaukee, yesterday harshly criticised the Americans for supporting the game of baseball with such enthusiasm. Mr. Beggs thinks the public pays too much attention to it altogether.

GRAVESEND BAY RACING.

Atlantic Y. C. Will Open Season on May 28—Gift of $500 Cup.

At a meeting of the Yacht Racing Association of Gravesend Bay, held at the Crescent Athletic Club last night, the schedule for the coming season was arranged and adopted. The meeting was attended by all the delegates except those of the Brooklyn Yacht Club. The organizations represented were the Atlantic Yacht Club, Bensonhurst Yacht Club, Crescent Athletic Club, Field and Marine Club, and the New York Canoe Club. The schedule is as follows:

May 28, Atlantic Y. C.; 30, Brooklyn Y. C.

June 4, Bensonhurst Y. C.; 11, Atlantic Y. C.; 18, New York Canoe Club, (first championship;) 25, Crescent A. C., (second championship.)

July 2, Atlantic Y. C., (third championship;) 4, Bensonhurst Y. C., (power boat races;) 9, Marine and Field Club, (fourth championship;) 16, Crescent A. C., (power boat races;) 23, Bensonhurst Y. C.; 30 Atlantic Y. C., (fifth championship and power boat races.)

Aug. 6, Bensonhurst Y. C., (sixth championship;) 13, Brooklyn Y. C., (seventh championship;) 20 Atlantic Y. C., (eighth championship;) 27, Marine and Field Club, (ninth championship.)

Sept. 3, Bensonhurst Y. C., (tenth championship and power boat races;) 5, Atlantic Y. C.; 10, Brooklyn Y. C., (eleventh championship;) 17, Atlantic Y. C., (twelfth championship.)

A meeting of the association will be held in April at the Crescent Athletic Club, which all owners of power boats resident on Gravesend Bay and members of the six clubs affiliated with the Yacht Racing Association will be asked to attend. The idea is to form a power boat association similar to the yacht-racing body, which shall govern motor boat races in those waters.

Announcement was made of the gift by Commodore Frederic Thompson of the Bensonhurst Yacht Club of a five-hundred-dollar trophy, to be known as the Thompson Cup, for handicap races, to encourage contests among boats that are now without a rating.

Commodore Thompson has also presented a twenty-two-foot gasoline-power mahogany launch to the club, to be used as a tender. It was stated by one of his friends that Commodore Thompson would shortly purchase a large yacht, to be used as his flagship, and that he will, in all likelihood, also give an order for a sonder class boat, to be sailed under Bensonhurst colors in the international trials for the Spanish races this year and the German races of 1911.

WILL BUILD DEFENDER.

Motor Boat Club Subscribes $25,000 to Defend Cup.

At the annual meeting of the Motor Boat Club of America, held last night, $25,000 was subscribed for the purpose of building a defender for the Bitish International Motor Boat Trophy. The meeting, which was one of the most enthusiastic ever held by the organization, contributed a sufficient amount of money to put the club on a substantial footing, and practically wiped out all its indebtedness.

The question of course reached a unanimous decision, and Huntington Bay will again be the scene of the contest for the international trophy, which will be held Aug. 20.

The Commodore was authorized to appoint a committee of five to organize a syndicate to build a defender and to invite the Motor Boat Committee of the Automobile Club of America to co-operate with the Motor Boat Club in perfecting arrangements for the race.

There was no opposition to the ticket submitted to the members, and the election resulted as follows: Commodore—H. H. Melville; Vice Commodore—Henry R. Sutphen; Rear Commodore—James Craig; Treasurer—Charles Francis; Secretary—Walter M. Bieling; Board of Governors—John M. Shaw, Charles P. Tower, E. J. Steiner, Frank D. Gheen, Joseph H. Hoadley, and Morris M. Whittaker.

New Chess Champion in Town.

By defeating Albert Clurman of the Brooklyn Boys' High School in the fourth and final game of the series at the Rice Chess Club yesterday afternoon Benjamin Altman, representing De Witt Clinton High School, became the individual champion of the Greater New York Interscholastic Chess League.

NO ATHLETIC UPHEAVAL.

Eligibility Irregularities in Public Schools Only Due to Carelessness.

James E. Sullivan, Chairman of the Games Committee of the Public Schools Athletic League, last night branded as absolutely false the statements published yesterday that the athletic eligibility scandals in the local schools were so gross that a deep-laid investigation would be necessary to root out the alleged evils, and that more than fifty principals were implicated in willful wrong-doing.

Mr. Sullivan said that the investigation thus far of the charge that ineligible boys have competed and won prizes during the past season has shown nothing worse than carelessness on the part of a few principals. He attributed this carelessness to the lack of time they had for personal investigation of the subject. Thereby, Mr. Sullivan said, the principals were compelled to forego making such personal investigations, had to rely on the reports of others, and had made such mistakes as they had committed solely for these reasons.

Pittsburg Women Lead in Golf.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 24.—Miss Mary Fownes of the Oakmont Country Club, Pittsburg, plays her clubmate, Miss Louise Elkins, and Mrs. J. Raymond Price, also of the same club, meets Mrs. C. H. Vanderbeck of Philadelphia in to-morrow's semi-final round of the annual united North and South golf championship for women as the result of to-day's play. The summary:

Second Round—Mrs. C. H. Vanderbeck, Philadelphia, beat Miss Ethel Check, New York, 5 and 4; Mrs. J. R. Price, Pittsburg, beat Miss Kate Van Ostrand, Walestown, 3 and 1; Miss Louise Elkins, Pittsburg, beat Mrs. William West, Camden, 2 up; Miss Mary Fownes, Pittsburg, beat Mrs. G. C. Dutton, Boston, 2 and 1.

There are no tire blow-outs with a Franklin.

The believer in extra tires, demountable rims and other devices works in the wrong direction. Instead of seeking to do away with trouble he makes his objective point some way to fix up quickly when trouble happens. Thus he makes the tire question complex, expensive and annoying.

The Franklin motorist escapes all this. The entire prevention of trouble from blow-outs rather than ways to fix up after the trouble happens is the Franklin method.

Franklin tire equipment is so reliable that heavy loads and fast driving do not destroy the tires. The tires will not blow out. Their average mileage is four times that of the ordinary tire equipment. This is because the Franklin, light and flexible, is easy on tires and because we use tires large enough and strong enough to do the work. Even punctures are very rare.

Our tire sizes for 1910 are: Model G, 32 x 3½" front, 32 x 4" rear; Model D, 36 x 4" front, 36 x 4½" rear; Model H, 36 x 4½" front, 37 x 5" rear. Give yourself an object lesson. Compare these tire sizes with the sizes of tires on other motor cars.

If you buy some other automobile and then put on new rims and extra large tires you do not get the results you do with the Franklin, because rigid construction, as opposed to the Franklin wood-chassis-frame full-elliptic-spring flexible construction, is hard on tires, no matter what their size.

The best automobile for the average user.

This is Franklin Model D. It is of medium size, medium power and medium price; it is by all means the lightest automobile of the medium class.

Large enough for touring and at the same time small enough for general city use, it is so admirably proportioned as to stand out, distinguished, in any concourse of motor cars.

Like all Franklins, Model D is light and comfortable; with its full-elliptic springs, wood chassis frame, large wheels and large tires it reduces to a minimum the shock of travel over the roads. In it follow an automobile having the steel-frame and semi-elliptic-spring construction and note how the passengers of that car are shaken while you ride comfortably along at equal speed.

Call at our show room; examine the Franklin; study its construction; satisfy yourself as to its merits.

MUST HAVE ECONOMY, REPUBLICANS CRY

Guthrie and Borah Declare Present Extravagance in Washington Will Wreck Party.

GAYNOR TAKEN AS A MODEL

Lawyers in Income Tax Debate Here Agree That Present Rate of Expenditure Menaces the Country.

"The moment you put the power with the majority to tax us, that moment you open the door to the ultimate destruction of the United States," declared William D. Guthrie at the third annual dinner of the Economic Club at the Hotel Astor last night. The club had arranged a debate on "Should the Pending Amendment to the Constitution, Allowing Federal Income Tax, Be Adopted?" and four authorities on taxation furnished the arguments.

Mr. Guthrie and Austin G. Fox, the lawyer, argued against the amendment and Lawson Purdy, President of the Department of Taxes and Assessments of New York, and Senator William E. Borah of Idaho took the affirmative side. Francis Lynde Stetson, President of the Club, presided. There were some 700 persons present.

Mr. Guthrie pointed out that it was the Western States that were principally in favor of he income tax, whereas they didn't bear an equal proportion of the expense of the Government. New York State, he said, contributed $68,000,000 to the expenses of the Government in the Spanish war, while Idaho and other Western States contributed nothing.

Last year, he said, New York's contribution to Governmental expenses was $28,000,000, while Idaho's was $101,000. One-half of the $200,000,000 paid into the Port of New York last year for customs he declared was paid by New York alone. The $300,000,000 that it has been declared the United States is squandering could be saved, said Mr. Guthrie, if a certain gentleman at the head of finances in the New York City Government was in Washington.

Calls for National Economy.

"It may not be good politics to say that," declared Mr. Guthrie, "because I am a Republican, but let us Republicans learn something. Let us put our house in order. If we don't, as sure as the sun rises to-morrow we shall meet our Waterloo next November.

"I am convinced that if the people of the United States understood the facts about the income tax subject not a single State would vote for this amendment. The Eastern and Middle Western States would not vote for it from interest, and the far Western States would not vote for it from gratitude. This amendment is a great mistake. If a personal tax is necessary a tax can be laid on real and personal property in the States. We should not levy a direct tax so long as other sources of taxation are abundant."

"A few weeks ago the leader of the United States Senate," said Senator Borah, "a man of most extended and accurate information, not given to the use of inconsiderate language or fault-finding, declared upon the floor of the Senate that we are spending $300,000,000 a year more than we should under strict business methods. If that be true it reveals not simply bad or loose business methods but a crime, an indefensible political crime.

"If we are taking from the men who toil and the business men of this country $300,000,000 unjustly we are in a most deplorable condition as a people, because it is evidence of the fact that the disease which has destroyed every republic on earth has fastened itself upon us.

"Who is paying this? The masses of the people. How is it collected? Every dollar of it is laid upon consumption; not one dollar upon wealth. The man with a large family will pay almost as much of that tax as the man who draws $12,000,000 a year of income on bonds. So long as that is true and that method of taxation continues there will be no exertion upon the part of men of wealth and influence to stop such vicious extravagance.

"But if we should come to New York City for three hundred millions a year of your incomes—a specific demand for so much money—you would take interest at once to know what we were doing with it. The public would take hold of the question, and the few men who have raised their voices against this extravagance would be supported instead of being decried as demagogues. You will have economy in public expenditures when we have public opinion aroused, and you will not have it before.

Result of Continued Extravagance.

"If the burdens of Government are not more equitably distributed this extravagance will go on and the inequality which it superinduces will grow apace. The great weight will continue to rest upon those least able to pay, and when the time comes that our public lands are all gone and our public resources nearly exhausted, and the poor become poorer and more numerous, wealth will be glad to escape the wrath to come by paying its proportion of the burdens of government.

"We are soon going to approach a billion and a half or two billions of expenses. Do you mean to say to me that that shall continue to be paid entirely upon consumption and nothing upon accumulated wealth? We are the only civilized Government on earth to-day boasting, as we do, of our equal rights and freedom which has not this power.

"We are the only Government that ever existed in the history of the world without the practical legal power to tax wealth for the support of the National Government. Can any one think of that and be at ease? Ours is a free Government of equal rights, based upon the principle of equality, of opportunity and burden, and yet we have not the constitutional power as a practical matter to put one cent of the taxes for the support of the National Government upon the most lucrative and idle form of wealth in this country.

"To my mind it is the most subtle, the most misleading, and the most damnable system that was ever conceived for the pauperizing of the masses and the enriching of the few. Can you imagine a more potent instrument for setting up an aristocracy of wealth in a democracy of paupers?"

"Congress has proposed to the States an amendment to the Federal Constitution to permit a tax upon incomes without apportionment among the States in proportion to population," said Mr. Purdy. "I know of no way for Congress to withdraw this amendment, or for any State Legislature to bind its successors not to ratify it. Under these circumstances any amendment once submitted to Congress, which merits popular approval, seems reasonably certain of ultimate ratification. There are compelling reasons for the ratification of this amendment, and no objections have yet been raised which stand analysis.

Our Lack of Taxing Power.

The power to levy a tax on incomes is an ordinary attribute of sovereignty which every Government ought to possess, and every Government except our own, does possess. In the chief countries of the world an income tax is part of the ordinary revenue system. Every one admits that the United States should in emergencies have the power to tax incomes. That admission renders necessary the ratification of the amendment.

"Some form of direct taxation, which can be increased or reduced as occasion requires, is an absolute necessity, if we are to have economy in Federal expenditure. Under existing conditions no body of citizens has any compelling reason to insist upon economy. If persons paying an income tax knew that extravagance meant an increase in the income tax rate all their influence would be exerted in favor of economy.

"There is a demand for taxes proportioned to wealth, as that term is commonly understood. The income tax seems to be the next step in the evolution of taxation. So much favor as the barbarous personal tax still has in public opinion is due to the sound view that the poor pay too much in taxes and the rich too little. It is probable that personal taxes cannot be abolished generally until a substitute is found, which the public will believe is imposed upon the rich. It may well be that the imposition of an income tax in the United States will effect the disappearance of the personal tax, as it did in England.

Corpoation Tax Citicised.

"The Federal tax on the income of corporations could not possibly have been enacted, and would not have been attempted if it had not been for the demand for a legitimate income tax. The corporation tax has all of the vices and none of the virtues of an income tax. The law selects common stockholders and imposes the whole burden upon them. The tax is very heavy on some common stockholders and very light on others, because of the exemption of bondholders and holders of preferred stock.

"It is alleged as though it were an objection that an income tax is a means of taxing rich States for the benefit of poor States. An income tax will certainly enable us to tax, in proportion to their incomes, those who get the largest share of the annual product, and we can tax them whether we live in Eastern States or in Europe. The Eastern States and Europe are the home of those who in effect are absentee landlords. Why should they not be required to pay for the support of the United States in proportion to the income they receive?

"It is alleged that an income tax puts a premium on fraud and that it cannot be collected fairly. It is compared with the personal tax as we know it in this country. Even if the methods of assessing the income tax were no better than the methods of assessing the personal tax, the income tax would be vastly better, because it is so much lighter and so much more effective. The income tax, however, need not be assessed in the crude fashion of the personal tax.

"A comparison of the two forms of taxation merely shows ignorance. Three-fifths of the British income tax is collected without reliance upon any statement of the persons whose income is taxed, without inquisitorial procedure and with almost absolute exactness. In all cases where it is possible the British income tax is collected before the income reaches the person entitled to receive it. No State can imitate this method because its jurisdiction is not sufficiently extensive, but the United States can imitate it, and perhaps improve it.

"It is said by some that an income tax is the fairest tax ever devised. I do not subscribe to that statement, but it is undoubtedly the fairest tax that is now practicable for Federal purposes in the United States."

TAGGART BESTS MARSHALL.

Blocks Governor's Move to Keep Him Out of Senatorial Contest.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 24.—With the meeting of the Democratic Editorial Association to-day Tom Taggart won his second victory over Gov. Marshall. Gov. Marshall suggested that the Democratic State convention, which meets in April, should name a candidate for the United States Senate so as to eliminatee Taggart, who, he knew, would go before the Democratic caucus if the Legislature were Democratic, but would not go before the convention.

Taggart enlisted the State Chairman and members of the committee on his side and sent out articles to various newspapers with arguments against naming a candidate for the Senate. He caused the Executive Committee of the Editorial Association to be called together to-day.

Even the friends of the Governor were convinced that the step would be impolitic and that it might cost the Democrats the Legislature if persisted in.

GRAFT CHARGES BY BUILDER.

Beyer Says He Paid Blackmail in Queens to Two Inspectors.

Backing his accusations with an affidavit and the copy of a letter, George A. Beyer, a retired builder living in Forest Avenue, Ridgewood, in Queens, yesterday publicly stated that for four years he had been compelled to pay tribute to two employes of the Bureau of Buildings.

This condition of affairs, Beyer alleges he made known to President Lawrence Gresser on Dec. 27, last year. With two friends, he declares he called at President Gresser's home, where his charges were put in affidavit form by the President's son, Lawyer Lawrence T. Gresser. This information Beyer insists was not a complaint, but simply for the personal information of President Gresser that he might know what was going on in the Building Department.

After making this affidavit, Beyer says, the two Building Department employes were suspended, and he was cited to testify against them, but declined to do so, as he considered his information confidential. Therefore the charges were dismissed, and the two men reinstated. At the time of receiving a summons to testify against the two men Beyer said he sent President Gresser a letter, in which he explained why he did not appear at the trial.

Carl Berger, Superintendent of Buildings, said yesterday that George A. Brown, his chief clerk, and James A. Capper, an Inspector, were the men placed on trial following Beyer's visit to the Borough President. Supt. Berger said that the accuser simply named "a Mr. Brown," not George A. Brown. Beyer failed to appear and when Brown and Capper swore that the charges were false both were restored. Supt. Berger added that the motive back of the whole thing was the desire of some one to get him out of the department.

Beyer said yesterday that the reason he could afford to make the charges was that he had retired from active business.

"If I was still engaged in active operations," he said, "I would not dare to come out with accusations of any kind against that department."

It is probable that Beyer will be one of the star witnesses in the graft hunt which is to be started next month by the Grand Jury.

WALSH SUED FOR $250,000.

Lawyer Hansen, Who Handled Girl's Suit Against Him, Charges Libel.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Damages of $250,000 for alleged libel and conspiracy are demanded of Thomas F. Walsh, the mine owner of Colorado and Washington, in a suit filed to-day in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia by Dethlef C. Hansen, a New York lawyer. Joined as defendants with Mr. Walsh are his Washington representative, Turner A. Wickersham, and De Lancey Nicoll, Courtland V. Anable, John D. Lindsay, and George Gordon Battle, members of the New York bar.

Hansen alleges that Mr. Walsh caused to be published in a Denver newspaper July 12, 1905, a statement in which, it is alleged, he referred to Hansen as a "blackmailer and perjurer." The plaintiff says he was retained by Violet Watson, a minor, to prosecute a suit against Walsh which he filed September 6, 1904, in the New York courts. He retained as associate counsel ex-Secretary of the Treasury John G. Carlisle. Before the case came to a hearing, Hansen says, Walsh's attorneys effected a settlement for $55,000 and refused to settle his claim for attorney's fees.

He declares that the defendant then entered into a conspiracy to ruin his standing as a member of the New York bar, and caused charges to be preferred against him with the Grievance Committee of the Bar Association. Only a portion of these charges were sustained, he says, and he was disbarred for one year.

Mr. Walsh reached here to-day. He was accompanied by Mrs. Walsh, Mr. and Mrs. Edward McLean, his son-in-law and daughter; Drs. Barker and Wainwright, and two nurses. His condition was said to be much improved.

WOULD OWN WRIGHT PATENTS

W. M. Page Suggests That Congress Condemn Them for the Public.

The necessity of a suitable aeronautical equipment for our National defense was the chief topic of the addresses last night at the annual dinner of the Aero Club of America at the Hotel St. Regis. The subject was discussed by Congressman J. Sloat Fassett and Brig. Gen. James Allen, Chief of the United States Signal Corps, and other speakers.

Many suggestions were advanced, among others that of William M. Page, who proposed that Congress should condemn the Wright patents, as in the case of a piece of property that interferes with public improvements and reimburse the Wright brothers for their loss.

President Cortlandt Field Bishop of the Aero Club of America urged all those present to lend their aid in obtaining a Congressional appropriation for the development of aviation, and called particular attention to the fact that the European Governments were spending considerable money along these lines, while the United States was practically standing still.

PREPARE FOR WORST, FRIEND TELLS ALLDS

His Adviser, High in Senate Circles, Cautions Him of Possibility of an Adverse Vote.

MAY MEAN FINANCIAL RUIN

Bitterness Against Conger Is Crystallizing Into a Movement to Have Him, Too, Removed.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 24.—Senator Jotham P. Allds of Chenango, whose trial before the Senate on a charge of having demanded and accepted a thousand-dollar bribe to influence his official action as majority leader in the 1901 session of the Assembly, came to a close yesterday, was told by a close personal and political friend to-day to prepare for the worst. No attempt has been made to take a poll of the Senate. At no time in recent years have members of that body been so reticent with regard to any prospective action, but the friend who told Senator Allds, is in an exceptional position to gauge the sentiment among the members of the upper house on the question of Allds's guilt or innocence.

Senator Allds, it was said to-day, was shocked by the news. He never has seemed to realize the serious position in which the charges preferred by his colleague, Benn Conger, have placed him. To-day he left the presence of his friend with a grave face, realizing that the action of his brother Senators when they meet next Tuesday may mean ruin to him, financially as well as politically, if his means really are as limited as the evidence brought out in the course of the hearings would seem to indicate.

Should the Senate decide against Allds, he would be compelled personally to bear the heavy expenditures in connection with his defense, and that, in the opinion of his friends, would leave but little of the moderate fortune he owned up to on the stand. Should he be acquitted the State will pay a reasonable fee to the counsel who have defended him.

There has been some talk here of Senator Allds resigning. The accused Senator, however, has no such intention—at least not until after the verdict has been rendered. Some of the Republicans in the Senate have expressed the opinion that this action would save the party considerable embarrassment. Others realize that, if possible, it would place them in a worse hole than ever, for under the rules adopted by the Senate to govern the Allds investigation, a vote on whether the charges shall be sustained or not must be rendered regardless of whether Allds remains in the Senate. His voluntary retirement at this particular time, they argue, would appear to the public as an acknowledgment of guilt, and render it necessary for them to vote against him on Tuesday, whether their convictions run that way or not.

Senator Conger left for his home at Groton immediately after the close of yesterday's hearing, apparently in good spirits. It is the impression here that despite his statement that he would stick unless put out, Senator Conger will retire voluntarily, no matter what the verdict in the Allds case may be.

A verdict undoubtedly will be rendered on Tuesday. This must de supplemented, however, by affirmative action by the Senate before the seat of one or both Senators can be declared vacant. Should the seats be vacated, Gov. Hughes will have the right to order a special election in the two districts, provided the vacancy occurs prior to April 1. The time margin in this instance would be narrow, as Tuesday is the 29th of March.

It would be difficult for any person not actually in touch with the situation at the Capitol to appreciate the bitterness that exists against Senator Conger among his fellow-members of the upper house. One of the Senators who voted for Hinman for majority leader in the recent Senate caucus and who, therefore, cannot be regarded as an Allds partisan, said to-day that regardless of any verdict he would move to have charges preferred against Senator Conger before a Senate committee the moment the Allds case had been decided.

"And should the Senate fail to expel Conger, I shall offer my resignation," said this Senator. "I cannot sit in this Chamber with a man like Conger."

It was learned to-day that the close of the Allds investigation will be followed promptly by a movement on the part of independent members of the Senate looking to a broader investigation, probably along the lines of the Newcomb resolution. They feel that the party cannot face the voters next Fall unless it shows its good faith in providing some tribunal where any charges backed by a reasonable amount of evidence, not the irresponsible gossip of the corridors, can be investigated fully and fairly.

COMPARES TAFT AND LINCOLN.

President Has Reversed His Predecessor's Policy, Dr. McGee Says.

Closing a lecture on "The Conservation Movement" at the American Museum of Natural History last night Dr. W. J. McGee, Secretary of the Inland Waterway Commission, made comparison, as many in the audience thought, between President Taft and his policies and Lincoln and his. Dr. McGee had been telling his hearers that our forests will only last from twenty-five to thirty-three years at the present rate of consumption; that our high grade of iron ore will be consumed by 1950, and that we only have coal enough to last for a couple of centuries. Suddenly he leaned forward and continued:

"To whom does this country belong?" he asked. "It belongs to the people of the United States. Their rights are paramount, and they are competent under the Constitution to control their own as they will. A modern idea has grown up that the American people are not able to govern. Have we forgotten that great precept of Lincoln, 'A Government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth'? Other expressions have arisen, and they have come from high places, too. Listen: 'Ours is a Government by party. If it is not by party we might as well go out of business.' It is for you Americans to say whether the earlier of these statements is not the true one. The issue to-day is the elective privilege. Shall we have a Government of the people for the interests of privilege or not? The future of America depends on the American people who are entitled to use the elective function."

Earlier in the evening Dr. McGee said that more than 80 per cent of the lumber lands in this country are in the hands of monopolies.

"This cuts off industrial independence," he said, "and creates a population of industrial dependents exercising no industrial development rights save at the behest of monopolists. Only nine million of our voters to-day are industrially independent. Another nine million are industrially dependent, nominally exercising the franchise privilege, but really only doing so at the behest of captains of industry and other industrial employers."

Turning to his own particular subject of investigation, Dr. McGee said:

"There is a confusion to-day in this country as to the rights connected with water. You in New York City have learned that water is of paramount value transcending that of land. You see the true relation between water and land here, land being merely a purtenance to water. How long will it be before the rural population learns what you have—that the rights to water reside with the people? Shall we allow private individuals, as in the case of coal and lumber, to exploit this resource solely for private profit? Six trillion tons of fresh water is our total calibre a year. There is a consumption of 4,400 tons of water per inhabitant a year. On a land basis this country could sustain a population of two billions.

"On a water basis it could sustain only a population of a billion, which at the present rate of increase will come about in three centuries or in about the time since the Pilgrims landed. It is high time that the American people take a greater interest in the water question, for it depends on them whether it will pass under the control of private monopoly."

Gifford Pinchot, President of the Commission, now on his way to Europe, was to have spoken last night, and Dr. McGee at the beginning of his address said: "I greatly regret that Gifford Pinchot, the apostle of the doctrine of conservation, is not with you, for he knows how to speak with the depth of conviction and with the zeal and enthusiasm of a devotee."

FOOTBALL MEN HERE.

Intercollegiate Rules Committee Assembles to Make Changes in Code.

Nearly all the members of the Intercollegiate Football Rules Committee, which will convene at 10 o'clock to-day at the Hotel Cumberland for its second session of the year, were in town early last night. Only the Princeton and Pennsylvania delegates failed to put in an appearance, and they are sure to come to town on trains this morning.

Those in town last night were: Prof. L. M. Dennis, of Cornell, chairman of the committee; Walter Camp, of Yale; Lieut. J. D. Berrient, of the Naval Academy; Lieut. H. H. Hackett, of the United States Military Academy; E. K. Hall, of Dartmouth, secretary of the committee; Prof. W. L. Dudley, of Vanderbilt University; A. A. Stagg, of the University of Chicago; Dr. W. A. Lambeth, of the University of Virginia; Dr. H. L. Williams, of the University of Minnesota; Prof. C. W. Savage, of Oberlin College, and Crawford Blagden, of Harvard.

The principal theme of discussion at all the university clubs and the Hotel Cumberland last night was, of course, football; and attention was principally riveted on three phases of the game: the present forward pass across the line of scrimmage, the onside kick, and the present and newly proposed neutral zones.

Naturally enough, not one of the rulemakers was willing to be quoted in advance of the probable final action of the committee to-day and to-morrow in framing the new code. But enough was hinted at and talked about to lead one to the belief that the present forward pass is now a thing of the past, and that hereafter a forward pass will be permitted only back of the line of scrimmage.

The onside kick, however, is likely to stay, as a sort of compromise for eliminating the existing forward pass. There will probably be a new neutral zone established to protect the catcher of a kick, with restrictions on diving tackles, and the abandonment of the present neutral zone between the lines of forwards. Another change which met with outspoken approval was the provision that seven men should be at all times on the attacking line of scrimmage, with the probable further proviso that three of them should be on each side of centre except when proximity to the side lines prevented this formation.

FERNS AND STEIN DRAW.

Long Acre Athletic Club's Feature Bout Rather Tame.

Harry Ferns of Far Rockaway and Joe Stein of the east side indulged in ten rounds of boxing at the Long Acre Athletic Association last night, and when the clash was ended neither boxer had accomplished anything to boast about. Stein forced the fighting most of the way, with Ferns playing a defensive game with more or less success. Although he was slow for more than half the distance, Ferns in the ninth and tenth planted vigorous rights and lefts against Stein's face, which sent his head back and forced him to clinch and hang on. Stein hammered Fern's face hard early in the fight, and the Far Rockaway fighter was bleeding freely from the nose after the second session. Stein depended on a straight left jab, which didn't appear to trouble Ferns much when it landed.

For the first two rounds the honors were even, Stein rushing Ferns and poking his jaw with a straight left and occasionally slapping a right against Fern's stomach. Stein invariably rushed into a clinch, and there was no in-fighting of any account. Ferns after the second round let Stein rush at him and staved off a number of the smashes with his shoulders, and several times caught Stein with a stiff right upper cut as he came rushing in.

In the fourth Ferns showed a bit of speed and exchanged punches with his opponent until both were bleeding at the nose. Ferns did some pretty blocking in this session and sent Stein's head back with well-placed uppercuts. Stein had a habit of butting Ferns with his head and was cautioned by the referee.

In the fifth, sixth, and seventh Stein forced the fighting and peppered Ferns often, and when he didn't land he rushed him against the ropes and tried to hammer his body with short jabs. At this period it looked as if Stein had a decided advantage, for he was carying all the fighting to Ferns, while the latter seemed to be playing a waiting game. In the ninth and tenth Ferns cut loose and stopped the agressive tactics of Stein with several vicious straight-arm jolts to the jaw, some of them staggering Stein and making him more cautious.

WOLGAST PICKS JEFF TO WIN.

Lightweight Champion Says Johnson Won't Last Ten Rounds.

Wolgast, the lightweight champion, is firmly of the belief that Jeffries will whip Johnson in their battle on July 4. "I have seen both men fight," Wolgast says, "and, being in the game and a champion, I should be competent to judge some. Jim Jeffries will clean the big black inside of ten rounds sure. Johnson never fought a real classy big fellow like Jeffries, and when they enter the ring he will feel like a sparerib. Jeffries has been there before. He never has been defeated. He can come back. Johnson is not taking care of himself, and then, when he does begin training he will overdo things in order to get right to face Jeffries. I know what I am talking about."

Speaking of a return match with Battling Nelson, Wolgast says that he promised the ex-champion in San Francisco that he would give him another chance, and it is now up to him to say what he is going to do. "He made the terms in the last battle and got the lion's share of the coin. Now it is my turn to dictate. I feel that he would draw more money at the gate than any other fighter. Nelson is a game man, but he is the meanest fighter I ever met, and I don't fear him. It will simply be a walk-over for me if we meet again. I was half scared the first time I met Nelson at Los Angeles, a year ago. Up to the fifth round I didn't know where I was.

"After I discovered that he was not such a terror as he had been painted I got busy. Well, that ten-round affair satisfied me. I knew that I could beat him over a route. In the last fight I found that Nelson was blowing up after the tenth round. I probably would have finished him inside of twenty rounds but for the poor coaching I received. My second feared Nelson was shamming and just loafing in order to draw me on. I know now that he was not there. He will not last twenty rounds the next time."

New York Yacht Club Meeting.

At a meeting of the New York Yacht Club last night the minimum limit of enrollment of yachts was raised from thirty to thirty-eight feet after a lively discussion. Twenty-three new members were elected, among them one woman "flag member." Commodore Arthur Curtiss James presided. The matter of raising the limit of enrollment was up at the last meeting, and was laid over for further consideration.

POLO CRACKS PLAY IN LAKEWOOD GAME

Major Beresford Thrown as Pony Stumbles, but He Escapes Injury.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., March 24.—There was every indication to-day that the polo players at the carnival here are getting down to form, for the game played at Georgian Court was of a character to satisfy the most enthusiastic polo enthusiasts. Stoddard's team defeated Whitney's team 7½ goals to 5¾.

The conditions for fast playing were perfect, as the weather was ideal and the crowds surrounding the field were very demonstrative. The grounds were surrounded with scores of automobiles, and on a large tallyho in the centre of the side lines Mrs. George J. Gould entertained a party of friends.

To-day's game brought out for the first time in the carnival a number of cracks of the sport, and they rewarded the crowd with brilliant playing. Harry Payne Whitney, L. Waterbury, and Major Beresford of England were seen for the first time in to-day's clash, and gave a most exciting exhibition of the sport.

An exciting incident which occurred in the fifth period was the throwing of Beresford by his mount as a result of a stumble when the pony was going down the field at full speed. The rider fortunately was not injured, and after a little rubbing was able to resume play.

The two Britishers, Beresford and Miller, showed up in strong form, Miller being especially keen in following the ball on drives. Drury was in splendid form, riding hard, and being certain on his drives. Whitney was also in every mixup, and showed excellent condition thus early in the carnival.

Drury drove in four goals for Stoddard's colors and Stoddard himself drove in two. Whitney scored two for his team, while the rest were scattered. There will be two games played simultaneously Saturday afternoon, commencing at 3 o'clock. The line-up:

Whitney's team—Raymond Belmont, W. L. Goodwin, H. P. Whitney, and L. Waterbury.

Stoddard's team—Major J. G. Beresford, Hugh Drury, L. E. Stoddard, and Capt. E. D. Miller.

It was employes' benefit night at St. Nicholas Rink last evening and a varied programme was offered to a good sized assemblage of spectators. The feature was a hockey match between the Wanderers of this city and a seven, picked from the other Amateur Hockey League teams, which went under the title of All New York. This contribution to the evening's entertainment resulted in a victory for the seven representing the Wanderers Skating Club. The score of 5 to 2 was the measure of vindication which the combination meted out to the group of rival players, of whom many were members of the New York A. C. seven, which won the championship of the Amateur Hockey League.

There were several novel events on the programme, several of which were replete with skill. The half-mile handicap race went to William M. Taylor of the New York A. C. Phil Kearney started in the first heat, but he stood no chance of catching the limit men, his stay in Pittsburg having made him unfamiliar with the sharp turns of the St. Nicholas Rink.

Morris Wood, the champion professional skater of the world, skated a quarter-mile exhibition in 0:44 3-5, and later assisted Peter Sinnirud in barrel jumping stunts. The latter cleared six barrels on a straight jump and did several fancy jumps. Wood also managed to get over six barrels, but only after he had a bad spill on his first attempt.

George W. Kierner, the professional instructor at the rink, gave a difficult exhibition of fancy skating. He came on the ice in the regalia of a ballet dancer, and there were few who knew the identity of the skater, the majority thinking it was some remarkable woman performer. He did many clever turns, which aroused much applause. The summary:

Wanderers.	Position.	All New York.

Sineoten	Point	Russell
Garon	Cover point	Broadfoot
S. Cleghorn	Centre	Castleman

Taylor, New York A. C., (40 yards;) K. P. Dayton, New York A. C., (30 yards,) second; H. C. Palliser, Brooklyn, third. Time—1:26.

Italian Fencers on Mat.

The Italian-American Fencing Academy of this city last night held a fencing contest at the academy, 21 West Seventeenth Street, closed to the members. The contest was governed by the Italian rules, which awarded the honors to the contestants receiving the least number of touches, in which G. Tonelli was the victor, with J. Schiaffina and T. Calagero fencing a tie for second place. In the fence-off Schiaffina defeated Calagero 3 to 2, and captured second place. Three gold medals were awarded to the three victorious swordsmen by Prof. J. Rossi of the academy, and the winner gave an exhibition bout with the professor.

Changes in Penn Football Dates.

PHILADELPHIA, March 24.—Important changes in the University of Pennsylvania's football schedule were announced to-day. The University of Michigan team will play on Franklin Field again this year. Brown, however, will be played at Providence. Syracuse will be played here on the Saturday before Thanksgiving Day, a date which heretofore has been reserved to enable the team to rest up for the Cornell game.

NOTES OF THE TURF.

John E. Madden's string of twelve horses arrived at Sheepshead Bay from Kentucky yesterday. They will at once be put into training.

Word was received in New York yesterday of the sudden death of Robert L. Tucker at Louisville. Tucker trained Broomstick when that horse beat Irish Lad in the Brighton Handicap of 1904, hanging up a world's record of 2:02 4-5 for the mile and a quarter.

The Rockaway Hunting Club will conduct a one-day race meeting at Cedarhurst, L. I., Saturday, April 30. Six races are programmed and the Race Committee is composed of Fletcher Harper, Rene La Montagne, Franklin B. Voss, and Phillips B. Thompson.

Whatstheuse, all crowded into one word, is the registered name of one of the two-year-olds that will perform this year. This one is a chestnut daughter of Major Daingerfield and Acetylene, and is one of the many senseless names that appears in the list of names published in the racing calendar yesterday.

Billiards and Pool.

Before a crowd of 300 spectators Mr. and Mrs. King divided honors in yesterday's games of the exhibition handicap pool tournament at the Morningside Billiard Academy, 125th Street and Lennox Avenue. In the afternoon game Mr. King (100) won by the score of 100 to 68, and in the evening game Mrs. King (75) defeated Mr. King (100) by the score of 75 to 94.

In last night's game of the "Yannigans'" three-cushion carrom handicap billiard tournament at John Doyle's Billiard Academy, Forty-second Street and Broadway, A. Sherman (scratch) defeated H. Cefola (8) by the score of 20 to 16. In the continuation of the Class A pool tournament E. Raynolds defeated J. Stone by the score of 75 to 70.

There was only one game played last night in the amateur handicap three-cushion carrom billiard tournament at McGraw's Billiard Academy, Thirty-fifth Street and Sixth Avenue, in which C. H. Warrington, handicapped at 5, defeated J. H. Wilson in 100 innings by the score of 35 to 32.

A JANITOR SUES FOR SLANDER.

Egan Wants School Commissioner Delaney to Pay $20,000.

Thomas M. Delaney, a Brooklyn School Commissioner, who had the temerity last Fall to oppose Janitor James J. Egan of Public School 60, Fourth Avenue and Twentieth Street, Brooklyn, has been made the defendant in a suit just brought by Janitor Egan, who asks for $20,000 damages for slander. Egan also will sue another School Commissioner, who, he says, uttered language derogatory to his janitorial character, according to Nathan B. Chadsey of 2 Rector Street, his lawyer.

At a meeting of the Board of Education on Oct. 13 last, according to the complaint, while the board was considering the question of fining Egan seventy-six days' pay for storing school property outside the building, a technical violation of the rules, Commissioner Delaney arose and said:

"I object to the fine because it is not half enough. This man, who is in my district, has given nothing but trouble. He also made trouble in Schools 82 and 124. I don't want him in my district. If he's left there it will take me thirty days a month to watch him."

The day after this speech, Egan says, he was given the highest rating within the power of the Inspectors for the judicious use of coal in his building. He was an "A" man.

Egan, however, was transferred to another school, and since October has instituted proceedings to have the seventy-six days' fine reduced; to bring Commissioner Delaney before Mayor Gaynor on charges of oppression; for reinstatement in his old school, and now to recover $20,000 damages.

HOLIDAY RESTRICTS TRADE

Speculative Commitments Reduced on Eve of Three-Day Recess—The Break in Granby—Cash Movements.

The volume of trading in yesterday's market reflected very clearly the indisposition of the speculative element to take on commitments in a market about to indulge in a triple holiday. Prices were to some extent held in check by reason of the same fact although there appeared to run through the session an undertone of firmness attributable in part, at least, to scovering operations by traders who had worked for a severe break before the recess. The only features of the day's markets were the very sharp drop in Allis-Chalmers issues here, and a further break in Granby Copper shares in Boston, following an equally abrupt decline in this market on the previous day. It appears that an effort was made to liquidate certain bonds and stocks of the Allis-Chalmers Company held in an estate, but owing to the narrowness of the market for these securities the offering of them produced an immediate decline and set in motion any number of disquieting reports. These were at once denied on the authority of the company's officers, and the security made partial recovery before the close of the day. The Granby situation is much more obscure. On the face of things it would seem that those concerned with the management of this corporation have been less frank with their stockholders than was incumbent upon them, particularly in view of the fact that only a few weeks ago they called upon stockholders to subscribe to a new issue of shares without the least intimation that conditions with the mines were not as favorable as ever. Exactly what these conditions are has not been disclosed, but it is quite apparent that some one is either fully conversant with them or at least is taking no chances on the findings. A decline of 35 points is satisfactory evidence of this. Of general interest were the reaching of an agreement over the questions in dispute between Western railroad employes and the executives of these properties, reassuring reports from a mercantile agency and a grain trade paper which have independently made careful investigations into the condition of the Winter wheat fields, and the better action of the new city bonds.

Owing to the holiday, which does not, however, extend to banking institutions, estimates were made up yesterday of the currency movements of the week simply for the benefit of Stock Exchange interests. These show on known movements a loss of above $3,000,000 in cash thus far, and unless offset in some such fashion as was the similar apparent loss a week ago must produce a lower reserve in to-morrow's weekly statement. The money market has been full of cross-currents through the week, however, and the real outcome is very much in doubt. The Bank of England made a poor showing in its weekly return—the poorest, in fact, at this season in a great many years in point of reserves—with the result that London was again discussing the possibility of another advance in the discount. Consols toucher another new low level for the present movement, and this fact, together with the tangled position of affairs in Government finance and in politics, is seriously affecting sentiment in the English capital. Curiously enough the rubber speculation goes forward undisturbed and under circumstances which, if duplicated in this city, would draw down upon our heads bitter denunciation of English and Continental financial circles.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Thursday.

Activity on the Consolidated Exchange was practically confined to the forenoon session. Floor sentiment continued bearish, but the short interest was inclined to be a little nervous, in view of recent indications that it was in a somewhat over-extended position. Lending rates for stocks at the close of the day were slightly higher than on Wednesday, showing that a portion of the short interest had been retired. Sales of all issues totaled 64,780 shares, distributed among forty-nine different stocks.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Trading in Fair Volume on Eve of Triple Holiday, but Prices Sag on Curb.

COPPERS CHIEF LOSERS

Many Issues Show Declines at Close—Butte Coalition and Rubber Shares Close Above Opening Levels.

On the eve of the triple holiday yesterday trading was a trifle more active in the general list, though transactions in some of the individual stocks were less than in recent markets. Prices were heavy in most issues, though there were some marked exceptions. Butte Coalition rose from 24½ to 25¼ on transactions of 2,000 shares, and Intercontinental Rubber recovered some of its recent decline, going from its low point yesterday of 24¾ to 26 at the close, after transactions of 5,400 shares. Among the coppers, Greene-Cananea declined ⅛, Miami ⅝, and Nevada Consolidated ¼.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Nominal Loss to the Interior.

The usual estimates of the week's currency movement were made up a day earlier than usual this week on account of the Stock Exchange holiday to-day. They show the movement only up to Thursday. In the shortened period the known movements indicate a loss to the banks of $3,320,000, mostly due to Sub-Treasury operations, the loss to the interior being only nominal. Shipments to the interior, including $2,443,000 banknotes sent to Washington for redemption, were estimated at $6,878,000, of which, however, all but $165,000 was made up by receipts from the interior totaling $6,713,000. The loss on Sub-Treasury operations totaled $4,619,000, the banks having paid into that institution $22,858,000 for customs, internal revenue, 5 per cent. redemption fund, &c., against the $18,239,000 disbursements made by the Sub-Treasury. It is predicted that the bank statement on Saturday will show a larger cash loss than indicated because of the falling off in receipts from the interior, which became marked in the last few days. This decline in the receipts of funds from the interior, which were $2,200,000 less this week than last, is taken as an indication of the growing Spring demand.

Rubber Boom Not Minced.

Environment, in speculation at least, isn't everything. For example, it was in Mincing Lane, among the Colonial produce brokers, that the great London "rubber boom" had its origin.

⁂

Watching Money Grow.

Wall Street has such a whole-hearted way of examining the mouths of gift horses that it is not surprising to learn that some of its statisticians have been at work trying to figure out just what the Rockefeller Foundation will amount to in dollars and cents in future times if Congress doesn't make it imperative, in granting the charter, that the entire income each year from the endowment be spent. One mathematician having assumed that the endowment will be $300,000,000, that it will earn 5 per cent., and that Congress will be farsighted enough to insist that not more than one-tenth of this income be subject to reinvestment each year, has figured that at the end of 100 years the Foundation will possess $494,000,000, and at the end of the second hundred years, $810,000,000. Beyond that the amounts become stupefying, even on the supposition that only one-tenth of the yearly income is saved. The possibility suggests all the direful conditions pictured by H. G. Wells in his fantastic novel, where the hero's estate piles up during his nap extending over some centuries.

Some Examples to Hand.

Many economists have pointed out the ultimate danger to the public of permitting uninterrupted accumulation of interest on a given sum. Several writers have insisted that a good instance of what may some day prove a troublesome financial problem exists in the case of a semi-philanthropic institution in Boston which was founded in 1838 by a bequest of $200,000, with the condition that 10 per cent. of the income from it should be reinvested and added to the principal, the provision applying in perpetuity. Theoretically, there is no limit to the accumulation thus made possible, and the fund itself after sixty-seven years under these conditions amounted to $1,100,000. Benjamin Franklin proved that he had a clear notion of the way money heaps up when left undisturbed when he left £1,000 to Boston at his death in 1790, with the proviso that it should accumulate for 100 years, at the end of which time he figured it would amount to £131,000. It actually amounted to $400,000 at the expiration of the period. A similar sum left to the City of Philadelphia increased not nearly so fast, naturally enough.

The April Disbursements.

Money markets have immediately before them the financing of the heavy April disbursements, which this year are estimated at nearly $159,000,000, as against $151,000,000 on April 1, 1909, and $140,000,000 in April, 1908. Present payments constitute practically a record for the period. Of this great sum, dividends call for more than $91,000,000 and interest for $67,000,000. It is usually the case that in the course of the financing of these payments, which are largely made by means of checks, money returns to the banks rather slowly, and borrowers, therefore, are temporarily compelled to pay more for accommodation.

Bank of England's Reserve.

The week's returns of the Bank of England show 47.45 per cent. reserve to liabilities, which is still ahead of the usual reserve, but represents a decline of nearly 2 per cent. since last week, and brings the reserve below the showing of last year and the year before. The ten-year average is 46.02 per cent. The London cables also told of a further drop yesterday in consols, which fell for money to 80⅞, the lowest since 1907. It was pointed out that the issuance on Monday of $105,000,000 of three-year Exchequer bonds had undoubtedly had its effect on the market.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 24.—The local market was weak at the opening to-day, with Granby again the feature, selling at 50 in the first hour. There are several reasons given for the extreme weakness in this issue, all of which are very vague. Arizona Commercial recorded a further decline to 26½, North Butte to 37½, and North Lake lost 2 points, to 20½. The general list closed steady at a fractional rally. Owing to the double holiday there will be no session of the Boston Exchange until Monday, March 28.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Money Is Higher and Discount Rates Are Firm in London.

LONDON, March 24.—Money rates advanced to-day owing to an increased demand for holiday requirements and the payment of Treasury bills. Discount rates were firm. Trading on the Stock Exchange was quiet, but the undertone was good, especially in home and Mexican rails, Rhodesian mines, and rubber shares, which hardened. Gilt-edged securities were steadily maintained, but foreign bonds were inclined to ease.

American securities were quiet and steady during the early trading. Professionel support caused fractional advances, but in the afternoon the market declined on New York selling, and the close was easy.

Bar silver was steady at 23 15-16d per ounce.

Money, 3@3¾ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3⅞ per cent.; for three months' bills, 3¾@3 13-16 per cent.

PARIS, March 24.—Prices were firm on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes, 98f 42½c for the account.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the following trade opportunities abroad. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of the item referred to:

4,707. AMERICAN DRUGS.—A prominent druggist in the Far East advises an American Consul that he is anxious to get in touch with manufacturers of drugs in the United States for the purpose of securing catalogues and other literature relating to the same.

4,708. AGENCY FOR AMERICAN GOODS.—An American Consular officer on an island in the Indian Ocean has forwarded the name of a commercial representative in his district who desires to form business relations with houses in the United States with a view to importing and exporting goods from and to the United States.

4,709. MACHINERY AND IRON AND STEEL WARES.—A prominent trade association in Germany advises an American Consular officer that it is anxious to assume the agency for that country of American manufactures of various kinds of machinery or iron and steel wares. It especially desires some popular novelty that has not been introduced into Germany, and prefers to work up on a commission basis.

4,710. FLOUR FOR PORTO RICO.—One of the special agents of the Department of Commerce and Labor has furnished the name of a firm in Porto Rico that would make an excellent representative for American millers desiring to secure a market for their output. Shipments should be made from either New York or New Orleans, preferably the latter port, and prices should include a 3 per cent. commission. Liberal samples should be sent before shipment, and all details such as codes, addresses, &c., as well as the different ports of the island to which firms may be called upon to ship. The agent says there is a good business to be done, and it should be easy to make sales aggregating 10,000 sacks per year.

4,711. FURNITURE CATALOGUES.—An American Consul in China requests American furniture manufacturers or their agents to send their latest catalogues with wholesale and retail export price lists in duplicate, in order that inquirers in his district may be given information which they request in regard to this line of goods.

4,712. WIRE NETTING AND FENCING.—An American Consul in the Far East reports that increased attention is being paid in the country in which he is located to wire netting and fencing of all kinds, and many of the local Governments are now arranging to buy such netting in large quantities to sell to local farmers. One official would like to get quotations from American firms prepared to ship wire netting on a reasonable basis.

4,713. AMERICAN GOODS FOR SPAIN.—A firm of general importers in Spain has advised an American Consul that it is in the market for office furniture of all kinds in wood and steel, office supplies, pens, pencils, ink, carbon papers, blotting paper, stationers' novelties, men's, women's, and children's shoes, shoe blacking, metal polishes, hardware supplies, and stamped steel ceilings.

4,714. MOTORS AND MOTOR BOATS.—An American Consul in a European country replying to inquiries from the United States states there seems to be an exceptional opportunity in his district for the introduction of American motor boats and motors, and the opening is for both the light, fast boat, and the heavier and more substantially built boat used for fishing. American firms desiring to enter that market should observe the suggestions, all of which are essentially to their advantage, and some of which are absolute requisites in the sale of motors, laid down in the report of the Consul.

4,715. PAPER BAGS FOR FLOUR OR CEMENT.—A German citizen has made inquiry at an American Consulate for the names of manufacturers of paper bags suitable for flour or cement. He is desirous of importing them in large quantities, and as he represents a firm that is about to put a new commodity on the German market which assures him a large order, he would like to receive the desired information as soon as possible.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 24.—Business came almost to a standstill on the local Exchange after the first hour of the session and trading was left largely to the boardroom element, who had a hard time to shave profits on the small fluctuations in prices. About the sole feature of interest was a decline in Cambria Steel shares on small dealings. This was attributed to the weakness in United States Steel in New York.

THE COMMODITIES MARKETS.

Wheat Stiffens on Damage Reports—Other Grains Follow — Provisions Strong—Cotton Inactive.

Wheat advanced about 1c. a bushel during the morning on the continued dry weather in Kansas, lost part of the advance on profit taking and evening up for the holidays, but was steady again at the close. The markets will be closed to-day, but open to-morrow. With all other American and foreign markets closed from Thursday night until Monday morning, and with the general holiday, there was very little new business coming into the market and generally a disposition to even up speculative commitments. The news was a repetition of that which has been coming in for days past. The weather was dry in the Southwest, and the complaints were continuous and insistent, but the complaints come from one locality and do not seem to be extending. The delay in the rainfall is naturally adding to the uneasiness over the situation, and the crop is believed to be generally suffering some deterioration, particularly in the Southwest. The movement of wheat is somewhat lighter at the interior, and with a falling off in the movement there is some expectation of a little steadying in the market for the nearby positions, which have been relatively weak on this advance. No. 2 red Winter, $1.25, to arrive, c. i. f.; No. 2 red spot, nominal, $1.29¼, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern Duluth, opening $1.26⅞; No. 2 hard Winter, nominal; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.18½.

Corn was quiet and a little firmer with wheat. There seemed to be a moderate amount of covering, and with somewhat more moderate Western movement the market showed a steadying tendency. Receipts have decreased this week about 500,000 bushels, and have been less than a year ago. Cash corn is very dull, however, and the large stocks press on the market. Cash corn quoted No. 2, nominal; No. 4, 62½c., and steamer, 64¼c., all elevator, export basis.

Oats were also a little firmer. There was some buying and covering, in sympathy with other grain. The movement of oats West, however, is heavy and materially exceeding last year, and the weather conditions are very favorable for early Spring work and for the seeding of the crop. Cash oats quoted natural white, 49@51c.; white clipped, 50½@53c.

Provisions were active and strong, and there was a heavy advance in values, pork striking new high levels, owing to the strength of live hogs and a further decrease of packing operations for the week of 195,000 compared with last year.

COTTON.

The cotton market is devoid of feature as far as surface indications go. It was extremely dull all day, and what little trading developed seemed to be just evening up on account of the holidays, which last in all cotton markets until Monday morning, and in the Liverpool market until Tuesday morning. While the surface indications were of great dullness, the position of the market is such that there are possibilities of violent change. The contest now going on in the market is a very severe one, and one in which neither side seems willing to make any concessions. It is generally believed that unlimited capital and great experience are arrayed on both sides, and every effort will be made to force the hand of the opposing side. What the outcome will be seems to be the question over which the trade is decidedly mixed, and opinions are almost as varied as the individuals. The weather conditions were favorable everywhere for field work. There is still absence of rain in Texas, and this absence of rain in that State creates nervousness and anxiety. The very favorable weather conditions elsewhere, however, tend to offset the Texas news.

Southern spot markets unchanged.

New York spot cotton quiet, 5 points advance. Middling uplands, 15.15; middling Gulf, 15.40.

COFFEE.

Coffee was inactive, the total sales amounted to 10,000 bags, and prices at the close were easier at unchanged to 10 points net decline. There was scattered selling for over the holidays, the market being closed from Thursday afternoon to Monday morning, and there was also moderate liquidation for outside account, and selling by a prominent Cotton Exchange house, with foreign and Southern connections. Havre was unchanged to ¼f higher, Hamburg was unchanged, and in Brazil both Rio and Santos were unchanged. Spot coffee was quiet but steady; 8 11-16@8¾c for Rio No. 7.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 24.—An advance of over 3 points in Illinois Brick shares on the local Exchange to-day was thought to foreshadow the declaration of a higher dividend by the Board of Directors next Monday. The brick company has a lot of new stock to distribute, and one of the surest ways to interest investors is to make dividend returns attractive. There was a moderate volume of trade scattered over other issues.

To the Minority Stockholders:

Following the refusal of Mr. George D. Mackay to furnish the undersigned stockholders with a list of stockholders, we take this means of communicating with you and of advising you that we are opposed to the sale of the minority stock on the terms offered in the circular issued by Mr. Mackay, nor do we see why 1½% should be deducted from this price for the services of a Committee which has succeeded in rendering no real value to the stockholders.

We accordingly invite your co-operation in an effort to secure for the minority stockholders their rights, of which they have now been for many years deprived.

We understand that the promises made by the past management to pay dividends during the present year equal to 40% of the net earnings, and to pay a stock dividend amounting to about 11% in order to recoup the stockholders for the loss of past dividends, are repudiated by the Purchasing Company. It was upon these promises, and not on the recommendation of the Mackay Committee, that the minority stock was allowed to be retained.

Stockholders are advised not to join in the proposed sale. Those wishing to co-operate with the undersigned Committee will please FORTHWITH address William C. Taylor, Secretary of the Committee, 37 Wall Street, N. Y. City.

Men who are busy making a success in some special line, but who know that nowadays no business or employment is so self-centred as to be independent of the rise or fall of prosperity in general trade, appreciate the terse, clean-cut statement of the condition of general business over the country condensed in THE NEW YORK TIMES WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW.
From the detailed reports of the great commercial agencies, from the newest crop observation, from the Clearing House returns, from the reports of the railroads, from the long and technical lists of prices, records of failures, and many other sources, the salient facts are culled so that a busy man or woman may read all in a few moments.
The aim of this epitome is not to present an opinion of conditions, but to give the reader the significant facts.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Trade Takes New Grip on Fifth Avenue—Sales in the Loft Zone—Record Price for Yonkers Realty—Brooklyn and Queens Active.

Trade in its northward march along Fifth Avenue has laid claim upon two more private dwellings in close proximity to the famous Vanderbilt houses and the Haggin and Goelet residences.

In fact, one of the houses at the northeast corner of Forty-eighth Street and Fifth Avenue is owned by the Goelet estate, while the other is the residence of Mrs. Roswell P. Flower, adjoining at 597 Fifth Avenue.

Together they form a plot 46.5 by 100, and pass to new interests under a long lease. It is understood that the lessees will erect a new structure in the near future on the site.

A well-known realty operator recently predicted that it was only a matter of a few years when Fifth Avenue south of Fifty-ninth Street would be devoted entirely to business.

Record Price for Yonkers Property.

Property in Yonkers seems to be experiencing a decided boom, for four important sales were recorded yesterday, and only the previous day Charles E. Otis sold his large estate on North Broadway, giving it in part payment for the new Brittania apartment on Cathedral Heights. That the demand for Yonkers property is a very substantial one as indicated by the fact that one of these latest sales established a new high-record price for real estate in that city. This was the sale of the three-story brick buildings on the southwest corner of Broadway and Main Street, the plot being 37.5 by 115, regarded as the choicest business corner in Yonkers. It was purchased by William F. Harrigan of Yonkers from Michael Dee for about $200,000. Mr. Dee recently secured the plot from the Waring estate. It is diagonally opposite the Getty House, and several trust companies and banks are in the same block. The new City Hall is being erected on the block to the south on Broadway. The brick structure adjoining on the south has been purchased by the newly organized Yonkers National Bank.

Of the other three sales, the largest comprised about fifty acres, being the Eliphalet W. Tyler place on the east side of North Broadway, north of Odell Street. It has been held at $2,000 an acre, and has been purchased by J. Romaine Brown and Alexander P. W. Kinnan. They intend to cut up the plot for building purposes.

The northeast corner of South Broadway and Randolph Street, a plot with frontages of 100 and 125 feet, respectively, has been bought by George Branchu for about $25,000. He will erect a two-story brick building on the site.

Theodore H. Silkman has sold two lots on the west side of South Broadway, just north of Valentine Lane, together with three lots abutting on Valentine Lane.

Sale in Loft Zone.

L. & A. Pincus sold to the Sun Construction Company, Benjamin Nieberg, President, 151 to 157 West Twenty-sixth Street, old buildings covering a plot 100 by 98.9, near Seventh Avenue. A twelve-story loft building is planned by the buyers.

Pease & Elliman have sold for Florence Espell and Martha Espell Craig 63 East Fifty-second Street, a three-story dwelling on lot 13.10 by 100.5. The buyer will occupy.

Apartments for Bronx Block Front.

Another apartment house in the Colonial Park section of Manhattan, where several important transactions have been recorded during the past week, was announced yesterday by the Realty Operating Company, which sold to Goldstone & Light 234 and 236 Bradhurst Avenue.

The property, a five-story apartment, is located on the southeast corner of 154th Street and occupies a plot 102 by 52 by irregular. The buyers gave in part payment the block front in the west side of Avenue St. John between Buck and Fox Streets, a plot 250 by 100.

Buys a Harlem Dwelling.

Jacob Israelson has sold for Edmund F. Swanberg, cashier of the German Exchange Bank, the three-story and basement dwelling, situated at 206 West 136th Street, to Michael Cohn of 1,133 Broadway, who after alterations are complete will occupy the same as his residence.

James O. Wright has sold for M. F. Levine the three-and-a-half-story brick private dwelling at 56 West 134th Street, on lot 16.10 by 99.11.

Clement H. Smith has resold for Moses Lowenstein a plot, 50 by 100, on the south side of Tremont Avenue, 50 feet west of Marmion Avenue.

Collins & Barry have sold for Mary E. Shea the five-story flat on the northwest corner of Clinton Avenue and Oalelard Place, (East 178th Street,) on a plot 23 by 100.

The Pohl-Abbott Construction Company has sold to William T. Rock the apartment houses known as the Hudson-Fulton apartments, situated at Beverly Road and East Twenty-first Street. These apartments have just been completed, being four stories in height, first story limestone and upper stories of red wire cut brick, having twenty apartments.

This is the second building Mr. Rock has bought from the Pohl-Abbott Construction Company, the former one being the Fiske Terrace apartments, Avenue H and East Fourteenth Street.

Jacob Ruppert Buys in Long Island City.

Jacob Ruppert has purchased through W. C. Martin a plot of five lots near the Queensboro Bridge plaza in Long Island City at the northwest corner of Jackson Avenue and Washington Place. Mr. Ruppert will improve the property at once.

Lohman Park Is Sold.

Lohman Park, a well-known Brooklyn picnic resort in the East New York section was sold yesterday by its owner, John Lohman, to Robert H. Koehler of 40 Wall Street and Arthur W. Pohlman of Brooklyn. The property has been owned by the Lohman family since 1835. It is situated on the north side of Liberty Avenue and extends from Vermont to Wyona Street, 175 feet in each street.

It is understood the consideration was about $40,000. The new owners state the park will be discontinued as a pleasure resort, the site to be utilized for building purposes.

BUILDING MATERIAL.

Experience Counts.

OUR years of successful experience in selling face brick of quality has developed our business so that we distribute more face brick than any other dealer in the world.

Quality, durability, richness in coloring, mean much to the success of building. Exteriors attract or detract as much as interiors.

When your architect specifies our brick, you can depend upon it that he has your interest in mind. Also Bath Portland Cement. No delays in deliveries.

SNAG IN PURCHASE OF KANAWHA STOCK

Second Committee of Minority Holders Opposed to Surrender to Lake Shore at Price Offered.

PROFITS DIVERTED, THEY SAY

And Gentlemen in Hocking Deal Are Enjoying Benefits in Which K. & M. Stockholders Don't Share.

A minority committee of the Kanawha & Michigan stockholders who are opposed to the offer of purchase by the Lake Shore and the Chesapeake & Ohio, made through another minority committee headed by George D. Mackay, issued a circular yesterday to minority stockholders urging co-operation. The members of the new committee are John S. Stanton, Chairman; David H. Gould, and Samuel Untermyer. W. C. Taylor, 37 Wall Street, is Secretary of the Committee.

One of the committee said yesterday that plans were now being formed. Whether these will lead to a suit will depend, he said, upon the treatment the minority stockholders may receive.

The offer made through the Mackay committee was a net price of 70⅕ for the outstanding minority stock. The Stanton committee contends that this is too low in view of the present and prospective earning capacity of the road. Moreover, the committee holds that the minority holders have not been fairly treated in the past by the Hocking Valley interests which have controlled the property. On this point the committee says in its circular:

> Your committee is satisfied after a thorough investigation of the history of the company that the rights of the minority stockholders have not been safeguarded as they should have been; that its property and profits have been diverted in unlawful ways, and that large amounts of money are recoverable in the interests of the shareholders.
> The committee advises against the sale of the stock at anything like the price that is now being offered. They believe that when the rights of the company have been properly asserted the stock will be worth above par. The argument that is being advanced by Mr. Mackay and his associates that the majority of the stock is being acquired by the Chesapeake & Ohio at $72 per share is answered by the statement that these gentlemen are trading the various properties represented in the Hocking Valley situation between themselves, and that there are reciprocal benefits flowing from one to the other, in which the minority stockholders of the K. & M. unfortunately do not participate.

In two years, the committee asserts, the Kanawha & Michigan will earn 15 per cent. on its stock. The suggestion that the surplus earnings for the next two years will be required to carry on proposed improvements to the road is met by the Stanton committee with the assertion that these improvements should be financed by a bond issue, and that under the regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission all earnings devoted to permanent improvements must show in the surplus account.

Mr. Stanton was a member of the reorganization committee, and for a long time a Director of the Toledo & Ohio Central, and both he and the other members of his committee are holders of substantial amounts of Kanawha & Michigan stock.

CURB PROTECTS CUSTOMERS.

Demands References of Directors of Outside Industrials.

The mentors of the Curb market yesterday added another picket to the fence which was put up after the collapse of the mining boom in 1906, with the idea of barring "fly-by-night" stocks. It was announced on the bulletin board that in addition to the present requirements in the way of filing statements with the agency, individual references for the Directors of "oil companies, rubber companies, and other outside industrials" must be given.

The success of rubber stock speculation in London and the interest aroused in the shares of Intercontinental Rubber, recently listed in the outside market, has turned the attention of promoters to a new field. The Curb is trying to prevent a repetition in "rubber" of the disastrous boom in copper and silver shares four years ago.

IN THE WINTER WHEAT BELT.

Correspondents of Dun & Co. Declare Rumors of Bad Crops Exaggerated.

The situation in the Winter wheat belt, according to the correspondents of R. G. Dun & Co., is not as bad as many private reports received in Wall Street in the last week have made out. Dun's says:

> The entire Southwest needs rain, and early ample moisture would improve conditions materially. In practically all sections of the belt the area sown to wheat is larger than a year ago, which would counterbalance to some extent any loss that may have occurred. The most unfavorable reports from Kansas come from the central part of the State, but with timely rains it is expected that a normal crop will be produced, as the area of Winter wheat killed has been offset by the increased acreage. The greatest damage has been to early-sown wheat, and it is regarded as certain that some of the fields will be abandoned, although it may not be very much over the annual average.

The returns from Indiana and Ohio are, on the whole, favorable, though poor in some localities. The Illinois crop is estimated at 60 per cent. of last year. at this time. The damage in Nebraska is put at from 20 to 25 per cent., with an increase, however, of 7 per cent. in the acreage. In Michigan the situation is considered favorable, with a larger acreage also than last year.

In Missouri it is estimated that the crop has been damaged as much as 60 per cent., with the estimates of increased acreage ranging from 10 to 90 per cent. Oklahoma, with an acreage increase of 10 per cent., reports wheat in excellent condition, but in Texas drought is a menace. In Kentucky reports are favorable, and in Tennessee increased acreage is thought to offset the 10 per cent. damage reported.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Daughters of the Confederacy Must Pay Full Duty on Statuary.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday refused to remit a tax of 45 per cent. imposed by the Collector of Customs at New Orleans on a bronze group imported by Albert Weiblen for the Daughters of the Confederacy at Yazoo, Miss. The group was returned for duty as "manufactures in chief value of metal not specially provided for" at 45 per cent.

The importer alleged that the group is a first cast from the original model made by a sculptor, and that the casting was finished by him, and should therefore be dutiable as "statuary" at 20 per cent. or free of duty as statuary under Paragraph 649 as having been imported for and by order of the Daughters of the Confederacy, an incorporated society. Judge Waite, who writes the decision for the board, says that the statements in the official protest are unsupported by evidence, which renders it impossible for the board to uphold the contentions raised. He says:

"We are not warranted in disturbing the assessment, as there is nothing in the record to prove that sufficient handwork has been done on this group to remove it from the class of commercial bronzes (uniformly held dutiable as manufactures of metal) into the statuary class. It not being satisfactorily proved that this production is statuary within the meaning of that term as defined by the board and the courts, it is not classifiable under Paragraph 454. For the same reason, it is not entitled to free entry under Paragraph 649, as the term 'statuary' in the latter paragraph is controlled by the definition of the word found in Paragraph 454. The protest is overruled."

Acting in harmony with a decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals, the board sustained a claim filed by the Jena Company of Philadelphia. It is held that so-called klinger glasses, giving a prismatic effect, are dutiable properly at the rate of 45 per cent.

DROP IN ALLIS-CHALMERS.

Stock Down 3½ Points—Unfavorable Rumors Are Denied.

A drop in the preferred shares of the Allis-Chalmers Company yesterday of 3½ points was accompanied by a number of rumors unfavorable to the company, which were promptly denied at the office of the company. The day's total transactions amounted to only 2,500 shares, and at the close the price was back to 38½, 1½ points below Wednesday's last quotation. The 5 per cent. bonds of the company opened at 79½, and declined to 78½, recovering at the close to 78⅞.

One of the rumors was that the company was about to issue new securities in order to raise funds. Vice President W. W. Nichols said that this rumor was without any foundation. The company put through a financial plan just before the panic of 1907, when the present issue of $10,320,000 first mortgage sinking fund bonds were issued. The funds then obtained, together with orders for several millions, carried the company through the period of depression, and business has been steadily increasing since 1908.

At present, he added, the company's gross business exceeded by 40 per cent. that of last year to date, and the output showed an increase of 20 per cent. Much of the increase in new business had so far been in small orders, which offered an advantage to the company in the quicker turnover. The outlook was better than ever before, he said.

John V. Dissensions arose between the parties in interest about a year ago, and it was decided to go into liquidation, which has been in progress since then.

Werther was President and Treasurer.

LATHROP, HASKINS & CO.—Lathrop, Haskins & Co., stockbrokers of 60 Broadway, were adjudicated bankrupts yesterday by Judge Hough, and the case was sent to Stanley W. Dexter, referee in bankruptcy at 71 Broadway, to have charge of the further proceedings. A petition in bankruptcy was filed against them on Jan. 19 as a result of the collapse of the Hocking Coal and Iron pool.

TILLIE HYMAN.—Schedules in bankruptcy of Tillie Hyman, cap manufacturer at 83 Bleecker Street, show liabilities of $4,310 and assets of $1,600, consisting of stock, $1,107; machinery, $180; accounts, $310, and cash, $3. A petition in bankruptcy was filed on Oct. 29 against Samuel Hyman, trading as T. Hyman. Tillie Hyman was afterward brought in and adjudicated a bankrupt, and the petition as against Samuel was dismissed ten days ago.

F. PERLIN & SON.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Fishel and Bernhard Perlin, who compose the firm of F. Perlin & Son, manufacturers of cloaks and suits, 108 Greene Street, by these creditors: Benjamin Schneider, $156; Samuel Sobel, $63; Joseph Durst, $51, and Joseph Lessler, $250. 1492 IS A YEAR NONE SHOULD FORGET

¶ It was the year that Caruso's great grandfather discovered America.

¶ It is also the lot number of a new Spring Suit that I got in yesterday.

¶ It's a gray stript worsted. I'm asking $25 for it because I think it's worth it.

¶ Don't forget the number when you come in to-day—1492, or if your memory for dates is bad, merely mention Caruso's name; I'll understand.
